KIDNAP BOYS AND DEMAND $10,000

If Parents Refuse, Abductors Threaten to Send the Captives' Heads to Them.

FEARED TO TELL THE POLICE

Victims Picked Up Close Together in Brooklyn on Saturday—A Whole School Watches Another Child.

It became known to the Brooklyn police for the first time last night that two Italian boys living within two blocks of each other were kidnapped within an hour on Saturday afternoon, one boy being taken from an elevated station opposite the Fifth Avenue Police Station. The two cases at the same time have spurred the Italian squad of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau to the strongest efforts to discover and apprehend the gang supposed to have been guilty of both crimes.

The kidnappings were reported to the police only when letters were sent to the families of both children, threatening to cut off the boys' heads and send the heads home if a ransom of $5,000 was not forthcoming or the parents reported the kidnapping to the police.

All this caused the police the more concern because nine-year-old Marguerite Ferri of 8,115 Seventeenth Avenue, Brooklyn, barely escaped from kidnappers last Friday afternoon, and since then more than 200 school children, forming nearly the whole body of Public School 163 in Benson Avenue, between Bay Fourteenth and Bay Fifteenth Streets, Bath Beach, have been forming a daily escort to and from school for her.

Eight-year-old Michael Fritzi, the youngest of four children, is one of the two boys kidnapped. He had lived with his mother and grandparents, Nicolo Fritzi and his wife, above his grandfather's grocery at 720 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, ever since his father died last March, leaving his family dependent upon the grandparents.

With seven-year-old Charles Curry, who lives next door at 718 Fifth Avenue, Michael was playing in the street near his home on Saturday afternoon when a stranger, tall, clean-shaven, and of dark complexion, wearing a blue suit, light sweater, and tan shoes, approached them and offered to take them to a moving picture show and give them candy afterward. Both boys readily agreed to go with him, and followed him toward the Fifth Avenue Police Station at Sixteenth Street and Fifth Avenue. Just across from there is a moving picture show, into which the stranger led them.

After they had been inside for about an hour the man took them out, saying they would go to a nicer picture show. They followed him up the steps of the elevated station at that corner, but the Curry boy, seeing that the promised candy was not forthcoming, began to grow afraid and suspicious. He refused to go further and tried to induce his chum to return with him, but the man, he says, held Michael and ordered the other boy angrily home. He said he would take the Fritzi boy to a picture show in Atlantic Avenue. That was the last seen of Michael.

On Monday, however, old Nicolo Fritzi, the boy's grandfather, received an Italian letter, written apparently in three different hands, and unsigned. The letter told him that his grandson was in the writers' power and would be returned only upon payment of a ransom of $5,000.

"If you don't give the money," the letter read, "we will cut off the boy's head and send it to you. Also if you tell the police. Then we will kill you too."

The letter effectively silenced the grandfather and kept him from telling the police about the boy's disappearance. Neighbors and other tenants in the building, however, learning from the parents of the Curry boy what had happened, and fearful that the building in which they lived might be blown up by the kidnappers, reported the matter to the police last night. When detectives were sent to the house, the old man readily told them all he knew about the case. He insisted, however, that the boy's family was destitute, and that he himself had spent all he had on their maintenance, and was unable to give the ransom demanded.

It was while inquiring in the neighborhood in connection with the boy's disappearance that the detectives learned of the kidnapping of a second boy, less than two blocks away. He was seven-year-old Giuseppe Longo, the son of Frank Longo, a grocer, at 186 Twenty-first Street, between Fourth and Fifth Avenues. The boy, a friend and classmate of the Fritzi boy at Public School 60, Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street, disappeared from the street near his home at nearly the same hour on Saturday afternoon. The police could find no one that saw this kidnapping, but on Monday, by the same mail that brought the letter to Nicolo Fritzi, the elder Longo, too, received a letter, written in the same three hands and making the same demands, with the same threat of sending the boy's head in case the demands were not complied with or the police were notified.

Longo also insisted to the police that he was a poor man and utterly unable to pay a tithe of the ransom demanded of him. He passes in the neighborhood as a man of scant means, but is said to have a wealthy brother owning more than a block of property in South Brooklyn.

PUPILS GUARD LITTLE GIRL.

Whole School Turns Out to See That Kidnappers Don't Get Her.

Elderly residents of Seventeenth Avenue, Bath Beach, and the neighborhood between there and Public School 163 in Benson Avenue, between Bay Fourteenth and Bay Fifteenth Streets, have been annoyed by the noise of 200 or more shouting, playing school children who have trooped past their houses every afternoon at 3 o'clock since last Friday.

A crusty old man appealed to the Bath Beach police yesterday to learn if the children could not be stopped from interfering with his afternoon nap, but after Lieut. Flynn had talked to him for ten minutes the old man left, vowing that the children could make all the noise they liked and he would join them if his presence would do any good.

Lieut. Flynn explained to him that the noisy youngsters were acting as escort for little nine-year-old Marguerite Ferri from the schoolhouse to her home at 8,115 Seventeenth Avenue, and they were doing it because on Friday she was nearly kidnapped. Half a dozen policemen are in the escort, too, although they don't make so much noise about it, and the old man, with many other residents of the section, has added himself to the number of Marguerite's protectors, at least by keeping a close watch from his window until he sees the little girl enter her home.

Bath Beach is full of families who have

HAECKEL QUITS THE CHURCH.

Evolutionist Does It as Protest Against Reactionary Tendencies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Prof. Ernst Haeckel, the celebrated German Darwinian, author of "The Riddle of the Universe," has announced his withdrawal from the Evangelical Church as a protest against the political trend of the times. Germany's famous monist telegraphs the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag:

"The reasons why I have left the church are as follows: The conviction that the separation of Church and State as well as Church and school is becoming more and more an urgent demand of civilization; furthermore, the growth of political reaction through the predominant influence of the Black and Blue Bloc (the Catholic-Conservative Parliamentary coalition) and compulsory education in religious hypocrisy; finally my personal indignation over the continued Jesuitical accusations of the Clerical and Conservative press alleging the forgery of photographs of embryos."

The concluding passage of Prof. Haeckel's message refers to certain photographic illustrations in his last work in connection with the development of species.

Prof. Ernst Heinrich Haeckel has long been known as the most eminent disciple of Charles Darwin. Darwin's "Origin of Species" appeared just as Prof. Haeckel was beginning his scientific career, and he fell under its influence. He was recognized as the leading exponent of Darwinism in Germany, and when he was only 32 published a book on "General Morphology," which was hailed as an epoch-making work in the history of biological research. He republished it in more popular form at a later date as "The Natural History of Creation."

Haeckel has carried the theories of Darwin to more definite conclusions. He has traced the evolution of man through twenty-six stages, and was the first to attempt to draw up a genealogical tree showing the origins and relationships of the animal kingdom. His most ambitious work has been "The Riddle of the Universe," which was published in 1900, in which he gave his own solution of the problem of the application of the doctrine of evolution to the higher nature of man.

FALLING WALL KILLS FOUR.

Building Collapses, Burying Adjoining Shop—Women and Children Victims.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 22.—The wife of Simon Frutkin, a tailor, his two small children, and a customer were crushed to death by the collapse of a new concrete mercantile building at Lorain Avenue and West Thirtieth Street to-night. A baby, youngest of the Frutkin children, was saved by the strength of a bureau under which it had rolled and which supported a weight of many tons until rescuers found the little one unharmed.

The dead are: Mrs. Frutkin, her children, Thelma, 6, and Rosalind, 3, and Mrs. J. E. Jackeny.

Frutkin himself was injured badly, as was Helmi Ylenon, a servant. His two apprentices and a woman and child escaped at the first warning sound.

Frutkin's tailor shop stood next to the big concrete structure. He was at work in the front room, while Mrs. Frutkin, with the children, was asleep in a bedroom in the rear, when there came a crash from the building next door. The wall that overhung the Frutkin home bulged, groaned, and then settled to the earth, burying the tailor's home and his shop beneath it.

The new building, which was destroyed, was being erected by a large furniture concern to replace one destroyed by fire five months ago. It had not been occupied.

Herman Bolen, Superintendent of construction of the building, was passing when the collapse occurred. He said that he saw a blinding flash of light just before the crash came, and the sound that followed was unmistakeably that of an explosion. Others say there was no explosion.

Furniture which was stored in a completed portion of the building was found a block away. The two watchmen in the place left just before the accident.

FREIGHT TRAIN KILLS WOMAN.

Mrs. Cameron Meets Instant Death, Three Cars Passing Over Her.

RIDGEWOOD, Nov. 22.—A freight train backing across Ridgewood Avenue on a private right of way between buildings crushed to death to-day Mrs. A. J. Cameron, whose husband is a rich braid manufacturer at Philadelphia. The Camerons have a handsome home on Maple Avenue, Ridgewood. Mrs. Cameron, who was about 65 years old, had just left her carriage and was crossing the road to do a little shopping when she was killed.

Mrs. Cameron was unaware of the approach of the freight cars, and the flagman beside the cars did not see her. She was knocked down and rolled over several times. Several persons who witnessed the accident called to the brakeman on top of the cars, but before the engineer could be signaled three cars had passed over Mrs. Cameron's body. Both legs and one arm were cut off by the wheels. She was dead before she could be taken from the tracks.

Mr. Cameron, who has offices in the Wool Exchange, New York, was reached in Philadelphia by telephone, and he left at once for Ridgewood.

SAVED FROM BURNING MINE.

Of 200 Workers, 160 Are Out Already —Others Thought to be Safe.

CANON CITY, Col., Nov. 22.—Miners caught in the workings of the Frémont mine of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, which took fire in an underground mule stable late this afternoon, are being hoisted to the surface one by one through an airshaft which offers the only way of escape. More than 160 have reached the surface, and mine officials declare that all but two of the men employed underground have been communicated with and are known to be safe.

The fire has been driven to the main haulage shaft by ventilating air currents and the main shaft is now burning fiercely. Many of the miners still under ground have taken refuge in chambers where the air is good, and will await rescue parties before attempting to reach the airshaft.

The main passages are full of smoke, and they were ordered to wait until the fan at the airshaft could clear the passages before attempting to escape.

EXPRESS COMPANIES FEAR NEW STRIKE

Union Preparing for One Before Christmas, When Trade Would Be Seriously Hurt.

LEADER FORSTER ADMITS IT

Issue Would Be Unionism, That Is, the "Closed Shop," Alone—Organization Being Pushed to That End.

A representative of the express companies of this city made it known yesterday that in several of these at least there exists some apprehension that there may be another general strike of express drivers early in December. A strike at that time would be far more serious than the last, because of its effect on the Christmas trade. A strike, it was intimated, may be called, however, by officers of the Teamsters' Union, who are now diligently organizing the drivers for recognition of the union—that is the so-called "closed shop."

The man who gave this warning represented the American, the United States, the Adams, and the National Express Companies throughout the last strike. He declared that the actions of the International union organizers, which have been under close scrutiny ever since the agreement between the drivers and the companies was reached on Nov. 11, were such that the companies' officers could no longer close their eyes to the increasing danger of a general walkout of all union drivers just before the Christmas rush. In such an event the issue would not be shorter hours or more pay, about both of which the companies were ready to meet the men in such a spirit that serious disagreement would be impossible, but solely for the "closed shop."

Officers of the express companies said their representative could not help seeing the strenuous efforts being made by out-of-town union men brought here for the purpose, to bring every express driver into a close organization. Non-union men who had been employed at the close of the strike had for the most part either been induced to join the union or to leave the companies' wagons. In fact, everything seemed being prepared to whip the organization into shape and order a strike just before Christmas, when the greatest delivery strain of the year falls on the companies. The unions would demand a "closed shop," which the express companies had already declared in their letter to Henry R. Towne, President of the Merchants' Association, they could not and would not accept.

Practically everything reported from the express companies' side, except a definite date for the strike, was confirmed by Charles R. Forster, Secretary of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. While not admitting that a strike had been decided upon Forster told a TIMES reporter that a strike of teamsters would soon be called by the union unless the express companies agreed to the "closed shop." It was true, he said, that every effort had been made since the last strike was called off to get the drivers organized and closely affiliated with the Teamsters' Union. In the last strike they had failed to attain all these objects because the drivers were not closely organized and not affiliated with the Teamsters' Union.

Ashton, the International Organizer who directed the strike for the drivers, had never left the city since, Forster said, but with the assistance of others, had given his time to getting the drivers into shape for a demand for the "closed shop." Much of the work had already been accomplished, with the result that few non-union drivers were on the express wagons. When asked if the plan was for a demand for the "closed shop" to be made with a threat of a strike to back it about Dec. 1, as the express companies had reason to fear, Forster replied:

"Well, Dec. 1 is as good a time for a strike as any."

GIVES LIE TO CLEMENCEAU.

Journalist Charged by ex-Premier Retorts—Ready for Challenge.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—Ex-Premier Clemenceau in his testimony before a commission of the Chamber in the Rochette affair to-day quoted M. Lepine, Prefect of Police, as having charged a member of the Matin staff, one Charles Sauerwein, with having lied.

M. Lepine denies this statement, and Sauerwein, in an article which the Matin will publish to-morrow, returns Clemenceau's compliment in kind.

He further declares that he holds himself at Clemenceau's disposition if the latter desires to call him to account. The difference of age, Sauerwein says, precludes his sending a challenge to Clemenceau.

Sauerwein accuses the ex-Premier of making false statements in the vain hope of provoking the betrayal of those who gave confidential information against him.

Henri Rochette was arrested in March, 1908, on the charge of having fraudulently obtained more than $12,000,000 through the medium of various companies and societies in which he was concerned. On his arrest the shares of his companies collapsed, and a scandal arose in connection with which Clemenceau's name was mentioned. It was said he had caused Rochette's arrest. It was also said that Rochette had owed his long immunity to the protection of men high in the Government. Rochette was convicted and sentenced to two years in prison in July, but the affair is now under investigation.

NEXT SUNDAY'S TIMES.

GRADY WILL NOT BE THE SENATE LEADER

His Affiliations Not Looked Upon with Favor in the Democratic Councils.

NOT IN THE BEST HEALTH

Senator Wagner, with a Clean Record, Regarded as a Good Man for the Place.

Senator Thomas F. Grady will not be President pro tem. of the Democratic Senate which will be seated when Governor-elect Dix takes office. It is probable that Mr. Grady, within a few days, will announce that he is not a candidate for this post of honor and influence.

The report came after Mr. Dix had left the city, a day or two ago. The Governor-elect has announced that he will cling to his attitude of non-interference with the functions of the Legislature, but strong representations have been made to the Democratic leaders from many up-State sections, and this in addition to the fact that Senator Grady's health has frequently made it necessary for him to absent himself from the Senate Chamber for long periods at a time in recent years, has led up to a situation whereby he will not benefit to any great extent from the recent Democratic victory.

Since the close of the last session Mr. Grady has been elected President of the Fraternal Order of the Eagles. Not only does this place keep him busy most of the time, but it renders it necessary for him to spend much of his time in travel. In addition to this it has been urged that the position at the head of an organization like the Eagles would make Mr. Grady not so available for a place that would make him the most potent factor in legislative circles at Albany as he would be did he not hold it.

It is known that Mr. Grady was not overanxious to be re-elected to the Senate this year, but that he yielded to the importunities of Tammany Leader Murphy and other members of Tammany Hall, who knew the Senator well and were in a position to appreciate his abilities. It is said that some men representing the race-track interests had been particularly anxious that he should go back and become the leader of the Senate majority in the case of a Democratic victory. Even now he may become the "power behind the throne."

The news of Mr. Grady's practical withdrawal as a candidate for the post of Senate leader will be hailed with satisfaction in many circles. In the years when the Democrats were the minority party—and especially during the four years of Gov. Hughes's administration—Senator Grady was the means of effecting combinations between the Tammany members of the Senate and the corrupt element in the Republican organization, the doings of which at Albany were in part responsible for the Republican disaster at the polls.

Mr. Grady has always been as much of an Old Guard and Black Horse Cavalry man as any member of the Legislature, and his name has been dragged into the graft investigations that have been conducted by State Supt. of Insurance Hotchkiss and by the Legislative Graft Investigation Committee.

Mr. Grady could not be found yesterday, either at his home, 151 East Thirtieth Street, or at his office, 74 Broadway. At his home, where he lives with his sister, it was said that he was out of town. The Senator has not been himself for some time, and the condition of his health has alarmed his friends.

It was reported yesterday that while Tammany Leader Murphy, whose word will be law as to who shall take the place that under ordinary circumstances would go to Mr. Grady, had not made up his mind, Senator Robert F. Wagner of this city, in all probability, will be the man, unless it should go to some up-State man. Mr. Wagner has been more or less of an independent during the two years he has served in the Senate, and in former years, when he was a member of the Assembly, but his party loyalty cannot be assailed. He has a good record and has had considerable legislative experience.

CRIPPEN WILL DIE EARLY THIS MORNING

To be Hanged in London Prison Yard Between 3 and 4 A. M., New York Time.

PROBABLY NO CONFESSION

Ethel Leneve, with Whom He Fled After Killing His Wife, Denies That He Admitted Guilt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 23.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen will be hanged between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning—between 3 and 4 A. M. New York time—for the murder of his wife, the actress known as Belle Elmore. The authorities have taken every precaution to guard against any hitch at the last moment. The execution will be witnessed only by a few officials.

Though there are many reports that Crippen made a "confession," it is exceedingly doubtful that he made any statement admitting his guilt. Lloyd's Weekly will on Sunday next print what is declared to be the condemned man's "last and final word," but the mere fact that the publication of this is to be withheld till Sunday is taken to indicate that the statement contains nothing so sensational as a confession of the crime which the condemned man all along consistently denied. Had Crippen's last word admitted his guilt, it is argued, the proprietors of Lloyds' Weekly would have hastened to publish such a beat in their daily paper, The Chronicle. The Chronicle this morning announces that Lloyds' Weekly will publish Dr. Crippen's "last word" as received from Miss Leneve in terms which leave it indefinite whether or not that statement contains an admission of guilt.

Both Solicitor Newton and Miss Leneve denied that Crippen had made any confession in the proper sense of the word. The Catholic Chaplain of the prison is under the seal of the confessional and will say nothing. The Governor of the prison denies knowledge of any confession.

Miss Leneve has booked passage for New York on the Majestic, sailing to-day, under the name of Miss Allen.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—All preparations were completed at midnight for the hanging of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen this morning within the gloomy walls of Pentonville Prison, which stands in one of the most dismal sections of London.

Public Executioner Ellis, who hanged a wife murderer at Liverpool Tuesday morning, arrived in London on the evening train.

A few tenements overlook the prison yard, and to bar the tenants from a glimpse of the tragedy a big canvas screen was put up before the gallows.

Only a small group of official witnesses were invited, and every effort was made to prevent morbid crowds from gathering in the neighborhood.

Even the customary official announcement of the hanging is not likely to be posted until evening. The body probably will be buried in quicklime in the prison yard. This is the custom at Pentonville, although not in all English prisons.

Father Carey, who visited Crippen frequently, entered the prison at 6 o'clock last evening to spend the night with the condemned man and walk with him to the scaffold.

An evening paper caused a sensation by flooding the city with placards that Crippen had made a written confession. Everyone in a position to know denied this.

Ethel Leneve said: "I was the last person to see Dr. Crippen. So far as my knowledge extends he did not make such a statement."

Miss Leneve, at the request of the prisoner, paid a farewell visit to Crippen at Pentonville Prison yesterday afternoon. She reached the place in a closed cab accompanied by an elderly man, who remained outside. She remained for a half hour in the visitors' room with the doctor. During her stay the warders watched the condemned man closely.

Crippen slept well Monday night, and yesterday morning ate a hearty breakfast.

FOR BETTER SUBWAY SERVICE

Service Board to Hold a Hearing to Compel More Trains to be Run.

The Public Service Commission ordered yesterday a hearing for Nov. 30 to determine whether its previous order requiring the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to run trains enough to provide seats for all the passengers in every half hour shall be modified to compel the company to provide seats for all passengers in every fifteen-minute period.

The present order contains a proviso applying to rush hours, when the company is required to run trains to the maximum extent of its operating power.

Recent examinations indicate the constant extension of the rush hour period, and the commission seeks to relieve this condition.

WANT LAWSON ARRESTED.

Court to Hear Application Following His Non-Appearance in Heinze Case.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—The arrest on a caplas of Thomas W. Lawson, the financier of this city, on the charge that he had disregarded a summons issued by the Massachusetts Supreme Court, was asked for in a bill in equity filed in the Supreme Court to-day by counsel for J. A. Day, a broker, who is one of the defendants in the series of suits brought by F. Augustus Heinze of New York, the copper mining operator, against several Boston brokers. The hearing of these suits has been in progress before F. Rockwood Hall, as Master, for more than a year.

Mr. Lawson, whose testimony was desired, was summoned yesterday to appear before the Master to-day, but failed to put in an appearance. Day's application will be heard to-morrow.

BEEF TRUST TRIAL DEC. 20.

Lawyers Appear Before Judge Carpenter and Agree to This Date.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Unless unforeseen complications arise the indicted members of the so-called Beef Trust will be placed on trial Dec. 20.

Counsel for the Government and for the packers appeared before Judge Carpenter in the United States District Court to-day and agreed upon this date. It was agreed also that a dilatory plea shall be filed on Nov. 27 and a demurrer not later than Dec. 5.

The attorneys for the packers stated that they appeared solely for the purpose of straightening out dates concerning which confusion has arisen, and do not admit that the case comes properly into the District Court. It is their contention that Judge Landis should certify the charges from the District Court to the Circuit Court.

TO FIGHT THE ICE TRUST.

Cornell Towing Company Said to be Behind Plans to Start Competition.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Reports have reached here that S. D. Coykendall, President of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company, and also President of the Cornell Towing Company, is planning war on the American Ice Company and its control of the Hudson River ice crop. It is stated that Mr. Coykendall has options on fifteen icehouses north of Rondout owned by independent dealers, and will establish a New York ice market in opposition to the American Ice Company.

For years the Cornell Towing Company has handled the iceboat business of the American Ice Company, but last Spring there was a disagreement between the two companies which resulted in the ice company employing its own towing boats.

As a result, it is said the towing company has made plans to engage in the ice business as a competitor of the American Ice Company.

Wilson's detention on the second charge was brief. His wife got into communication with the authorities at Cedar Rapids and settled the claim, thereupon the police released Wilson.

The Wilsons, it is said, were married in Boston, and it was while on their wedding trip that he was arrested here for giving a hotel a bogus check. Wilson fled West and was captured in San Francisco. He is said to come from New London, Conn.

Stockholders Act to Stop Acceptance of $150,000 in $3,000,000 Claim.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Deputy Sheriffs armed with an injunction issued yesterday prevented the meeting of stockholders of the defunct Chicago National Bank to-day. The injunction was obtained by stockholders, who feared that C. K. G. Billings's offer to settle a $3,000,000 suit against him for $150,000 would be accepted.

It is said that the protesting stockholders mean to prosecute the suit against Mr. Billings on the ground that in not performing his duties as a Director of the bank he became liable to that extent for the losses incurred by the failure of the John R. Walsh properties, which included the bank.

TROOPS RETAKE MEXICAN CITIES

Fresh Outbreaks Occur, However, and Widespread Revolt Makes the Situation Serious.

FIGHTING HAS BEEN HEAVY

Plot to Kill High Government Officials Frustrated by Finding of Papers at Capital.

AMERICANS LEAVE COUNTRY

Tell of Strong Feeling Against Them—Railways Are Crippled and Passengers Are Killed by Bullets.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 22.—Activity of the Government forces of troops and rurales has checked revolutionary activity in Mexico. Most of the cities in which there has been fighting are in possession of the Government. There are constant reports of fresh outbreaks, however, and the wide extent of the disturbances and the unrest outside the cities makes it evident that the situation is most serious and may get beyond the control of the army, especially as there are signs of disaffection in the army.

Troops rushed into the bad area of disturbance where the States of Coahuila, Durango, and Chihuahua have retaken the principal cities in which the rebels gained temporary control. Order has been restored in Torreon, Gomez Palacio, and Parral. Practically all the surrounding country, however, is said to be in the hands of the rebels.

After the garrison of nearly 300 Federal troops at Gomez Palacio went over to the revolutionists yesterday, a fast march was made to Torreon, at least 1,000 well-armed men composing the attacking body. Artillery was soon placed in position on a hill overlooking the city and the guns opened up. The garrison of Torreon surrendered, it is reported, only after their numbers had been depleted by more than one-half in dead and injured. The death list among citizens is said to be high. As soon as the garrison ran up the white flag, cavalry and infantry dashed into the city, took charge of all stores and public funds, and new municipal officers were named. All stores, military equipment, and public funds were confiscated, as well as all cattle and horses in the surrounding country. Apparently the rebels then retired to the hills, having received word that Gen. Geronimo Trevino was on the way from Monterey with two regiments of cavalry and infantry. At midnight a full company of rurales took charge and troops came later, and started to drive back the rebels from the hills.

At Torreon is a colony of perhaps 450 Americans, and millions of American capital are invested there. One of the American industries is the Guayau Rubber factory, owned by the Inter-Continental Rubber Company of New York. The plant, including realty holdings, is valued at $5,000,000.

Other Places Are Retaken.

The revolutionists also evacuated Gomez Palacio early in the morning. They withdrew peaceably to the hills, leaving the city in the hands of the Government forces. They are reported to have gone into Coahuila.

Parral was retaken this afternoon. The first force sent from Chihuahua City stopped at Jiminez, the junction point, twenty miles away, until reinforcements arrived from the south. A trainload of ten cars of soldiers arrived at Parral at noon and immediately dislodged the revolutionists from their fortified positions above Parral. They fled in disorder, presumably toward Durango City. Eight rebels are reported killed and three rurales were wounded. The Mayor and Chief of Police of the city are said to have been killed.

J. S. Buford, an American resident of Torreon, telegraphed relatives here at 3:30 P. M. that the city was quiet, and that he was in no danger. Chihuahua, a city which had been expecting an attack, reported quiet, and at 6 o'clock no trouble was anticipated for the night.

Five thousand men on a construction camp of the Mexico Northwestern Railroad, near Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, threaten to revolt to-night. The Mayor of Casas Grandes has telegraphed a request for troops, stating that the city will be in the hands of the rebels if reinforcements are not received to-day.

It is evident that the railroad and telegraph services are having much trouble. A passenger train on the Mexico Northwestern Railroad, running between Chihuahua and Madera, was fired into last night and several second-class passengers killed. The number, names, and details could not be ascertained, as all the telegraph wires have been cut.

A bridge had been burned on the Mexican International Railroad near Loma, west of Torreon.

The National Railroad has resumed business, and all wires again are working through to the City of Mexico.

The federal telegraph, however, reports its Mexico wire by the way of Guaymas Sonora had been cut, supposedly by bands of Yaquis, who are terrorizing that part of the country. The federal telegraph is refusing all but Government business.

Heavy Fighting at Many Places.

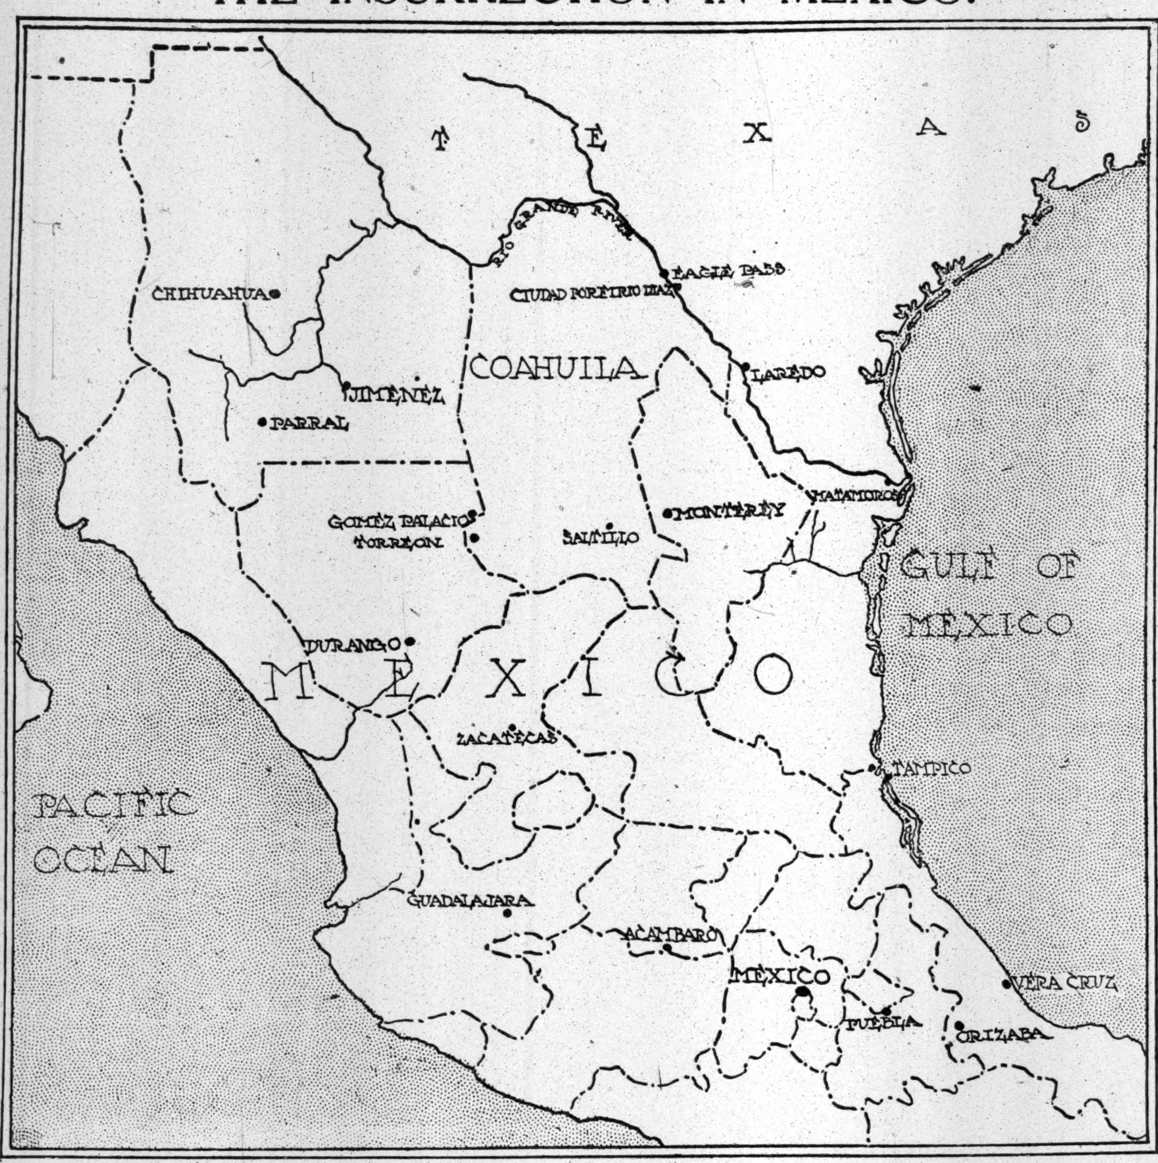
The disturbances cover a wide area. There has been heavy fighting at many places, with much bloodshed. Serious outbreaks occurred at Durango, Guerro, and Gomez Palacio, in the State of Durango; Parral, in the State of Chihuahua; Torreon and Hermanez, in the State of Coahuila; Acambaro, in the State of Guanajuato, less than seventy-five miles from Mexico City, and Orizaba, in the State of Vera Cruz.

At Acambaro 300 men broke into the jail and let free the prisoners last night, then looted the loan shops and confiscated all the arms and ammunition. They then went to the Municipal Palace and secured all the county funds. They were met by troops at midnight, and in the fight 20 were killed and 80 wounded. The revolutionists fled to the mountains.

Villardena, one of the biggest mining camps in Mexico, where a smelter of the American Smelting and Refining Company is located, is reported in the possession of the revolutionists. It is said that the smelting plant was damaged and many Americans were roughly treated.

There were reports to-day of general

THE INSURRECTION IN MEXICO.



Map Showing the Districts in Which Disturbances Have Occurred and the Cities Already Attacked.

fighting at Orizaba, Rio Blanc, Anogales, and Santa Rosa, a group of manufacturing towns in Vera Cruz, southeast of Mexico City, whither troops were sent yesterday. Some of the mills, it is said, have been fired. These are cotton manufacturing towns and there are 10,000 employes in Orizaba alone, all said to be against the Government. The sale of liquor has been prohibited there since last Friday, but several cantinas were broken into and liquor procured, which has made the mob the more difficult to control.

The report reached here this morning that forty revolutionists were put to death last night at Puebla.

Mexican papers arriving by this morning's mail show that conditions in Vera Cruz were serious as far back as Saturday. These papers also declare that reports reached Guadalajara on Friday of serious disturbances in several villages in that State and that trusted men are out investigating.

Francisco I. Madero, head of the anti-re-electionists in Mexico, is reported to have entered the country at the head of a force numbering approximately 1,000, and Mexican troops are moving north to meet him. Gen. Medina, who disappeared last night, is said to be en route to Guerrero to join Madero and Abraham Gonzales, who is at the head of the revolutionary forces now in the vicinity of Chihuahua.

Rumors that Gen. Bernardo Reyes, the military hero of the country, who was implicated in the uprising two years ago, and who has been practically an exile since, had reached Mexico, gave tremendous impetus to the revolutionary cause.

Americans Hurrying Out.

Many Americans were on trains which arrived here to-day from Mexico. They reported that Americans were leaving the country as fast as possible because of the strong feeling against them. For instance, in Pachuca cards reading "Death to Yankees!" and "Down with Gringoes!" were posted all over town. Many cards read: "Kill Diaz and his Yankee friends."

An American from Torreon declared that two Americans were killed at that place Sunday by revolutionists.

Mexican officials permitted Americans to retain their arms to protect themselves. In Mexico City, El Diario del Hogar, the paper which incited the first anti-American riots there, has been suppressed, and the editor, Filomena Matta, placed in jail.

These refugees told many stories indicating that the Mexican Army was not wholly loyal. Some of them even said that the Government was placing little reliance on the army, as half of it was made up of petty criminals and convicts sentenced to a term in the army instead of prison. Most of these were known to be in sympathy with the revolutionary movement, and many officers who had received offers of promotion from Francisco Madero were suspected of being ready to join him.

It was said that 160 soldiers were sent from Chihuahua to put down a revolt at Madero, headquarters of the F. S. Pearson lumber interests, but twenty-five deserted en route, and the remainder joined the rebels upon their arrival, according to reports heard by the passengers. Troops being sent from Chihuahua to Parral left the train at Jiminez, the junction point, and refused to go further until reinforcements should arrive.

At Guadalajara, capital of the State of Jalisco, it was declared, Gov. Ahumada was no longer depending on his troops, but had placed three rapid-fire guns about his palace and hired men to operate the guns.

William Dale, a miner from Chihuahua, declares that 300 troops en route from Chihuahua to Madra were blown up on a bridge and killed. It has been impossible to verify this report. Dale says President Diaz has appealed to Gen. Luis Terrazas to restore order in Chihuahua. For years Terraza and Diaz were enemies, but Terrazas is the most influential man in Chihuahua.

American Tells of Fighting.

A. G. Springer, a New York traveling salesman, arrived here to-day direct from the scenes of disorder around Torreon. He said:

"The whole country through which I passed is in arms, and in many places a stage of terror prevails. I was in Monterey Sunday. The troops were in full control and everything was quiet. At the station I saw thirty men, each carrying a rifle, get off a train. The police and rurales immediately surrounded them, but I do not know the outcome, as the train pulled out.

"I reached Torreon Monday and found that Gomez Palacio was in the hands of the revolutionists. Everything was closed at Torreon—banks, stores and saloons, and business was at a standstill. A mining engineer and myself visited Gomez Palacio on a tram car, and we saw bodies lying about the streets, and were told that a battle had taken place between the revolutionists and the rurales. It was said that 200 soldiers had deserted and joined the insurgents. There was fighting around the palace for several hours and we saw some of it. The Chief of Police was shot dead. The rurales fought desperately, and were better armed and drilled than the revolutionists. They fought behind piles of railroad ties and finally forced the mob to flee to the hills.

"It was impossible to send a telegram, buy a paper, or get anything to eat at Torreon. We heard rumors of battles at other places, especially at Parral, where it was reported sixty-seven had been killed. The rumors piled upon each other so fast that it was impossible to verify anything. I took the first train for the border, glad to get out of the danger zone."

An order was issued to-day by the Mexican postal officials to refuse admittance to all American newspapers containing reference to the Mexican revolution. The postal officers at Juarez received the order this afternoon and announced that no newspapers would be accepted for transmission to the frontier.

FIGHTING NEAR THE BORDER.

Outbreak at Cuatro Cienegas—Gloomy View of a High Mexican.

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Nov. 22.—A high officer, who by virtue of his position is in close touch with the revolutionary movement in Mexico, to-night said that fighting was going on in Cuatro Cienegas, a large and prosperous city just below Monclova. This is the home of J. Carranza, brother of the candidate for Governor of Coahuila, in opposition to the administration candidate. It is a stronghold of the revolutionists.

This man, whose information cannot be questioned, but whose position prohibits publication of his name, said the situation in Mexico was more serious than at any other time during the last few years. He declared the excitement on the border was nothing compared to what it would be if all were known of the situation in the interior.

He declared that officers and citizens of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz were expecting the very worst at any time. They were scouring the surrounding country not for revolutionists, but for their friends and relatives, and bringing them into the city, some for protection but more for the purpose of arming and assisting in the defense of the city. Local merchants and citizens generally were armed and used as patrols. The town was under absolute military control, and all communication with this side was prohibited after dark.

The passenger train from the south, which is supposed to have left Torreon yesterday afternoon, has not arrived in Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, though it was due there at 11 o'clock this morning. Railroad officers say they do not know where the train is. The railway wires are not working.

Residents of Eagle Pass who have relatives in Torreon and other points down the Mexican International Line have not been able to get word from them for three days.

PLOT TO KILL OFFICIALS.

Papers Revealing It Siezed at the Capital Just in Time.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 22.—Documents found in the house of a revolutionary are said to have revealed a conspiracy for the wholesale assassination of prominent Government officers, including Foreign Minister Creel, Vice President Corral, Miguel S. Maiedo, Sub-Secretary of the Government, and other prominent Mexicans, among them Editor Spindola, owner of El Imparcial.

President Diaz's life was to be spared because of his past services to the country.

The bodies of those killed were to be suspended from electric light wires in the streets. The building of El Imparcial was to have been destroyed with dynamite. The papers showing the conspiracy were discovered during a raid by the police on Sunday. Three employes of El Imparcial had received the explosive and were instructed to use it at the first report of the uprising which was planned for last Sunday. The seizure of the plans on the day upon which they were to be executed is thought to have had a great effect in heading off the rebellion.

The Government is facing a serious revolutionary movement. Francisco I. Madero, reputed leader of the rebels, is believed to be near his home in Coahuila.

Yesterday three bodies of revolutionists attacked the military barracks at Orizaba and liberated and armed the prisoners whom they freed from the prison adjoining. The attack was well planned and executed.

The revolutionists, who numbered 300, divided their forces. A group of 100, stationed on the summit of a near-by hill, threw dynamite bombs into the barracks. When the soldiers fled from their quarters and charged their assailants the other party of 200 revolutionists attacked the prison. Beating down the guards and forcing an entrance they liberated all of the prisoners and armed them.

The Fifteenth Infantry charged the revolutionists and drove them back into the woods after a hot fight that continued until 9 o'clock last night. During the fighting the Tenth Infantry from Mexico City and the Sixteenth Infantry from Vera Cruz reached the scene.

More than a dozen Federal soldiers and revolutionists were killed last night in a pitched battle between the opposing forces in the streets of Camargo. A band of seventy-five revolutionists attacked the garrison, but were driven into the country after a fierce encounter with the Government troops.

Four hundred revolutionists who took part in the assault on Parral referred to in yesterday's dispatches were repulsed with a loss of thirteen dead, the inhabitants withstanding the attack for many hours until troops were able to reach the scene from Chihuahua and Monterey.

Gomez Palacio was retaken to-day by the Federal troops, according to official advices received here. The looters who occupied the town last night were pursued b ymounted troops and eventually dispersed, losing seven killed. The troops lost two.

Three thousand troops of all arms which left here yesterday are expected to reach Torreon, Gomez Palacio, Lerdo, and Parral early to-morrow. It is believed here that they will be amply able to cope with the situation.

Great difficulty is experienced in getting authentic reports from disturbed sections. The censorship is strict, and in many instances the Government has taken possession of the telegraph wires to the exclusion at least of press dispatches. The authorities minimize the gravity of the situation, but there is a general feeling of uneasiness at the capital.

Carlos B. Carothers, the American real estate dealer, who shot two men, one fatally, during the recent riots at Guadalajara, was released from custody to-day, the authorities declaring that he was justified in acting as he did in the defense of his home.

CLOSE WATCH AT BORDER.

American and Mexican Officers Are Working to Stop Rebels.

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 22.—The Mexican and American Army officers are working hand in hand to prevent more serious situations along the border, and conferences having this object in view are numerous. The United States Government has increased its force here, and the State rangers are also on the ground.

The rangers are under command of a veteran, Capt. J. H. Rogers. He says he is here to see, so far as possible, that the law is not violated in any way. It is not certain that he will remain in Laredo, but he will probably go into the country either above or below the city along the Rio Grande, and will exercise every precaution to prevent violation of neutrality laws.

The Mexican Government has a cordon of troops extending from a point below Laredo to Colombia, twenty-six miles up the Rio Grande on the Mexican side. They have been instructed to keep a close watch for Francisco I. Madero, who is believed to be in the neighborhood of Colombia, his family being large land owners not far from that point, which is regarded by the Mexican Government officials as a hotbed of insurrection.

One effect of the rumors of overt acts committed by the revolutionists at points throughout the republic is to prevent many persons who are en route to Mexico from crossing the border. Laredo hotels and boarding houses are now filled with people who had started to Mexico from all parts of the United States, but who on reaching the frontier and hearing the alarming reports which have been in circulation have considered it desirable to await the time when conditions are more settled before continuing their journey.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 22.—Following the departure of Troop K, Third Cavalry, under command of Capt. Arthur Thayer yesterday afternoon for Del Rio, Troop L of the same regiment, under command of Lieut. Matt C. Bristol hurriedly went to-day to Eagle Pass to assist in preserving the neutrality laws and protecting American interests.

More troops are held in readiness at Fort Sam Houston and Bliss for any orders that may be received.

DIVIDED ARMY A MENACE.

Washington Now Fears Serious Trouble for the Diaz Regime.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Reports received this afternoon that disloyalty was making its appearance in the Mexican Army was the most serious news for the Diaz régime that had reached Washington since the beginning of the disturbances there. With the army loyal there has been no question at the State Department that President Diaz would be able to subdue the outbreak, but with a divided army anything may happen.

From the time when Gen. Diaz first fought his way to the Presidency, in the early seventies, he has striven without intermission to creat and maintain an army that would be thoroughly loyal to the Government. It was part of his plan for insuring the stability, not only of his own Government, but also that of whoever should succeed him. He worked at the development of the army along with the development of a railroad system and the creation of telegraph facilities throughout the country. All three were primarily military measures.

The report that Gen. Bernardo Reyes is implicated in the revolution is of sinister significance for the Diaz régime if it proves to be true. Eight years ago Bernardo Reyes was slated to succeed Diaz in the Presidency of Mexico. He was then Minister of War, and as such at the head of the army. He was a fiery-tempered soldier who had been Governor of the State of Nueva Leon, with headquarters at Monterey. He had conducted himself so well there that he had been brought to the national capital for closer association with Diaz himself. Don Porfirio had planned to retire from the Presidency after the close of the second Pan-American Conference, which was held in Mexico in the Winter of 1901-02. José Yves de Limantour, Minister of Finance, was then chosen to succeed Diaz and fill out the unexpired term, after which Gen. Reyes was to come to the head of the Government for another period of "re-elections."

Reyes was suspicious that Limantour would not relinquish the Presidency at the end of the short term, and began to scheme to get the place for himself at once, without the intervention of the Finance Minister. Diaz learned of Reyes's plans, as he learned of everything else that went on in Mexico. He gave a banquet at his city residence in Mexico City, and there was a dramatic scene between him and Reyes. Then Reyes ceased to be Minister of War. For a time he was sent back to Monterey as Governor, always closely watched, and finally, about a year ago, was sent abroad on a "confidential military mission," since which time he has not reappeared. Gen. Reyes was always immensely popular with the army, and there is no doubt that if he is really interested in the present revolutionary schemes he can do more to win help in that quarter than any other man in Mexico.

Unofficial dispatches received here tonight say that southern Mexico practically has been cut off from the capital, railroad bridges have been blown up or burned, and the revolution has attained great proportions in that section of the republic, especially in Yucatan.

The recipients of the unofficial information declare that Vera Cruz will be captured by the revolutionists within three days, and that the revolutionary movement is sweeping northward.

A copy of the proclamation issued by Gen. Madero was received here to-day. So far it has not been formally presented to the State Department. It contains an outline of the proposed new Government and pledges protection to American lives and property.

REVOLT IS WIDESPREAD.

Widely Separated Cities Have Outbreaks—Americans Largely Affected.

The fighting in Mexico already reported shows that the revolt is exceedingly widespread, and that President Diaz must needs show a firm hand in several different parts of the republic at once. In the coast region to the southeast of the City of Mexico the prisoners have been liberated at Orizaba, and in the far northeast, in Sonora, the Yaqui Indians are supposed to be out. Madero is in one of the border States, Coahuila, and there has been fighting in Chihuahua State, directly south of El Paso, and in the central provinces of Durango and Zacatecas.

Orizaba, where the prisoners have been liberated, is only eighty miles from the capital. It is the capital of the State of Vera Cruz, and has a population of 35,000. It is in the centre of the coffee district, and is also noted for its large cotton mills. A railroad connects it with the port of Vera Cruz, about thirty miles away, and it can also be reached by rail from the City of Mexico.

Guadalajara, where the Governor is reported to have been deserted by his troops, is one of the most important cities of Mexico after the capital. It is known as the Mexican Dresden and has a population of 125,000. It is situated on gently sloping hills and is the home of a bishop and a university. It is renowned for its beautiful churches. It is on the line of railway running from the City of Mexico along the western coast of the Republic and is 140 miles from the capital. The revolt in this city is considered to be of particular importance as its inhabitants are more intelligent and better workmen than in other Mexican cities and have always been contented under enlightened local rulers.

Zacatecas, where 400 are reported to be killed, is in the centre of one of the oldest mining countries of the republic. It is about 150 miles to the northwest of the City of Mexico, with which it is connected by rail. It has 33,000 inhabitants, and is built in a gulch between two mountains. Its streets are narrow and tortuous, and there is barely room in the main streets for a diminutive tram line to operate. It is particularly adapted to street fighting.

Durango, where fighting is reported, is a city of 33,000, and the capital of the State of the same name. It is about 200 miles northwest of the City of Mexico, but to reach it by rail a long detour has to be made by Torreon. The State is particularly rich in minerals, its many mountains containing valuable deposits of gold, silver, iron, and sulphur and rubies. It possesses one natural curiosity in a mountain of almost solid iron.

Torreon, which for a time was in the hands of the rebels, is connected with Durango by rail and is a new and thriving town of about 20,000. It possesses cotton, flour, and iron mills, and the largest soap factory in the republic. It was founded in 1887, but now has a large American colony, and Chinese labor has done much to develop it. The Campanio Bancaria Chino y Mexico is one of the largest commercial institutions. The city has a fine Methodist Church, dedicated in 1908.

Gomez Palacio, where heavy fighting has been in progress, is a few miles northwest of Torreon, and is the centre of a railway division. It is an important strategic centre, as the railroads leading to the City of Mexico, to Monterey on the east, to Ciudad Porfirio Diaz and Laredo on the Texan boundary, to Chihuahua and Sonora, the Northwestern States, and El Paso concentrate there.

Parral, from which the rebels were dislodged with difficulty, lies seventy-five miles to the northwest of Torreon, and is in the heart of a fabulously rich mining district. It is not a city of great pretentions and has a population of only 16,000. In the old Spanish days it afforded much of the vast wealth sent across the ocean, and at the present time even the tailings of the old mines are giving an abundant return to the many American companies formed to work them.

Chihuahua, where fighting is expected, is a city of 30,500, the capital of the State of the same name. The State is about three times the size of the State of New York and is sparsely populated. Much of its area is waste, but it is being brought under cultivation by irrigation. Situated, as it is, just south of New Mexico and Texas, it has attracted a great deal of American capital, and in the cattle raising, mines, and lumbering operations Americans play a considerable part. In the capital city, indeed, English is almost as much spoken as Spanish and American money passes as readily as Mexican.

Casas Grandes, where 5,000 laborers have rebelled, lies about sixty miles south of the New Mexico frontier. It is a place remarkable as its name implies for ancient ruins, which are supposed to be the remains of the buildings of some of the earliest settlers in America. Not far from it is the Mormon settlement of Dublan, up the Casas Grandes Valley.

LARGE AMERICAN INTERESTS.

Senator Aldrich's Son at Torreon Looking After Big Rubber Plant.

The most important American enterprises in Mexico outside of the railroad and express lines, are the smelting plants of the American Smelting and Refining Company, and the Guayule shrub rubber refineries of the Intercontinental Rubber Company, in which Senator Nelson W. Aldrich is largely interested along with the Guggenheims and Thomas F. Ryan. The company has a plant at Torreon, which turns out 1,000,000 pounds of rubber a month, and Senator Aldrich's son, Edward B. Aldrich, the Treasurer of the company, is now at the plant. The plant manager, an American named Corbett, and a few foremen and engineers are about the only employes who are not natives.

No word had been received from Torreon at the offices of the company yesterday afternoon, but the last advices reported everything all right. Those who are connected with the company in New York were not worried yesterday at the reports from Mexico. A stockholder in the company who has just returned from Torreon said yesterday that he could not believe the disturbance there was serious. Torreon is a town o fabout 35,000 inhabitants and is reached by four railroads, over which Rurales could be rushed. He said the property of the rubber company is a concrete and stone building, with nothing in it but heavy machinery, and that a mob would find it hard work to burn or capture it, even if it wanted to take possession.

The American Smelting and Refining Company and the American Smelters Securities Company have extensive holdings of mining property in Mexico, besides concentrators and smelters. At Velardena, in the State of Durango, the Velardena Mining and Smelting Company is operated. It has a lead and copper smelter of a daily capacity of 1,000 tons. This company is capitalized at $3,000,000.

MONEY POURED INTO FRAUD STOCK OFFICE

In Three Hours Before Burr Bros. Were Raided Remittances by Mail Were $25,000.

VICTIMS BESIEGE INSPECTORS

Destitute Widows Clamor for Return of Their Cash—Admiral Evans's Oil Company Under Investigation Now.

A procession of heavily veiled widows and many other kinds of persons filed into the Federal Building all day yesterday, begging the Post Office Inspectors to get back the money they sent to the Burr Brothers, lately of the Flatiron Building, but now of the Tombs, for investment in the wildcat oil and mining companies they pretended to promote.

Inspector Kincaid said many of the women told him they had lost every cent they had in the world. Some of the women, in fresh mourning, related that they had invested with the Burr Brothers the proceeds of their husbands' life insurance on the promise of having their little fortunes doubled and tripled, with handsome dividends besides, and they had lost all. These tales they told with tears and sobs. Some of the misguided women seemed to think that all the Inspectors had to do was to go down to the Tombs and remove the money from the pockets of the alleged swindlers.

When Kincaid, Reddy, and other Inspectors drove up to the Flatiron Building about 2 o'clock yesterday, followed closely by a dray to cart away the firm's books, they found a line of men and women who had been waiting there all day, hoping against hope that some one would come in and arrange for them to get their money back.

Mrs. Lavinia Lawrence of Philadelphia told the Inspectors that her husband had died only a few weeks ago. His life insurance amounted to $4,000, and this was all she had for her support. She had seen the advertisement of Burr Brothers, telling how a small investment would soon grow to an enormous sum, and had sent them her money.

Poor Women Left Penniless.

Mrs. David Crabb of 127 East Ninety-third Street said she was a very poor woman with a large family to support. She had to work very hard, but by stinting herself she had been able to keep her family under a roof and to scrape together after many years a small sum. She said Burr Brothers told her if she would put this money in their oil wells she would not have to work much longer. She believed them and bought 5,000 shares of their oil stock for $2,500. It was all the money she had, and she got nothing back.

Another, a very old woman, with almost snowy hair, said she, too, had spent her all in the Burrs oil stock—11,000 shares of it at fifty cents a share.

"They told me," she said, "I would double my money in no time."

Many men, including several ministers, had reported at the Federal Building that they had invested heavily in the worthless stocks offered from the handsome suite of offices in the Flatiron Building.

Frederick Gundelman of 72 Sands Street, Brooklyn, said he had bought 1,000 shares of oil stock, and John Emerson, a bricklayer, living at 160 Bleecker Street, Manhattan, informed Chief Inspector Dickson that he had put $2,000 of hard-earned money in the Burrs' Nevada mining stock.

On one of the shares of mining stock was a picture of Gov. Sparks of Nevada, as President of the company. Emerson said he wrote to the Governor, and in a short time received a letter, apparently from Gov. Sparks, saying the stock was all right. Subsequently, Emerson declared, he learned that the Governor was dead at the time.

The bricklayer said he had invested in the British-American Goldfield and Copper Company, buying 5,000 shares at 15 cents a share, and in the Goldfield Mining, Milling, and Smelting Company, buying 2,000 shares at 15 cents a share.

How Investors Were Baited.

The first suggestion from the Burr Brothers to change his mining for oil stock came, Emerson said, early in the year. He showed Inspector Dickson a letter signed E. H. Burr, dated Feb. 10, 1910, in which he was told that mining stock was worthless and advising him to get oil stock in its place. The letter said:

> To be frank with you, we are about as discouraged with the mining business as you are. We successfully financed what appeared to be several very good mining properties, but in not one single instance did the properties turn out to be paying mines.
>
> After a great deal of investigation and careful consideration, we decided to direct our energies toward the financing and development of California oil properties, having reached the conclusion that California oil presented the greatest possibilities for big profits.
>
> We have been sending you regularly our magazine, "Securities," and if you have been reading it you must have noticed the splendid success we have met with in our oil operations. The Coalinga Aladdin Oil Company, the New York Coalinga Oil Company, and the Consolidated are all companies that have been financed and developed by us, and they are all three conspicuous successes in the Coalinga field, and we can look forward to a time not far distant when all three of these companies will enter the list of dividend paying California oil companies.
>
> Would you like to exchange upon a reasonable basis the stock you hold in the British-American Copper Mines and Smelting Company for stock in one of our active, successful oil companies?

While no further raids on wildcat companies were made yesterday, at the close of the day Chief Inspector Dickson announced that much damaging evidence had been obtained against every member of the Burr Brothers' firm. A telegram came about 5:30 o'clock announcing the arrest of Charles H. Tobey at Ellsemere Farm, two and one-half miles outside of Bloomingdale, Mich., one of the missing members of the firm. Inspector Kincaid said:

"Tobey was the brains of the firm, and I am glad we have him. He has plenty of money, I understand."

Besides the ledgers and letter files the Inspectors got possession of about a dozen bank-check books of the Burr firm. These have not been examined yet, in the rush of getting them into a safe place where injunctions are not likely to intrude, but a hasty glance at a single check book, almost the most insignificant-looking one in a great lot, disclosed a balance of $7,000 in one bank.

Money Kept Pouring In.

The Inspectors were careful not to forget the mail which had come on Monday morning between the time the offices opened and midday. This mail had been opened, and was left just where it was when the offices were raided between 12 and 1 o'clock on Monday afternoon. As the seals of the letters were broken the Inspectors had a right to go over them. They found that between $20,000 and $25,000 had come in in this mail, covering a receiving period of but three hours. Of this amount about $600 was in cash, the balance in checks and domestic and foreign Post Office money orders.

There was a single check for $11,520. It came from a man down in Lancaster, Penn. There were other checks for $900, $310, $133, $36, $90, $140, $70, and many other similar amounts, with a large number of very small checks and some Post Office money orders for sums as small as $2.50. The small sums, the Inspectors said, indicated that they came from very poor people who had been induced to part with all they could scrape together.

In addition to these opened letters there are coming into possession of the Inspectors about 1,000 letters a day addressed to the Burr Brothers. The Inspectors cannot open these letters, but they will be returned to the senders, so whatever money they contain will not be lost.

Efforts made yesterday by lawyers from the office of Moses H. Grossman to get bail for Sheldon C. and Eugene H. Burr and Frank H. Tobey, officers of the company, arrested on Monday, held in $10,000, were unsuccessful, and up to a late hour the accused men were still in the Tombs.

Inspector Kincaid said E. W. Preston, who had been arrested on Monday in Portland, Ore., had been traced by him through the California Consolidated Oil Company, to which Preston had gone in September, after severing his connection with Burr Brothers.

Chief Inspector Dickson admitted that the Government Inspectors were investigating the California Consolidated Oil Company, which was advertised in some of last Sunday's papers as being under the management of Admiral Robley D. Evans, ex-Controller Gilman, and others.

RAID CONTINENTAL WIRELESS.

Outside Connections of Burr Promotion Repudiate It.

Post Office Inspectors went to Newark yesterday and took charge of the local office of the Continental Wireless Telephone and Telegraph Company, at 54 Clinton Street, a promotion for which Burr Brothers were stock selling agents. Max Lowenthal, Vice President and Treasurer of the company, who was in charge of the office, said that he had only occupied his present position for about three or four weeks. He had not had an opportunity to fully examine the books of the concern and acquaint himself with the company's condition.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 22.—"The Clark Wireless Telegraph Company of Detroit is not a subsidiary company of the Continental Wireless Telegraph and Telephone Company, nor am I an officer of that company," said Thomas R. Clark of the Wireless Company at his home to-night in regard to Monday's raid in New York on the offices of Burr Brothers. Mr. Clark said the Continent al Company had taken an option on Clark Wireless stock, and that following this he had been the general manager of the company, but that on his visit to New York City last July he had resigned after an investigation. He said that it was mainly due to the information which he furnished the Government Inspectors that the raid was made.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 22.—The Massie Wireless Telegraph Company, of which Walter W. Massie of this city is the head, was never controlled by the Continental Wireless Company. Mr. Massie said that he accepted a Directorship in the Continental Company, but at the first meeting he attended, on Aug. 12, when he learned the true state of the corporation's affairs, he resigned. He said he never invested any money in the company.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 22.—Cincinnati brokers estimate that $500,000 worth of Continental Wireless Telephone and Telegraph stock is held in Cincinnati and small towns in Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky withi a radius of 100 miles.

Not Hardman Piano Factory Burned.

The report that the factory of Hardman, Peck & Co. was destroyed by fire on Monday night is incorrect. The fire was in the factory of the E. G. Harrington Company, at 635 West Forty-ninth Street, makers of the Harrington piano. The company is controlled by Hardman, Peck & Co. The factories of the Hardman piano and the Hardman autotone are still intact.

KIDNAP BOYS AND DEMAND $10,000

moved there to give their children the benefit of pure air and suburban surroundings, and nothing before has stirred up the community as has the attempt to steal little Marguerite. It was just before 1 P. M. on Friday that the attempt was made, and since then half a dozen detectives under Lieut. Murphy have searched the neighborhood for some trace of the would-be kidnappers, but without success. As a clue they have only the meagre description which Marguerite was able to give them of the man who accosted her.

According to the child she was about to enter the school after having had her luncheon at home when the stranger stopped her. He was dark, and of her own race—Italian—said Marguerite. He was about 5 feet 5 inches in height, the child thought, had a dark, flowing mustache, and wore a little blue cap. His clothing was dark, and he wore no coat.

"There is to be a party at your house," the man told her, according to the little girl. "Your aunts and your uncles will be there, and all your little cousins. You must come home at once with me."

The little girl had put her hand trustingly in that which the man held out to her, and was about to accompany him to a carriage which was drawn up to the curbstone at Fourteenth Street, and in which sat two men, when the stranger urged her to hurry, saying:

"Your father and mother will be anxious if we do not get there soon."

Then the little girl was overtaken by sudden fright and despite her youth, she realized that something was wrong, for her mother has been dead almost longer than she can remember. If the man said that her mother wanted her he could not be a friend of her father's, else he would have known, the little girl thought, and straightway she began to pull away from him.

The stranger insisted for an instant, and then as the child still held back he tried to grab her up in his arms. But just then the policeman who guards the crossing at Fifteenth Street, while the children enter or leave the school, started leisurely down Benson Avenue toward the corner where the man and the girl were struggling. Later it was learned that the policeman had had no idea that anything was wrong at the other corner, and meant merely to stretch his legs. The stranger did not know this, however, and with an exclamation of disgust he dropped the child, and sprang into the waiting carriage, which at a word from him was driven rapidly off.

Marguerite went into Miss Weyl's class in school and sat there until 3 o'clock. She was thoroughly frightened, but she said nothing to anybody until she reached her home, whither she ran as fast as her legs would take her, once school was out. Her terror got the better of her when she entered the house, and she threw herself into the arms of her sister Mary, 20 years old, and there poured out the whole tale of her experience.

Joseph Ferri, the father, is a cabinet maker at 41 and 43 Elizabeth Street, and he did not get home until after 6 o'clock. Marguerite's big brother, Joseph, Jr., a bookbinder, came home at the same time, and then the girls told them of Marguerite's adventure.

"I'll stay home from work for a while," announced the big brother. "Any one who gets Marguerite will have to deal with me."

Joseph, Sr., agreed to the plan, and then both men went to the Bath Beach Police Station to seek help. Lieut. Flynn promised it to them. He gave orders that every policeman between Marguerite's home and the school was to keep her in sight until the policeman on the next beat could assume the guardianship. Lieut. Murphy also assigned several detectives to look out for the would-be kidnappers, and the girl's brother promised that he would walk to and from school with her, keeping across the street from her and watching for any suspicious characters.

The police agreed that nothing must be said of the attempted kidnapping, but Marguerite, suddenly become the heroine of a remarkable adventure, could not keep the tale to herself. Soon every child in the school knew how some one had tried to steal Marguerite, and how she had policemen and detectives trailing after her for her own especial benefit.

It was too much for the other children. Such honor must be shared, and to share it there was but one way. That is why the whole school escorts Marguerite home each day. The kidnappers have not been seen since.

SUFFRAGETTES MOB BRITISH MINISTERS

Assault Premier Asquith Because He Says He Will Consider Their Bill.

KICK AUGUSTINE BIRRELL

Stone Houses of Grey, Churchill, and Harcourt—150 in Cells After a Pitched Battle with Police.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Prime Minister Asquith was assaulted by militant suffragettes in the precincts of the House of Commons to-day and was saved from rough handling only by the prompt arrival of a strong body of police.

One of the women hit the Premier a smart blow, and when the police carried Mr. Asquith off in a taxicab, the Suffragettes attempted to storm the Premier's residence, and later attachked Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, as he was strolling through St. James's Park to the Athenaeum Club. They swooped down upon the aged statesman, knocking his hat over his eyes and kicking him about the legs. When help came and the women were driven off, Mr. Birrell limped to his motor car, on the arms of policemen.

The rioting continued into the evening, when squads of women stoned the residences of Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary; Winston Spencer Churchill, the Home Secretary, and Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies. Sir Edward Grey's house bore the brunt of the assault.

About 150 women and several of their men supporters are in the police station to-night. Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the leader of the Suffragettes, was among those taken to jail. Her sister, Mrs. Grant, denied admittance, threw a missile through the jail window. She also was incarcerated. Miss Grace Johnson was the only American arrested. Miss Ann Martin of Nevada, who was taken to the police station on Friday and later was released, was not among those arrested to-night.

The attack on Mr. Asquit followed his announcement in the House that if he was still in power at the next session of Parliament, the Government would give facilities for the consideration of a woman's franchise bill so framed as to admit of free amendment.

This declaration, instead of placating the suffragettes, as it was intended to do, served only to inflame them with the idea that Mr. Asquith was playing with them. At a meeting at Caxton Hall Miss Christabel Pankhurst characterized the Minister's statement as wholly unsatisfactory and "nothing more nor less than an insult to the cause." The women, she shouted, considered the Premier's attitude a declaration of war, and they would answer the challenge immediately.

No sooner said than done. With a rush the women emptied the hall, and, several hundred strong, started for Downing Street. With unexpected good fortune they encountered the Prime Minister on his way from the House, and before the Premier realized the situation he was surrounded by frenzied, breathless Suffragettes. Without any preliminaries Miss Henrietta Williams struck the Government leader, at the same time crying out:

"You tax women as heavily as men, yet women are not represented in Parliament."

Shrill police whistles brought officers from all near-by quarters, and as the women struggled frantically among themselves for the privilege of getting at him, the Prime Minister was hustled into a taxicab. As the cab started off with a bound, Miss Williams made another attempt to reach its occupant, and in doing so put her militant fist through the glass of the cab window. She was pulled away, still crying, "Traitor!" and "Coward!"

The trouble, however, did not end with the escape of Mr. Asquith. Robbed of their chosen prey, a big body of women broke through the police barrier and reached Downing Street. For a considerable time pandemonium reigned in the vicinity of the Ministerial residences and Government offices.

The shrieking women, many of them armed with bamboo poles that had been used to support banners but now served as lances, fought like Amazons, desperately attacking the police and clawing and kicking to such good purpose that the police line was broken and the officers forced to retire temporarily.

Police reinforcements were hurried to the scene, and throwing themselves against the rioters, checked the advance. Women and their male sympathizers were hurled to the ground. The officers had to turn their attention to the task of dragging the excited creatures out of the fighting zone and thus save them from being trampled to death by the mob behind.

It was some time before the police succeeded in clearing Downing Street. A litter of millinery, bits of costumes, handbags, and torn banners gave evidence of the fierceness with which the field had been contested.

Ever since the reopening of Parliament delegations of militant suffragettes have picketed the approaches to the House of Commons so closely that the Prime Minister has been obliged to resort to strange devices to circumvent the petitioners. Only the other day a mob of women that tried to enter the House succeeded in forcing the reluctant police to arrest no less than 116 of the disturbers. When the whole batch was discharged at Bow Street the next morning the leniency of the court was received by the would-be prisoners with boos and hisses.

In addition to this campaign of mob violence the women members of radical election committees threatened a revolt unless the Government recognized their claims prior to the general elections.

LABOR REBUFFS ASQUITH.

Irish League, in Manifesto Denouncing Lords, Mentions American Dollar.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The political campaign is being waged on the stump and elsewhere in a fashion which suggests that the politicians have caught something of the fury of the suffragettes themselves.

Besides the rejected olive branch extended to the suffragettes, Mr. Asquith also made a move to-day intended to conciliate the rebellious laborites. The Prime Minister promised to introduce legislation with the object of neutralizing the adverse effect of the Osborne judgment, which was that labor unions could not use their funds for the payment of their representatives in Parliament.

The Government, he said, proposed to initiate legislation giving to trades unions the right to provide funds for use in Parliamentary and municipal campaigns and for the support of labor's representation, on condition that there was no compulsion upon members of the unions to contribute to such funds.

This advance also was rebuffed. The labor party met to-night and declared that the scheme suggested by the Premier was wholly unsatisfactory

The United Irish League has issued a manifesto against the Lords, calling landlordism and the House of Lords synonymous. The manifesto, which is signed by John E. Redmond and T. P. O'Connor, is a violent arraignment of the House of Lords as the only obstacle to home rule. It describes Lansdowne as "an Anglo-Irish landlord, whose family name is written deep in that coffin ship, the Lansdowne Hospital ward, and in thousands of unmarked graves where perished our people driven from the Lansdowne property in the days of the famine."

"At the door of the House of Lords," continues the manifesto, "lies mainly the guilt for all those laws for an increase in landlord power and for the rejection of all measures for tenant relief, whereby the great famine and the great exodus were the plain and direct consequences and to every Irishman of this generation appeal the voices of a million of our people who died of hunger and five millions driven to exile to dethrone the iniquitous body to which they owed their boundless suffering.

"True to its iniquitous history, the House of Lords alone to-day stands athwart the path of Irish victory. Its fall is the rise of Ireland. If this election is won, the battle for Home Rule is won."

The manifesto proceeds to quote numerous declarations of Premier Asquith and Chancellor Lloyd-George, committing the Liberal Party to the policy of Home Rule. Referring to the "dollar bogey," it says:

"No American dollar for the cause of Irish freedom; millions of American dollars for the sacred rack rent! Such is the cry of the Tory Party."

Mr. Churchill addressed a big meeting this evening, from which several men adherents of the women's cause were dragged out by the police. Mr. Churchill strongly defended the propriety of Irish-Americans contributing to the Home Rule cause. The cry of American dollars was likely to be used as a retort by the Liberals, he said, since Waldorf Astor has announced he was again the candidate of the Conservatives for Plymouth. Battersea also promised to be an interesting campaign ground, Sir John Harrington, who married the daughter of Senator McMillan, having thrown down the gauntlet as the Conservative candidate to John Burns, President of the local Government Board.

DR. SHAW URGES SELF-HELP.

Suffrage Cause Here Needs the Money It Is Proposed to Send Abroad.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the National Suffrage Association, just returned from a campaign in South Dakota, told of the conditions there yesterday at the office at headquarters, 505 Fifth Avenue, and said incidentally that she believed all the money the women suffragists of America could raise should be kept in their own country to pay their legitimate expenses.

This had reference to a subscription Mrs. John Winters Brannan, Mrs. Henry Wise Miller of New York and Mrs. Frederick Hazard of Syracuse are raising to send to the English suffragettes under Mrs. Pankhurst to show their interest in the English women's work and sympathy for the latest rebuff they have received from the English Parliament. On this point Dr. Shaw said:

"Mrs. Pankhurst was paid when she spoke in New York, Mrs. Philip Snowden is always paid, and Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, who is soon to reach New York, will also raise money by speaking. I don't begrudge them the money; it is all right, and they help us, but we don't owe them anything. They never give anything for nothing themselves; they sell even every bit of literature at their own meetings, and it is a good business.

"We are such snobs over here that when the English women come over our women get up great meetings, pay them to speak, and then fall over themselves to attend, when we have among ourselves women who are orators.

"It was the seven-foot long ballot that helped to kill the woman suffrage bill in South Dakota," said Dr. Shaw. "There were six amendments to the Constitution, of which the woman suffrage was one. But the fight was not against us. The liquor dealers wished to down one of the amendments and to prevent confusion with that seven-foot ballot they sent out word that all of the amendments should be voted down. If ours had been the only one, I think we might have won."

TOLSTOY BURIED AT SUNSET.

Body Borne by His Sons and Laid to Rest Under Poverty Oak.

TULA, Russia, Nov. 22.—Just before sunset to-day the body of Count Tolstoy was borne to the grave, which, following his written request, had been dug for it under "Poverty Oak" "in the spot where in childhood we buried a green rocking-horse." While the family and close friends of the dead man knelt beside the coffin the choirs sang the hymn "Everlasting Memory," but there was no other ceremony. Then in silence the body was lowered into the ground. Now a mound of broken earth marks the chosen resting place of the most famous of the Russians.

The special train bringing the body from Astapova arrived at Zaseika, the railway station near Yasnaya Poliania, at 8 o'clock this morning. The funeral party was met by throngs of mourning peasants, who since daylight had been wending their way thither from the surrounding countryside, and by the delegations which, throughout the night and during the early morning hours, had been arriving at Zaseika in other special trains. Students from Moscow alone occupied twenty-three coaches.

According to the Russian custom, Tolstoy's sons formed the party of bearers and bore the casket on their shoulders over the two miles separating the station from the novelist's home at Yasnaya Poliana.

The route was through a small wood, across gently sloping fields, and through the wooded park of the estate to the house. The way was lined with mourners. Peasants marched at the head of the procession carrying white banners inscribed, "Leo Mikolaivitch: The Memory of Your Goodness Will Never Fade from the Minds of Us Orphaned Peasants."

Following the peasants were two student choirs chanting memorial hymns and four carriages filled with wreaths. Then came the sons trudging slowly under the weight of the casket. The Countess and others of the family followed the bier afoot.

Arrived at the house the cortége halted and the casket was borne within and placed upon a catafalque erected in the author's favorite room. This had been emptied of its furniture and was bare except for a cherished bookcase, a portrait of Tolstoy's brother, and a bust of Buddha.

Here in the old home from which Tolstoy fled twelve days ago to seek the solitude that was to be denied him the body lay in state. The public was freely admitted to the room, and for several hours an unbroken line of peasant folk and others of less humble circumstances passed reverently before the bier. The interment beneath poverty oak came at the close of the day.

Tolstoy had often spoken of the time when he and his brothers with childish rites consigned to the earth beneath that oak, a hobby-horse, in the belief that when it was disinterred a reign of happiness would begin. The novelist often referred to the disposition of his body and in directions left specified explicity that the ceremony incident thereto should be "of the simplest, without the rites of the Orthodox Church."

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov.. 22.—Bands of singers who gathered in various cities throughout Russia to honor the memory of Tolstoy and to sing "Eternal Memory" were dispersed by the police. At Kieff a girl was trampled to death and a score of persons were wounded by the whips of the Cossacks.

DEAD AMERICAN IDENTIFIED.

A. G. Platt, Who Died on French Boat Train, Was San Francisco Accountant.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—The body of an American man who died on a steamer train on his way from Paris to Havre Saturday was identified to-day as that of Alfred G. Platt of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—Alfred G. Platt was an expert accountant, well known in this city. He left here about two months ago to visit his family, which is sojourning in France, and was on his way home when he died on the train between the French capital and Havre.

YOUNG ECKERT WEDS FATHER'S SERVANT

Son and Principal Heir Must Cut Short Honeymoon to Defend Brother's Will Contest.

FRAUD AND DECEIT ALLEGED

Older Son of Late Western Union President Says He Was Called to Father's Bedside Only When He Was Dying.

In the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, 457 West 142d Street, Miss Minnie Egan, once a servant at the Waldorf-Astoria, became the wife of Thomas T. Eckert, son and principal heir of the late Gen. Thomas T. Eckert, yesterday. For eight years preceding the death of Mr. Eckert's mother his bride was a servant in her home at West End, N. J. Since that time she has been the housekeeper in charge.

The honeymoon of the couple will be cut short, it is thought, by a will contest filed by the bridegroom's brother, James Clendenin Eckert, in which he alleges that Thomas T. Eckert exercised undue influence to be made the chief beneficiary of his father's $3,000,000 estate. He also alleges fraud and deceit. A hearing on the contest has been set for Dec. 5 and the bridegroom will be required to be present to testify.

The fact that an attachment had grown up between the new master of Heart's Content, as the Jersey home is called, and the servant of its former mistress became known to the Eckerts a month ago, when Thomas T. Eckert came to this city to be baptized into the Catholic Church.

Other members of the family objected to the marriage, especially as they had received small legacies under Gen. Eckert's will. The brother, James Clendenin Eckert, received $50,000 and the income on $100,000, which was to go to his daughter, the favorite grandchild of Gen. Eckert.

James Clendenin Eckert took steps at once, after his father's death, to contest the will. In the complaint it was asserted that advantage was taken of Gen. Eckert's extreme infirmity by his son, Thomas T. Eckert, who was his constant companion in his home, together with Miss Egan, who was his nurse, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Page, the former his secretary, who had formerly served as a telegraph operator when Gen. Eckert was President of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

It was alleged that as the will was drawn by Thomas T. Eckert's lawyer, who had never known Gen. Eckert or been in his confidence, and was witnessed by Page, the secretary, there was ample opportunity for collusion.

In filing the contest, James Clendenin Eckert sets forth that he had hastened to his father's home on hearing of his illness only to find, to his great consternation and indignation, that he was dying and could barely recognize him or his daughter, the General's favorite grandchild. He also said that his experience was similar to that of an uncle who was rebuffed by Thomas T. Eckert when he came to call, being assured that he would be notified by Thomas T. Eckert when his father was well enough to receive callers.

While Miss Egan was not mentioned in the will contest it is understood that she will be a centre about which the legal battle will be fought, along with the three other residents of Heart's Comfort, who made up the family circle at the time of the writing of the will and Gen. Eckert's death six days later.

James Clendenin Eckert, as a move in the will contest, applied for the appointment of a temporary administrator for the estate of the late Gen. Thomas T. Eckert. Surrogate Cohalan adjourned the matter until Friday.

In his petition James Clendenin Eckert sets forth that coal and real estate properties, having a rental value of more than $50,000 a year, are in the possession of his brother, and that there should be an administrator to manage properly an estate which includes a house in West Eighty-sixth Street worth $100,000, a Fifth Avenue office building worth $400,000, a West Fifty-eighth Street stable worth $100,000, with New Jersey property that could be rented for $8,000 a year and coal land that might realize $15,000 a year. He suggested that the Windsor Trust Company be named. The will contains a provision that any contesting legatee shall forfeit his share in the estate.

CUSTOMS SUIT SETBACK.

Court Releases Stock of Joseph Brooke & Co., Which Had Been Attached.

The Government's prosecution of the importing firm of Joseph Brooke & Co. of 840 Broadway for alleged undervaluation frauds in the importation of woolens received a setback yesterday when Judge Hazel in the United States Circuit Court vacated a writ of attachment on the entire stock of the firm which had been served as a basis for a $200,000 damage suit.

Frederick A. Brooke and Joseph Brooke of the firm are in Huddersfield, England, As they could not be extradited. United States Attorney Wise sought to obtain control of sufficient assets to enable him to bring a civil suit. Judge Hazel, however, holds that merely to find property of a defendant in a district does not mean finding the defendant there for the purpose of bringing suit against him.

"It is urged by the Government, however," says Judge Hazel, "that the cases are inept for the reason that they are litigations between individuals, and not, as here, a suit of the United States against a non-resident doing business in this district.

"A sufficient answer is that the court possesses no power except such as the Constitution of the United States and the acts of Congress confer, and, in the absense of a statute permitting the United States to maintain an action in this court irrespective of whether the defendant is an inhabitant of the district or is found therein, or empowering the court in an action arising from a violation of the customs laws to levy upon or seize property without personal service by warrant of attachment, it is difficult to perceive any merit in the contention, though it must be conceded that the inability of the United States to obtain relief in the courts of its creation creates an anomalous situation."

Assistant United States Attorney Whitney said yesterday that the Government would appeal from Judge Hazel's decision.

MANY POOR CHILDREN AIDED.

Aid Society Wants to Organize a Boy Scout Movement to Extend Its Work.

Further work to give poor children a start in life and rescue them from evil influences was urged in the yearly report of Secretary C. Loring Brace at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society yesterday in the Chase National Bank.

Secretary Brace recommended that a detachment of Boy Scouts be organized at the Boys' Camp, maintained by the society at Denville, N. J. The report says:

"The training of the Boy Scouts in manliness and honesty and helpfulness is more needed by the tenement house boys than others. Who will help us organize them into a detachment of the Boy Scouts? The older boys sent by an east side mission organized themselves into a gang, whose ideals were to disobey all regulations, gamble, and maltreat smaller boys. The Boy Scout movement would interest these east side boys and would bring influences to bear upon them to meet the evils of street life."

The society contemplates organizing a colony of children's farms at Pamona, in Rockland County. Each cottage is to "have chickens and all farm pets so interesting to children and so helpful in training city children to be gentle with animals. Each cottage will have its kitchen, garden, and flowers about it, and as much of the home feeling as it is possible to cultivate."

"Since the founding of the Children's Aid Society in 1853 it has rescued and placed in homes in families in the country, where many of them have been adopted, 27,701 orphans and deserted children, the records of whose welfare are kept in the central office," continued Mr. Brace. "In addition to this the society has provided situations at wages in the country for 27,451 older boys and girls, and has aided 47,302 persons, mostly children, to reach friends and employment in the West, and restored 8,964 runaways to parents—111,418 in all."

William D. Sloane, F. Delano Weeks, Archibald D. Russell, Evert Jansen Wendell, and Prof. Charles R. Richards were re-elected trustees for three years. William Church Osborn was re-elected President and C. Loring Brace Secretary.

KNAPP FLOUTS OUR RAILROAD LAWS

Head of Inter-State Commerce Commission Comes Out for Regulated Monopolies.

CAN'T FORCE COMPETITION

Government Ownership the Only Alternative for Trust Methods, He Tells Supply Men's Guests.

Speaking to the men who sell supplies and equipment to the railroads at a dinner held at the Waldorf-Astoria last night for the purpose of promoting better feeling between the public, the Government, and the common carriers, Chairman Martin A. Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission flouted the Government's present laws for the enforcement of competition between railroads, declared himself in favor of regulated railroad monopoly, and advanced as the only possible substitute the idea of Government ownership, which he said he was loath to see made inevitable by conditions which might yet arise.

Chairman Knapp departed from his prepared speech in order to voice his contempt for competitive methods. At first his arguments were listened to in surprise and silence, due to the unexpected turn they took. But later, as their full significance burst upon the large audience, it rose to its feet and cheered.

Billion in Capital Represented.

Those present at the dinner came from all parts of the country. They represented invested capital to the amount, it was announced, of $1,000,000,000, and were employers of 1,500,000 workmen upon whom 3,000,000 individuals were dependent.

They came to plead, so far as they expressed themselves in resolutions and speeches, for a temporary cessation of attempts further to regulate the railroads until capital could get its breath and assure itself that all the attractiveness had not been legislated out of railroad investments, and gather the courage to start again operations that recently have been languishing.

Mr. Knapp spoke after the railroad viewpoint had been expressed by President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio. Mr. Willard had advocated a "speak-softly" programme for the public, and a real effort to understand and assimilate its viewpoint on the part of railroads, at the same time asking for such liberties in management as would keep progress in building equipment well ahead of the demands of traffic.

"Gentlemen and members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Railroads," said Chairman Knapp on arising to speak for the Government.

The laughter over his greeting had hardly subsided when it was seen that Mr. Knapp felt very much in earnest over certain matters and was bent on expressing himself.

"The freedom of a person to move about," he said, "is at the very root of the problem of individual liberty. The roads must be kept open on equal terms to all, and the street was the foundation of the State. Now, in the midst of rapid changes the railroad has taken the place of the street.

Difficulties of Regulation.

"Things that would not be tolerated under Government ownership in the streets should not be allowed under private ownership on the railroads. Through regulation we are trying to see that no industry is overweighted by excessive charges. State regulation cannot do this because the railroad cannot be split up into divisions as the country is split into States. State regulation brings with it local prejudices which are sometimes vexatious and oppressive.

"Moreover, State regulation is likely to be based on the theory that the public alone is in need of protection, and that the railroad can take care of itself. No such regulation will succeed. The carrier has the same right to reasonable compensation as the passenger has to a safe passage, and the shipper to the movement of his goods at a fair rate. Grievous extortion and selfishness have existed on both sides. Our effort is to give judicial regulation to these forces, and hold them under proper control.

"In some of our laws we have been trying to keep alive the theory of competition. Now, until eighty years ago the civilization of the world had developed to the full of all its arts and sciences, with the horse as the fastest means of transportation. All our social life was adjusted to horse traffic.

Competition Belongs to Wagon Age.

"Competition belonged to the age of rapid transit by wagon. It does not belong to the age of steam. With the steam railroad came the labor union, the trust, great combinations of capital, and Government regulation. And they have come to stay. The fierce evils of railroad practices which we so severely condemn all had their origin in the system of unbridled competition, which it is still our policy to enforce.

"That it is a mistaken policy I am fully persuaded. For the power to compete is the power to discriminate. It is out of the question to have present the element of competition and at the same time try to regulate rates.

"The error and futility of our efforts to make stationary rates I believe has been fully demonstrated, and for this reason I am in favor of the legal sanction of railroad associations. This is the one sensible plan adapted to present conditions. Such a policy would promote the conducting of railroad transportation in a manner most beneficial to the railroads and to the public as well.

"When I contrast conditions of to-day with those of the very recent past I can see an immense advance toward sound and sane conduct, and this convinces me that Government regulation has proved to be a success."

Those Who Have Troubled the Railways.

"In the stage of experimentation there have been two classes o fpeople making trouble for us. One was the ultra conservative which did nothing and helped nobody, and the other was the ultra radical which did too much and hurt everybody.

"With the results of our efforts, you men who control the railroads and you men who manufacture their supplies are vastly more concerned than I.

"You know better than I can tell you that if Givornment regulation is voted a failure, behind that will stand Government ownership, with all its attendant revolution in our social life, its social dangers, and its deeper peril for republican institutions.

"Now you can't have a hot iron and not get burned if you put your hand on it, and you can't have a sharp knife and not get cut if you accidentally fall on the blade. And you can't obtain industrial combination without compelling many surrenders. But behind the principle of combination lies the principle of co-operation and industrial peace.

Uses for Railway Earnings.

"If our country is to grow and prosper as it ought, if its untold resources are to be developed and its swelling numbers find profitable employment, we need and must have railway earnings sufficient for three things:

"First. A return on railway investments of such amount and so well assured as to attract and secure the necessary capital—an enormous sum in the aggregate—to improve existing roads, and to construct without delay thousands of miles of new lines in fruitful districts now destitute of any means of transportation. Since it is our National policy—and long will be, I trust—to rely upon private capital and private enterprise to provide these great highways of commerce, to improve and multiply them in pace with our requirements, must we not in the larger public interest, whatever may be thought by this or that shipper, make the business of furnishing railroad transportation, which shall be up to the best standard of efficiency, convenience, and safety, so desirable to the investor that the necessary funds for betterments and extensions will be forthcoming, and so attractive as a vocation that the highest ability will be employed in its management?

"Second. The payment of liberal wages to an adequate number of competent men. This not only to insure increasing skill and reliability in a service which is all the while becoming more exacting, and on which the safety and comfort of the public constantly depend, but also because of the very great influence of railway wages upon the compensation of labor in every sphere and grade of private employment.

"Third. The betterment of existing lines so as to greatly augment their serviceableness to the public, as can in varying degree be done everywhere, without unnecessary and undesirable increase in capitalization. Every dollar borrowed to improve a road now in operation involves a permanent addition to the interest charge which the public is required to pay; the improvement from current earnings puts no lien upon the property, but rather augments its value and usefulness, and by adding to the security of the capital already invested tends to a lower rate of interest upon that capital."

Dinner to Promote Harmony.

The dinner was organized to inaugurate a policy of conciliation and good feeling between the railroads and the public. George A. Post, President of the Railway Business Association, was toastmaster, and the speakers included Mr. Knapp, John Claflin, who presented the view of higher rates of the larger retail and wholesale merchants; Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, and Thomas A. Daly, introduced as "the Dago poet."

A letter was read from John G. Shedd, President of Marshall Field & Co. of Chicago, in which he said that he believed the country never enjoys the full tide of prosperity except when railroad dividends are being freely made.

Behind the toastmaster's chair was an illuminated motto declaring that the road from apprehension to security in railroad matters led over the Conciliation route via the stations of Meditation, Tact, Reciprocity, Co-operation, and Conservatism. On the evening's souvenirs the new railroad policy toward the public was emphasized in a motto: "Temperate Talk and Sober Thought Help Business."

Mr. Claflin Speaks for the Shippers.

John Claflin, President of the H. B. Claflin Company and of the United Dry Goods Companies, in pointing out that, for economic reasons, there is little likelihood of an immediate reduction in the cost of living and that capital needs more assurances that railroads are paying investments, said:

"The railroads now have reached a point where it seems difficult for them to continue to increase their gross revenue materially without very great expenditures for betterments and for extensions. Under ordinary conditions the money to pay for such extensions and betterments could readily be had by the sale of bonds bearing a moderate rate of interest. At the present time, however, investors are asking larger returns on their capital than in the near past, and foreign investors, especially those who seek only the choicest of American securities, are inclined to be indifferent to the offerings of American railroads, because they are doubtful, in view of the recent advances in wages, whether or not the railroads now have a safe margin of profit which will enable them to pay interest on all their fixed obligations and to continue reasonable disbursements to their shareholders. It seems to me the solution of this doubt is of the utmost importance to the general prosperity of this country, and its solution may be facilitated or delayed by the attitude of the merchants of the United States in regard to the advances in freight rates which the railroads have proposed.

Prosperity Would Even Up Increase.

"As a wholesale merchant in New York the question to me is partly academic because, as a wholesaler, I pay but a small portion of the freight which is charged on merchandise shipped from New York, but as an investor in retail stores throughout the country the question lies within the scope of my personal investigation and may affect my income largely. I ask then, will it be advantageous for the average merchant outside of New York to pay some increase in freight rates to help the general situation? I think it will.

"If the railroads should now be permitted to make some such moderate advance as I have indicated and a typical merchant who now pays $25,000 per annum should pay $3,000 additional in freight and express charges, my own investigation leads me to believe that the general activity which renewed railroad buying would induce would increase the merchant's business at least 5 per cent., and perhaps as much as 10 per cent. or 15 per cent."

Want Rate Question Settled Quickly.

Preceding the dinner in the evening the Railroad Business Association held two business sessions at the Waldorf, in which the rate advances asked for were approved and a quick settlement of the controversy advised for the general good of the business interests of the country.

A. H. Mulliken, Vice President of the association, presented a report of the Executive Committee on freight rates, in which it was held that delay in deciding the present controversy might mean serious distress to railway supply industries which employ 1,500,000 persons, and have invested capital amounting to $1,000,000,000.

"The fact stares us in the face," the report said, "that few of us have booked any considerable orders in several months, and this dearth of orders, if continued, will see factories shutting down and men thrown out of work. Unless there is a change this immense aggregation sustaining many great industrial communities will be where it was two years ago, with all the consequent ramifications of privation and suffering."

The association re-elected as officers George A. Post, President; H. H. Westinghouse, W. H. Marshall, E. S. S. Keith, A. H. Mulliken, O. P. Letchworth, and A. M. Kitteredge Vice Presidents, and Charles A. Moore Treasurer.

FEAR MORGAN MOVE AT RATE HEARING

Grand Rapids Furniture Men Admit Appearing at Instance of G. W. Perkins.

FIGHT DISCRIMINATION ONLY

Profess Readiness to Accept Higher Rates if These Rates Apply Generally to the Whole Country.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The continuation of the hearings before the Inter-State Commerce Commission on behalf of shippers who object to increases proposed by the railroads was marked by some excitement when to-day, in response to questions by Frank Lyon, counsel for the commission, two witnesses for the Grand Rapids (Mich.) furniture manufacturers said that they were present because of a suggestion from George W. Perkins of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The Morgan interests are believed to dominate an immense proportion of the railways of the country. The gist of the furniture men's testimony was that while they opposed the present Eastern trunk line rate advance plan they would have no complaint to make if the increases proposed were not confined to one section or otherwise discriminative.

W. H. Gay, testifying for the furniture men of Grand Rapids, said that they objected to the proposed increase of rates because it did not bear alike on them and their competitors in the matter of shipping lumber into the mills at Grand Rapids nor upon the manufactured product to all points West, the output of Chicago being charged under classifications and from Grand Rapids under commodity ratings. He was followed by Stewart Foote, whose testimony went into details of the various classes of goods and the territory into which they could send them on a competitive basis according to the freights charged.

When Mr. Foote had concluded Mr. Lyon suddenly asked him if any one in particular had suggested his coming before the commission, and if, in fact, Mr. Pekrins had not told him to come. Mr. Foote admitted that it was at Mr. Perkins's suggestion, but it was given to Mr. Gay and not to him. Mr. Gay then explained that about a month ago he met Mr. Perkins accidentally in Washington and the conversation turned to these hearings. Mr. Perkins declared that the hearings had been entirely one-sided; that the railroads had told their side of the situation while the consumer and the manufacturer had not been heard, and he did not like it.

Mr. Perkins also, according to Mr. Gay, said that he thought it was up to the manufacturers to come on and explain their side. In reply to questions Mr. Gay said that Mr. Perkins did not single out any one industry. He said he did not know that Mr. Perkins was interested in any furniture matters.

"Is he interested in the consumer?" asked Attorney Brandeis.

"I suppose he is a consumer himself," replied Mr. Gay.

"Did Mr. Perkins suggest that the consumer ought to be heard from?" asked Attorney Lyon.

At this point Acting Chairman Clements sugested that the hearing had gone far enough in discussing Mr. Perkins.

E. B. Pritchard of the Macy Bookcase Company explained how Grand Rapids, whose furniture industry was now paying $1,250,000 to the railroads for freight, would have tributary territory restricted seriously by the advancement in rates proposed and be forced to give over to competitive points like Cincinnati, Pittsburg, and Chicago a large slice of her present patronage.

When Mr. Lyon asked this witness if he, too, had been urged by Mr. Perkins to appear, he said that he had heard of Mr. Perkins's suggestion, but it was at the request of the Grand Rapids Board of Trade that he had come to testify. He said that he was opposed to the increase unless it was equal on all competing in his line, and then he would not care how much the rates were put up.

C. F. Sweet, a lumber manufacturer, testified as to the Far Southern trade.

"Price sells lumber," said Mr. Sweet, "and a two-cent increase in rates means from 50 cents to $1 increase in the selling price per thousand feet. The proposed increase does not add a cent to the cost of shipping lumber from Pittsburg, Chicago, or from Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, to the West, and Grand Rapids must compete with all these points and sections."

It was agreed to hear Gen. Crozier, Chief of Ordnance, and to-morrow and Friday the hearings will be continued.

ALL SCOFF AT BRANDEIS.

Officials Say Railroads Are Economically Managed.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Officials of the great railway systems of the country differ with Louis T. Brandeis's opinion that waste in the operation of the lines and not changes in economic conditions are responsible for the increases in the expenses of the transportation companies. In the hearings before the Inter-State Commerce Commission in the freight rate increase cases Mr. Brandeis, who is counsel for the Eastern shippers, said yesterday that the application of more scientific management would result in the saving of more than $1,000,000 a day in the transportation business of the country.

The wiping out of this $375,000,000 a year loss, he said, would take away the need of raising the freight rates now declared by the railroad men to be the only way to prevent their lines from going bankrupt, and would prevent the shippers—and ultimately the consumers—from paying the extra cost of $75,000,000 a year, which the increase proposed on rates would assess against them.

The Chicago Tribune telegraphed to the Presidents and general managers of most of the large railway systems asking their opinions upon the charges made by Mr. Brandeis. Most of them in reply said Brandeis was entirely wrong in the stand he had taken; that the railways, instead of conducting their business in a lax manner, used the most scientific and highly developed methods; that all waste was prevented, and that the increased freight rates were necessary to meet changed conditions, including the higher cost of supplies and the higher wages paid to employes.

Among the replies received was this for T. P. Shonts, President of the Chicago & Alton:

> Notwithstanding, the railroads have expended hundreds of millions of dollars in original construction and in subsequent reconstruction, they have handled the growing business of this country while all this improvement work was being done, more economically, more promptly, and more reliably than anywhere else in the world.
>
> On the other hand, rates have been diminishing, until now they are one-half to one-third of the transportation rates in European countries, while rates of wages in America have been constantly increasing, until they are now two or three times the rate of pay in European countries, and I can conceive of no greater test than this of the efficiency of the railroad management in this country.

L. W. Hill, President of the Great Northern Railroad, said:

> The largest waste of the present day appears in the reckless statements by prejudiced and uninformed persons.
>
> The American railways are ably and economically managed. Their managers have studied problems of economic operation. They have achieved results, notwithstanding a much higher labor cost, which have won the admiration of the countries of Europe and have given the public the lowest rates and best service in the world.
>
> However wide the knowledge of Mr. Brandeis may be in other fields, no one has ever heard him mentioned as possessing a single qualification to entitle him to a respectful hearing as a practical railroad man. If his intemperate utterance contained a modicum of fact, and if he could really show how to save his $1,000,000 a day, he might name his own price for his services to any American railroad.

T. D. Underwood, President of the Erie, says:

> Mr. Brandeis's assertion is more or less an advertisement for him, but it is not reconcilable with the facts. His comparisons were faulty; they gave as a guide for the railways the costs in other branches of business carried on in well-defined premises, under constant supervision, doing one thing. Just as sure as practice makes perfect that course will reduce expenses.
>
> The operating expenses of a railroad and the keeping of its equipment in repair, which is an entirely different thing, is carried on with a large force of employes scattered over large areas. Necessarily they are, at times, to some extent, left to their own devices, with the attendant expenses.
>
> Conducting a railway and repairing its equipment involves constant renewals and repairs, both to new and old material, widely varying, and so far no one has been able to make a cost sheet, so called, as the manufacturer of one or more articles does with good effect.

L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson, says:

> I do not believe the suggestions put forward by Mr. Brandeis are likely to be of value. The railroad officers have spent and are spending untiring efforts in evolving and applying unit tests of efficiency. The results—and they will compare favorably with other lines of business activity—are that the capital investment involved in the movement of a unit of traffic has fallen since 1882 from 12.08 of a cent to 5.75 of a cent, and the charge to the public has been reduced from 1½ cents to a shade less than 1 cent.
>
> I see no reason why the tendency, though perhaps not the rate of progress, should not be continued, but, so far as it is the result of intelligent effort and capital investment, it would seem that the results should primarily belong to the shareholders rather than the jobber.

WANTS TO RAISE GAS RATE.

Brooklyn Borough Gas Co. Finds No Profit in $1 a Thousand Feet.

Another Brooklyn gas company yesterday wrote asking the Public Service Commission to revise its rates. The first time it was a company which serves the district in the vicinity of Rockaway Park, whose consumers complained that the rates were too high. This time it is the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company, which complains that the rate of $1 per thousand cubic feet fixed by the Legislature for its sale of gas in the Thirty-first Ward (Coney Island) is too low and does not allow a fair return on its property.

The company asks the commission to make a physical examination of its property and an examination of its financial condition with a view to determining this question, and offers to abide by the decision of the commission.

EXPECTS CABLE COMBINATION

Commercial Cable Official Says That Concern Will Be Trust's Only Rival.

A TIMES reporter having shown George Clapperton, Vice President of the Commercial Cable Company, the statement of Nov. 20 by Mr. Hall of the Western Union and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, to the effect that Mr. Hall was not engaged in combining the English cable companies in opposition to the Commercial Cable Company, and that the intent of the Western Union and of the English cable companies was to conduct a competitive cable business, Mr. Clapperton said:

"I presume he means that when his combination is completed it will have no competition, except that of the Commercial Cable Company, because that is certainly what they intend to bring about. The following extract from The London Standard of Oct. 26 states the facts:

> A new movement is in progress toward the consolidation of the different cable companies into one great trust. Before Christmas the Chairman of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company will again visit England, and the deal will probably be completed.

"As recently as Nov. 4, The Electrical Review, a leading electrical journal of Great Britain, spoke as follows in regard to this proposed combine:

> Latest rumors speak of a much more imposing scheme than that first promulgated by way of agreement between the Anglo-American Telegraph Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Two or three other concerns are named as likely to make parties to the arrangement.

"In reply to Mr. Hall's prediction that our new five-letter cable reduction plan will not be put into operation, I have to say that it will be put into operation within thirty days after the European Governments, which own the connecting land lines, have agreed to handle the business on that new basis."

CALLIER, THE ARTIST, WAS TRUNK VICTIM

Police Positive of It and Believe His Friend Lewis May Be Still in This City.

SEEN HERE FOUR YEARS AGO

Witnesses Say He Reported in 1902 That His Artist Friend Had Returned to France.

The police proved beyond doubt yesterday that the skeleton of the man found in a hermetically sealed trunk in the basement of the home of Philip Meagher at 450 West Fifty-fourth Street last Thursday is not that of William Lewis, the owner of the trunk, who left it with the Meaghers in 1902.

It was also pretty well established that the trunk victim is Albert C. Callier, a Frenchman, who made a living by painting on china and doing other art work and previous to 1902 roomed for some time with Lewis. Working on this theory, the police are making efforts to find Lewis. His present whereabouts is the only element of mystery left in the peculiar case.

People who have seen and talked with Lewis as late as 1906 lead the police to believe that he is still in the city. One of these is Mrs. Mary Kenny, who lives at 303 West 116th Street, and with whom both Lewis and Callier roomed. Lewis returned there after having dropped out of sight for a year or more on Feb. 13, 1906, and borrowed $5 from Mrs. Kenny. It was the last she saw of him.

Lewis, it was also established, had a dental job performed by Miss Carra Ulman, a dentist at 318 West 116th Street, on May 4, 1899. Miss Ulman sold out her business about three years ago to Dr. G. C. Rathfelder, but the records of her transactions have been kept by Rathfelder. They show that Lewis, who was then living at 140 West Sixty-third Street, bought a full set of upper false teeth and a partial set of lower false teeth. Miss Ulman also fitted him with twelve gold fillings, one gold crown, and a gold facing.

Had Callier's Opera Glasses.

Moreover, it was learned that Lewis during his courtship of Miss Ellen Enright, the nurse to whom he was engaged to be married, had in his possession some of the belongings of Callier. One of these was a valuable pair of French opera glasses. Miss Enright said last night that Lewis had displayed these one night while they were at a theatre, and when she asked him about them he replied that they belonged to Callier, who, he said, had given them to him as security for money borrowed from him.

"Like all artists," she says Lewis told her, "he was sometimes hard up."

This statement establishes the fact that Callier owed Lewis money. Miss Enright says she met Lewis less than three years before their intended marriage, in 1905. Callier was last seen by friends here in 1902. This would mean that the glasses were in Lewis's possession after his disappearance. Miss Enright does not know how large an amount was involved, but the fact that Callier gave security for the loan seems to indicate that they were not on terms of such intimacy as has been described.

Although he never mentioned Callier except as a friend he had known in the past, Miss Enright says Lewis never told her there was anything mysterious about his disappearance.

"If Lewis ever harmed anybody," she said, "I should think Callier would have been the most unlikely person. He always spoke of him as a valued friend."

For the first time yesterday Miss Enright admitted some doubts about the man she had intended to marry. Up to that time she had defended him stoutly on every point that could be brought up against him, and repeatedly declared she could not be convinced he was anything but an innocent victim in the whole affair. She suggested yesterday that in view of the facts developed it was lucky she had not married him.

Thinks It Was Lewis's Body.

Later she harked back again to her old view with the remark that she could not believe Lewis as she knew him would have committed murder, and said that in her opinion either his was the body in the trunk or it would prove he had been prevented from marrying her by some other accident. She added that if it could be proved that Lewis was the man who had lived at the Meaghers, she would be willing to believe that in deliberately deceiving and humiliating her he had proved himself equal to any crime.

Miss Enright said that her Chicago brother-in-law, who was active in the search for Lewis after he failed to put in an appearance the night he was to have married her, was now in a hospital suffering a second paralytic stroke, and that they might hear of his death any time. She declined to disclose his whereabouts.

Asked what she thought of the published statement to the effect that Mrs. Kenny had seen Lewis subsequent to his disappearance before the wedding and he had laughed and said "forget it" when she asked why he had deserted Miss Enright, she said she knew Mrs. Kenny and did not believe that she had made the statement credited to her. This was because an entirely different story had been told to her by Mrs. Kenny.

The jaws of the skeleton found in the trunk had all the teeth intact, with the exception of one, which was missing and one that had been capped with gold. This fact alone, according to the police, is proof positive that the skeleton is not that of Lewis.

Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn's sleuths moved slowly in the case yesterday. The first information of a definite character regarding Callier, about whose existence there had been little more than rumor, was furnished by Mrs. Kenny. She has lived for fifteen years at the 116th Street address with her husband, John Kenny, a veteran of the civil war.

Mrs. Kenny's Story.

This is Mrs. Kenny's story:

"Albert C. Callier came to board with us either late in 1899 or early in 1900, having answered an advertisement of mine in the papers. As I remember him he was about 5 feet 7 inches in height, of slight build, and had light hair and a small light mustache. He said he was 35 years old. His business was that of decorating china. He painted pictures, too, but that was more of a hobby with him than anything else. On my twenty-fifth wedding anniversary he gave me several hand-decorated plates, and these I still have. He also gave me his photograph on the back of which he wrote his name and the date, Feb. 3, 1900.

"Callier stayed with us until the latter part of 1901. He always had plenty of money, dressed nicely, and was fond of the theatre and opera. He went to the opera regularly, about twice a week, and seemed to be cultured. He received letters regularly from France, and had few companions. In fact about the only friend he seemed to care for was Lewis, who called on him frequently, and they often went out together. He never told me how he met Lewis and I never asked. One day in December, 1899, Callier received a letter from France, which seemed to break him all up. He acted hysterically for a time and then confided to me that his brother and an aunt had died in France. Once he told me that he expected to receive considerable money from his family estate. He said he thought he would have to go to France, and that he was glad to do so, anyway, as the trip might do him good. One day he moved from my place. I didn't ask him where he was going. He left behind a parrot.

"Lewis dropped in a few times after that. He was there once about six months after Callier left and I asked him where Callier had gone, as I wanted to return the parrot to him. Lewis came back in a few days and said that Callier was living at the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn, and that he had called to get the parrot for him. He took the bird away and came back again in the latter part of 1903, when he said he wanted to board with us.

"I agreed to take him as he had been Callier's friend and because he seemed to be a nice young man. He stayed with us until the Fall of 1904. He did not bring any trunk with him, and I thought it peculiar. When I asked him about it he said he had left it at the place where he had been living in West Sixty-third Street, as he had a place as registry clerk in that district and didn't want to lose it.

He brought a suit case and a lot of books. In fact, during all the time he lived with us he frequently brought home books. They seemed to be new and richly bound. He told me that he worked as collector for an installment store in Brooklyn.

He Was a Politician.

"He had little to say about his friends or relatives. Once he told me that he had a friend living in Newburg who was an old German professor. So far as I know he never visited him. He often talked about him, however. In 1904 he left us saying he was going to live in the district that took in the John J. Dooley Club at 125th Street and Eighth Avenue, so that he could work to help his political friends. I understood at that time that he went to live with a Mrs. Ashton at Manhattan Avenue and 124th Street.

"I didn't see Lewis again until Feb. 13, 1906. I am sure of the date because Lincoln's birthday fell on a Sunday that year and it was celebrated on Monday, the 13th. On the afternoon of that day Lewis came into the house. I was surprised to see him, especially as I had read in the papers that he had disappeared on the day he was to have married Miss Enright. He said to me: 'Will you let me have $5? I have a lot of friends across the street who are buying drinks and I want to buy some, too.' I lent him the money, giving him a five-dollar gold piece. Just as he was leaving I said to him: 'You are a great fellow. Everybody has been talking about you. They say you ran away from your girl. What did you do that for?'

"'Is that what they say?' he asked, laughing, and started to go. When I asked him what had happened to him he said: 'Oh, nothing. Never mind about that. Just forget it.' Then he went out laughing and I never saw him again. I cannot believe that he would commit murder. He always had plenty of money and was very mild-mannered and inoffensive."

Kenny corroborated what his wife said, adding that both he and Lewis knew a ticket chopper employed on the Ninth Avenue elevated road named Mulligan, and that Mulligan had often asked him about Lewis, but he could never tell where the latter had gone.

In a Leadership Fight.

Lewis left behind many traces of his residence in Harlem prior to 1905, when he went to live with the Meaghers. He took a prominent part in the fight for district leader which John J. Dooley and John F. McAvoy were waging in 1904 for control in the Twenty-third Assembly District. Dooley's friends had established a political club known as the United Democratic Association, or the John J. Dooley Association, which met over the saloon of Michael O'Connor at 125th Street and Lenox Avenue.

O'Connor was secretary of the association, and Lewis served on entertainment committees. The club did active work in the Fall of 1904, and at one time there were about 2,100 members on the club list. It was while Lewis was active there that he met Miss Enright, who ran a registry for nurses at 8 West 125th Street. O'Connor introduced Lewis to Miss Enright and the two fell in love. They were to have been married on Jan. 11, 1905.

A short time before the marriage was to have taken place, and when Peter Talty, the best man, was dressing, a messenger brought a note to him. It was signed by Lewis, and stated that the wedding had been indefinitely postponed. That was the last any of Lewis's friends in Harlem heard of him. All of them, however, remember him distinctly, and also remember hearing him speak of Callier.

"Early in 1902 I remember Lewis bringing a friend to my saloon," said O'Connor. "I also recollect faintly that Lewis spoke of this friend as an artist. Lewis often showed me paintings and hand-decorated china which, he said, his friend had done. Often he tried to sell these goods. He was an inoffensive sort of a fellow, who made plenty of friends and was very entertaining. He met Miss Enright at one of the club's entertainments, and the two fell in love at first sight."

Another member of the Dooley Club who knew Lewis well is William C. Hornum, a Superintendent of construction for the Edison Company.

"If Lewis ever committed this murder I don't think you will find him alive," said Hornum. "He was a man of very sensitive nature, and he would commit suicide rather than have the worry of such a murder on his mind."

Tracing Lewis's Movements.

Lewis's movements from about 1899 until 1906, when he was last seen, are pretty well known to the police. If he murdered his friend, Callier, and packed the body in the zinc-lined trunk, the police say, it must have been when he was boarding with Mrs. Julia Alexander at 140 West Sixty-third Street. Lewis occupied a room there from 1899 until the Fall of 1902. Boarding at the same place were Policeman John H. Cook, who is attached to the Department of Health, and his family, and Mrs. J. J. Loughlin and her family.

After he had lived in the house several months he introduced a friend named Albert C. Callier, who was known as a French artist. Lewis and Callier were on the most friendly terms, and the occupants of the house regarded them as inseparable companions. Once Mrs. Cooke spoke of having her wash boiler repaired and Lewis undertook the job. He did it as well as an expert mechanic, and the zinc lining he put in resembled the zinc lining of the trunk which contained the gruesome remains found by Mr. Meagher. On June 1, 1902, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Cook, and Mrs. Loughlin went to Long Beach, where they rented a bungalow to spend June and July, leaving Lewis and Callier to take care of the house. This would have furnished Lewis an excellent opportunity to have killed Callier if he did so, the police think. When Mrs. Alexander returned in July she asked Lewis where his friend was.

"He has gone back to France," Lewis is said to have replied. It was noticed that Lewis's disposition changed somewhat after that. From a lively, entertaining companion he became morose and sullen. He went to the theatre often and neglected his personal appearance. Mrs. Alexander now lives across the street from her former residence at 163 West Sixty-third Street. She informed the police of what she knew about Lewis and Callier, and has refused to talk since. At her home yesterday her daughter said she had left the city. There was a rumor that Mrs. Alexander, before going to Long Beach, had caught Lewis and Callier fighting one day and separated them, but this could not be confirmed.

Leaving the Alexander apartments, Lewis went in the Summer of 1902 to live with Mr. and Mrs. Meagher, taking with him the trunk in which the body was later found. He told Meagher that it contained paintings and plaster casts which belonged to an artist friend. The trunk was stored in the cellar. Leaving the Meagher residence, Lewis went to live at the home of Mrs. Kenny. From there he roomed for a time with a family named Spech at 124th Street and Manhattan Avenue. This was after he attempted to rent a room from Mrs. Ashton at the same address.

Coroner Winterbottom and Coroners' Physician Lehane had a long talk yesterday with Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn. When they left the Coroner said it had been established beyond a doubt that the body found in the trunk was not that of Lewis, but that it fitted descriptions of Callier. Assistant District Attorney Rubin had a talk with Prof. John H. Larkin of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the afternoon, and as a result the trunk and its contents will be removed to the college to-day. There will be a microscopical and chemical analysis to find out if poison was used. The trunk will also be examined to determine if acid was thrown on the body after it was put inside. The order for the removal of the trunk and contents from the Morgue was procured from Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

LEWIS GOT HER MONEY.

Aged Aunt Says the Police Forced Him to Return It to Her.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 22.—It is believed here that William Lewis, wanted by the New York police in the trunk murder mystery, is a nephew of Mrs. Eliza Brennan of Prospect Place, this city, who, fourteen years ago, tried to make away with $400 belonging to his aunt and was prevented by the interference of the police.

Mrs. Brennan, an aged, penniless widow, dependent on the town and in feeble health, said to-night that her nephew, William Lewis, had frequently visited her up to the death of her husband, and after his death came here and induced her to draw from the bank the insurance money she had received on her husband's life.

He was a carver in a restaurant in New York, and got the money from her by a promise to take her to New York, where he was to start a restaurant. He was arrested when about to take a train for New York, but was later released when he returned her money. He took her wedding ring, however, she said, and she has never seen or heard of him since that time.

Mrs. Brennan says her nephew was a son of her brother Michael, who died in Ireland some years ago. He was about 21 when she last saw him, and wasn't considered trustworthy.

SOCIETY GAMBLING CASE ENDS

Grand Jury Refuses to Indict Narragansett Pier Club Vice President.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 22.—The Washington County Grand Jury to-day failed to find indictments against William E. Arnold of New York, accused of maintaining a gambling nuisance at Narragansett Pier.

Dr. Arnold, who was Vice President of the Narragansett Club, was arrested by Constable John G. Cross last Summer, following the raid made by Cross and his deputies on the club, in which, it was alleged, about forty prominent society Summer residents were gambling at the time.

The constable also arrested Police Chief James D. Caswell for malfeasance in office, and served summons on Philip S. P. Randolph, Robert E. Strawbridge, and Richard M. Bohlen, all of Philadelphia, as witnesses.

James S. Y. Ivins of New York, one of Cross's deputies in the raid, and a son of William M. Ivins; Dr. Charles Hitchcock of New York, and H. Ladd Walford of Providence, appeared before the Grand Jury.

It was generally understood that the jury would not indict Dr. Arnold. The Attorney General may bring the cases up again before the next Grand Jury in February.

69 INDICTMENTS RETURNED IN QUEENS

City Officials and Others Charged with Perjury and Grand Larceny.

NO ARRESTS TILL TO-DAY

Court Received Findings Too Late for Action Yesterday—Those "Higher Up" to be Indicted Later.

Sixty-nine indictments were handed to Justice Isaac M. Kapper, in the Queens County Supreme Court, in Long Island City, yesterday, by the Grand Jury which has been investigating graft in that county since last October under the direction of Special Deputy Attorney General Arthur C. Train. A crowd hung around the Court House most of the day, waiting to learn who had been indicted.

Justice Kapper charged the October Grand Jury at the time the investigation was begun, and in order to receive its findings yesterday he was compelled to leave his court in Brooklyn and go to Long Island City, where he arrived late in the afternoon. It was decided not to make arrests until this morning, and in consequence the names of those mentioned in the indictments were not made public. Most of the indictments are for grand larceny, and are directed against the men who collected pay for "tin horses and carts" which appeared on the city pay rolls, though they did no work. Several persons who were indicted before are said to have been reindicted.

Soon after the indictments were returned, Joseph B. Nelson, ex-Chief Clerk in the Department of Sewers in Queens, who had charge of a fund for the Gresser campaign alleged to have been collected from among city employes, appeared with William L. Woodill as his bondsman. Mr. Nelson said he understood he had been indicted and wanted to give bonds. Mr. Train took him before Justice Jaycox, who was holding court in Part I., and after a consultation Mr. Nelson and his bondsman were told to come around this morning, when it is expected the entire batch named in the indictments will be arraigned.

Mr. Train, Foreman R. E. Holcomb, and the members of the Grand Jury were ready when Justice Kapper entered Part II. of the Supreme Court, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. In handing up the indictments Mr. Train called attention to seven indictments, which were in a bundle by themselves, requesting that a note be made to the effect that they were received subsequent to the batch of sixty-two indictments which were in a bundle by themselves. Justice Kapper, addressing the Grand Jury, then said:

"I understand that it is your wish that you may continue. It is a commendable service, that is appreciated by the court and by the community."

He then suggested that the Grand Jury continue until Tuesday, Dec. 6. Foreman Holcomb said the Grand Jury thought it would take until Dec. 20 to finish its work. That date was therefore set.

It was said after the proceedings were adjourned that the men "higher up" were not among those indicted. It was said that the indictments charged grand larceny, petit larceny, forgery, perjury, tampering with the city time sheets and pay rolls, and that certain public employes had received gratuities from contractors and others getting work from the city. A presentment which Mr. Train had drawn up was not presented to the court. In speaking of the conditions he had unearthed so far in the matter of official corruption, Mr. Train said:

"The evidence I have examined thus far discloses that various officials of the Borough of Queens have administered their offices rather for the purpose of repaying political debts and enriching the pockets of favored individuals than in the interests of the taxpayers. The public funds have been wasted, and in some cases deliberately stolen; public property has been turned over to the use of private individuals; employes of the city have been employed upon private work, and where public work has been done by contractors there has often been no inspection thereof by the city whatsoever. Bills presented for such work have been certified without proper examination or investigation, and the borough has been mulcted by contractors and others having personal or political influence.

"Dead men and dead horses or nonexistent men and horses have had places upon the city pay roll, and some one has collected the money for their imaginary service. This has been possible only with the connivance of certain officials. Private sewers have been built by city employes under orders of city officials for churches whose membership contain a large number of voters.

"Persons drawing pay as court attendants have proved to be, in fact, railroad conductors or employes elsewhere, receiving money from both the city and private corporations, without giving any service to the city whatsoever.

"Money deposited by private persons to reimburse the city for the cost of inspection of private work has been handed around as prize money to whoever was fortunate enough to be temporarily in favor. Forgeries of pay rolls, time sheets, Inspectors' reports, false affidavits, and certifications have been frequent."

It is understood that yesterday's indictments are preliminary to the indictment of those responsible for this wholesale condition of corruption as unearthed by Mr. Train.

Are You Interested in Children?

The Five Points House of Industry for the Care and Education of Homeless Children is an honored institution with a history of sixty years' service. 489 little waifs were cared for temporarily last year, the children of poor widows or parents helpless from sickness or misfortune.

These children, formerly housed in the city, are now maintained in small groups in the country under family conditions which make for their health and happiness.

FUNDS ARE SOLICITED to meet the greater cost of this plan over the old conditions and also for the CHILDREN'S THANKSGIVING and to provide them with warm clothing and shoes for the winter. We urgently ask for contributions to be sent to the Treasurer at the office, 442 West 23d Street.

TOM SAWYER

A Book to Read and to Give

New Holiday Edition of Mark Twain's Great Book

The demand for a genuinely fine edition of "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" has steadily increased until now the publishers believe such a book will meet with a welcome wide enough to justify the outlay. That the pictures might have accuracy and atmosphere, the artist, Worth Brehm, went to Missouri and spent some time in the actual localities. He has made sixteen drawings of more than ordinary interest. The book has been made throughout with every care for painstaking workmanship—from entirely new plates.

SAYS SPECULATORS BUILT MOST OF CITY

Mr. Stabler Tells How They Can Borrow Lots and Get Loans to Put Buildings on Them.

LIFE COMPANIES GIVE AID

And It All Turns Out Well in the End Because New York Keeps Growing Up to Its Prospects.

The big part which life insurance companies have in New York's building operations was described last night at the Aldine Association room by Controller Walter Stabler of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company before a gathering of three hundred real estate men, members of the Business Science Club.

Almost all the present building operations in this city is being done by "speculative builders," according to Controller Stabler. The chief capital of these speculative builders is their faith in the city's inevitably increasing real estate values, and they finance their building operations by borrowing on mortgage from "lot operators," financial institutions, and life insurance companies. The mortgages on practically all the big buildings are held by the life inurance companies because, in Controller Stabler's own language, "the life insurance companies are the only people who have the money."

After Controller Stabler had finished speaking Joseph P. Day, the real estate man and former President of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, jumped up from his seat at the head table and told the diners that it had been "Mr. Stabler's own company which had been the real estate market's mainstay during the panic of 1907."

"The mortgages which were recorded in Manhattan and the Bronx during 1909 were 16,601 in number, and they amounted to $365,000,000," said Controller Stabler. "The mortgages in Brooklyn, that year, amounted to $104,000,000. That means that $469,000,000 was loaned in the three boroughs on mortgage during that year. The amount of new money which is being invested in this city every year is very large.

"Real estate development in this city is different from that of any other city in the world. It is conducted by a class of persons known as 'speculative builders.' There are more of these speculative builders in this city than in any other. They buy lots and build houses on them by means of mortgages for the purpose of selling them. They are a type which never has much money. They buy the lot from another class of business man known as a 'lot operator.'

"Lot operators are usually men of considerable means, who have bought their lots for cash. These lot operators then sell their lots to the speculative builders at an advance price, but for little or no cash payment. They take a mortgage on the lot, and lend the speculative builder money to erect the building. When the building is completed the speculative builder raises a permanent loan of from 3 to 5 years on the house and lot through the title companies or other financial institutions at a fair rate of interest. With the money raised in this way the speculative builder pays the lot operator off.

"Very recently building loan men have entered the real estate field here, and speculative builders have had to have a little more money. The building loan associations lend the speculative builder enough to complete the building, but charge him from 2½ to 5 per cent. interest. This is more expensive to the speculative builder.

"When the speculative builders get loans from my company the interest charged is generally 6 per cent., and includes a mortgage on the land. We insist on having a first mortgage, and all the plans and specifications of the speculative builder's building have to be submitted to our architect. Our architect examines them and makes suggestions, and he and his Inspectors keep inspecting the building in every stage of its construction.

"New York is the most mortgaged city in the world. New York builders and real estate men have more nerve than those of other cities. They have supreme confidence in New York City real estate values, and to develop it use other people's money at low rates.

"Savings banks, by law, can lend only 50 per cent. of the appraised value of the property. Insurance companies can lend two-thirds of the appraised value and estates 60 per cent. of the appraised value. Building loan associations lend from 80 to 90 per cent. on the appraised value. The building loan associations have enabled many people of small means to own their own homes. In this city, however, building operations are so costly that the loans have to be made by the strong corporations. The large loans are almost always made by the insurance companies.

"According to the plans filed with the Building Department, the buildings built in Manhattan and the Bronx in 1909 were valued at $164,000,000, and those built in Brooklyn were valued at $56,000,000. All this represented borrowed money except in some cases the equity in the ground. During the last six months money has been 'tight' for real estate. When money for real estate once gets tight it tends to remain so, and I believe that the present tightness will last for some time. In the Autumn of 1908, a year and a half after the panic, money loosened up for real estate because no new ventures were being started and there was considerable idle money to invest."

Mr. Day told his fellow-real estate men how Shanley Brothers had been induced to pay $95,000 for the property at 1,563 Broadway, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets.

"It was at an auction I was conducting in 1903," said Mr. Day. "The bidding had stopped at $50,000 and I pointed my finger at Mr. Shanley and told him that he knew the property was worth more than that because he had watched the real estate situation around Times Square so long. A representative of Judge Dugro then carried the bidding up to $96,000, and Mr. Shanley bid $500 more."

Hoffman House Receiver to Continue.

Frederick C. McLoughlin, receiver for the Hoffman House, Broadway and Twenty-fifth Street, has obtained leave from Judge Hough to continue business for twenty days. Since the petition was filed the business has been carried on without any loss. The supplies on hand are $15,000, accounts receivable $27,000, of which $12,000 to $15,000 are collectible, and the assets include the equity on the contents of the hotel, subject to an alleged chattel mortgage of $150,000. The unsecured liabilities are estimated at $400,000. Mr. McLoughlin hopes to get a tenant to take over the business as a going concern.

FOSS TO MAKE HARD FIGHT.

Cancels All Outside Engagements in Order to Oppose Lodge.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Governor-elect Eugene N. Foss announced to-day that he had cancelled all engagements outside the State in order to devote his energies to an aggressive campaign against the re-election of Senator Lodge. In his downtown business office he faced a growing pile of letters and telegrams from both within and without the State, many of them praising his attitude against Mr. Lodge, and a few bitterly opposing it. Mr. Foss denied that he was a candidate for the Senatorship, but said that he would support Mr. Lodge if the Senator would subscribe to his platform.

Senator Lodge's secretaries were engaged to-day in ascertaining the sentiment of the new members of the Legislature. Senator W. Murray Crane came down from Dalton for a conference with the senior Senator. Neither would make any statement.

Congressman Butler Ames, the Republican insurgent candidate, is continuing his campaign against Senator Lodge.

Speaker Joseph Walker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, to-night issued a statement protesting against the proposed activity of Mr. Foss in opposition to Senator Lodge.

"As a member of the House of Representatives I resent the announcement of the Governor-elect as an unwarranted interference by the Executive with the legislative branch of the Government," he said. He added that his statement was issued without suggestion from Senator Lodge.

R. J. COLLIER TESTIFIES.

Tells in Magazine's Libel Suit Why He Excluded Postum Advertising.

Robert J. Collier, owner of Collier's Weekly, was called to the stand yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Brady as the first witness in the libel suit he has brought against the Postum Cereal Company. The action is based on a published statement of the company to the effect that the Collier attack upon its advertising methods was due to its refusal to advertise in Collier's. The defendant asserts that the advertisement complained of was issued in self-defense and in the nature of a reproof for an editorial which appeared in Collier's in July, 1907.

Mr. Collier testified yesterday that, as managing editor of the weekly in 1905, he had announced a policy of excluding certain classes of advertising, and that some one sent him a Postum advertisement cut from the same issue which printed the announcement, bearing the comment, "Consistency, thou art a jewel." Believing that an advertisement phrased as was this was in violation of the new policy, he ordered the exclusion of such copy.

James W. Osborne, counsel for Mr. Collier, read aloud a number of Postum advertisements, and declared that he would call authorities to prove that Postum is 70 per cent. bran. Mr. Philbin, for the Postum Company, protested that Mr. Osborne should not make assertions which he could never back with proof and deplored the discussion of much that was outside the issue in the action, assuring the jury that his client did not fear the fullest investigation of its products.

"Mr. Post is a man who looks upon his products with something more than the mere commercial viewpoint," he said. "The company has never asserted that by its products it could effect the cure of any disease."

The case will go on to-day.

NOT TO SELL CORNELL ASSETS

Court Orders the Receivers to Complete or Dispose of Firm's Contracts.

Judge Hough has refused to grant the application of the receivers of the J. B. & J. M. Cornell Company, structural iron and steel contractors, Eleventh Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, to sell all the assets, and they are directed to continue their efforts to complete such contracts as are worth completing.

An examination of the contracts renders it probable, the Judge said, that a separation can be made between those upon which no work has been done and those almost completed. As to the first class, while no binding instructions are given, it is recommended that they be sold or sublet, if possible, and if neither of these courses can be pursued, that they be abandoned.

As to the second class, every effort must be made to push them to completion, and such efforts must not be abandoned until the receivers come absolutely to the end of their cash on hand or receivable.

BERTRAM SCHWAHN RECITAL.

Young Baritone Has a Good Voice, but His Style Is Monotonous.

Bertram Schwahn, a young American baritone, added another to the already long list of song recitals last night in Mendelssohn Hall. His programme, in its makeup, was entirely orthodox, never wandering from the beaten track.

The first group included Giordani's "Caro Mio Ben," Beethoven's "In Questa Tomba," and Mozart's "Non Piu Andrai"; in the next group were familiar songs by Schumann and Schubert; the third was devoted to Strauss, Grieg, Tschaikowsky, Rubinstein, and Brahms, and the fourth to American composers, including Bruno Huhn, Blair Fairchild, and Sidney Homer.

Mr. Schwahn has a good voice, but he has not as yet the qualifications necessary for a successful appearance before the large public. His style, especially, is monotonous, and he has many faults of delivery.

LONDON TO HEAR "SALOME."

Ban on Strauss's Opera Removed—Aino Ackte in Title Role.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Richard Strauss's "Salome" at last is to be heard publicly in London.

The Lord Chamberlain has removed the ban, and the opera will shortly be rendered at Covent Garden by the Beecham Company, with Aino Ackté in the title rôle.

Will in Chinese Filed.

The will of Pong Wing Wart, late of 32 Mott Street, the first written in Chinese characters to be filed with the Surrogate in the last twenty years, was offered for probate yesterday. The document was an uneven piece of white paper, bearing the date of July 10, 1910, the day before the Chinaman died. The will leaves some $1,000 personal property to be managed by his brother, Pong Sung Wing. A translation was attached to the papers.

TAFT'S CRUISE ENDS; AT CAPITAL TO-DAY

Tennessee Lands Him at Fort Monroe from Panama—Speaks at Richmond This Afternoon.

DRAFTS MESSAGE ON BOARD

Cruiser Averts Collision with German Ship Off Cuba and Meets Rough Weather—President a Good Sailor.

FORT MONROE, Va., Nov. 22.—President Taft's Panama cruise came to an end here to-day. The armored cruisers Tennessee and Montana, with the Presidential party aboard, dropped anchor at 11:20 A. M. The President remained on the Tennessee for luncheon and left late this afternoon for Richmond, where he stops over night, reaching Washington late to-morrow. The President and all the members of his party are well.

The trip up from Panama was not without incident. On Friday night last, about 140 miles south of Guantanamo, Cuba, the Tennessee managed to avert a collision with a German training ship, supposed to be the Freya. A heavy squall hid the Presidential squadron, the weather being so thick that the steersman could hardly see a ship's length ahead. The storm was brief and as it cleared the German ship was cutting directly across the Tennessee's bows, not a quarter of a mile away. The helm of the Tennessee was put hard over. The Freya continued on her course. There was no exchange of signals.

On Saturday the President spent three hours at Guantanamo looking over the naval base and the rifle ranges there. It was the first time an American President had set foot on the island of Cuba. The territory visited by Mr. Taft, however, is under American sovereignty.

Monday morning brought the only disagreeable weather of the voyage. Off the North Florida coast the cruisers ran into the tail-end of a cyclonic disturbance. The sea was very rough and for hours the vessels shipped water over their forecastles. Speed was reduced for a time, hatches were battened down, and ventilators and all other gear lashed to the decks. The height of the storm was passed about 3 A. M., and the sea did not calm until well toward noon. President Taft is a good sailor and did not mind the experience.

The President spent three of the five days of the homeward voyage at work on his message to Congress, and dictated the first draft of the major portion of it. He is anxious to get back to Washington to plunge into the Winter's work. In Richmond he is to make a speech before the Virginia Educational Conference.

The Mexican situation is still being handled wholly by the State Department at Washington. Mr. Taft has had only meagre details.

The President is gratified over conditions in Panama. The canal is taking form rapidly, and its successful completion is no longer looked upon by the Executive with any doubt.

Mr. Taft has absolute faith in Col. Goethals the chief engineer, and the members of his staff. His personal inspection of the Gatun dam, the two flights of locks and the Culebra Cut greatly impressed him. He declared that if all American citizens could see these great works there would be no misgivings as to the future of the canal.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 22.—President Taft arrived at Richmond to-night as the guest of the city. He dined at the Westmoreland Club and later held an informal reception at the Commonwealth Club. He is stopping at the Jefferson Hotel.

To-morrow the President will breakfast with Gov. Mann at the Executive Mansion, motor over some of the battlefields surrounding Richmond, and will be entertained at luncheon, and in the afternoon will address the Virginia Educational Conference.

The President will reach Washington at 8:35 o'clock to-morrow night. On his way to Richmond this afternoon Mr. Taft stopped for half an hour at Williamsburg to visit the old William and Mary College and the Bruton Paris Church, which dates back to 1632. From the pulpit of the historic church he made a little speech, in which he declared that the making of the Constitution and the making of the Nation were indelibly linked with the men who lived in Williamsburg and other parts of Virginia.

"The men who lived in Williamsburg and all through Virginia," said the President, "fought the early fights with the old Governors, which those of us in Ohio hardly knew were fought, and yet were the real bases for the successful struggles that came later."

IS ROULETTE A GAMBLE?

Virginia Law Permits Games Where Chances Are Even.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 22.—When Tom O'Brien of New York, convicted six weeks ago of running a gambling house at Hot Springs, came up for retrial on an appeal to the Circuit Court of Bath County to-day, he faced a jury of Virginia mountaineers, some of whom had never seen a railroad train. They will be asked to decide whether skill isn't just as profitable in roulette as in poker.

In the Virginia gambling law is a clause that in a game of chance there is no gambling unless the game is arranged so there is an unequal opportunity for one man to win.

"Poker is not gambling," the court, jury, jurists, and witnesses all agreed. "Poker is simply a game of even chance."

"Well, then," came the question, "if in roulette you put $8 on the black and the same on the red and $1 for a split between the zero and a double zero, isn't roulette a game of skill; is it a game in which the backers of the wheel and the player have uneven chances?"

Everybody figured for a bit. They figured the dollar split on the zeros would win seventeen if it won at all, with the loss of sixteen on the red and the black. If either red or black won there would be total winnings of eight and losses of nine. This was taking even chances.

The six witnesses, William H. Jackson, Robert A. Black, William C. Denny, Eugene Perry, Lemist Esler, and Freeman Smith, glanced up in surprise from their little sum. Roulette began to have a safe look and a smile and then a laugh broke out. It did not spread to the other side of the house where sat many mountaineers who, like the jury, were hearing for the first time the words "roulette," "champagne," "evening clothes," though at the word "poker" there had been a look of understanding approaching interest.

Mr. Jackson, who has been an Assistant Corporation Counsel in New York, had been addressing the jury in this wise:

"I ascended the hill to Mr. O'Brien's club and was ushered into a beautiful drawing room. Ladies and gentlemen in evening attire were coming and going; sweet music came from an orchestra behind some palms, and in a restaurant across the hall were shaded lights, beautiful women, laughter, the clink of glasses, and murmur of low conversation."

"Tell the jury what evening clothes are," suggested Lawyer G. M. Stevenson.

"Dress clothes, a dress suit," said the witness turning to the row of bearded faces, "is composed of black trousers, pants like any other pants, a coat and vest, the distinction being in the latter garments. The coat is cut so (showing with his hands) and the vest so."

"Must be something like a hoss blanket," whispered a juryman; "covers up the back good, but there ain't none of it left to cover up the withers."

Here the testimony stopped for the day.

MUST REHEAR CASE.

Service Board Loses Appeal in Long Acre Light and Power Application.

ALBANY, Nov. 22.—The Court of Appeals to-day denied the motion of the New York City Public Service Commission for a reargument of the action brought by the Long Acre Electric Light and Power Company of New York to compel the commission to grant its application to issue stocks and bonds. The commission denied the petition, asserting it lacked power, but the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court sent the application back to it for a rehearing and decision.

The commission appealed to the Court of Appeals, which upheld the Appellate Division, but declared it could not pass upon the merits of the case until the commission had given a rehearing.

Counsel for the commission recently asked the court for permission to reargue the case, which was denied.

MORGAN FOR BIG PIERHEADS.

Asks Dickinson's Authority to Extend Hudson Berths for New Liners.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—J. Pierpont Morgan called on Secretary of War Dickinson to-day to obtain authority for the extension of pierheads on both sides of the Hudson River in New York Harbor, to accommodate vessels of the great length of those now under construction for the White Star and Cunard Lines. Mr. Morgan pointed out that the present docking facilities on both sides of the Hudson were wholly inadequate.

Secretary Dickinson suggested that Mr. Morgan put his request in writing. The matter will be referred to Brig. Gen. William H. Bixby, Chief of Engineers of the Army, who is charged with determining questions affecting the navigation of such rivers.

GAME FAR FROM PLENTIFUL

Drought and the Storm in the South Have Caused a Short Crop of Fruits and Vegetables.

Thanksgiving dinners will be costly this year. Chicken may be a little less than this time last year, and there is a slight reduction in beef over the prices ruling last November, but no one considers these the proper food for the festive occasion. Turkey and the other conventional eatables are all running high.

Even vegetables and fruit as a rule are more expensive than in other years, and for this the big dealers say it is not fair to put the blame on the trusts. The weather this Summer and Fall has been all against big crops ripening, and excellent prospects either wilted in the drought or were swept away by the storm which raged in the South a few weeks ago.

Still the wholesalers have some comfort for the public. They say that however meat may rule there is no doubt that in a few weeks such articles as oranges and vegetables will be coming down. By Christmas time the navel oranges from California will be on the market in exceptionally bountiful numbers, and the South promises to have a fine early crop of vegetables.

Turkey is, of course, the traditional food for Thanksgiving, and it is expensive. A. Silz & Co., who supply the large hotels and restaurants, say that the prime grades will fetch to-day anything between 32 and 35 cents a pound, while Western birds command from 25 to 27½ cents. These rates are about 3 cents a pound higher than last year. Mr. Silz said that one reason for the increase was the general belief of the public that prices were likely to fall, and consequently there has been a great rush in the last few days to send in orders, which might have been filled at a lower rate if they had come in more gradually. He has sold between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds in the last four days.

Some Comparative Prices.

Uptown at the Washington Market Company's store, at Columbus Avenue and 104th Street, 30 cents was asked for turkey yesterday, and the belief was expressed that the belated buyers would have to pay 32 cents to-day. The wholesale rate is 27 cents, it is said, and the retail price last year was about 30. In Washington Market, however, one stall was asking only 28 cents, and the salesmen were assuring passersby that the birds were from Long Island.

If turkey is high, geese and pigs are the same as last year, ducklings are cheaper, and game has gone still further into the clouds. These are the figures Silz & Co. charged last year and this:

	1910.	1909.
Geese, per pound	.26@ .30	.26@ .30
Ducklings, per pound	.28@ .30	.30@ .33
Pigs, each	$1.00@$4.50	$4.00@$4.50
Quail, per dozen	8.00	6.00@ 7.00
Partridge, per brace	5.00@ 5.50	4.50@ 5.00
Wild turkey, per pound	.50@ .60	.40@ .45
Canvasback duck, per brace	5.00@ 6.00	4.75@ 5.25

These high figures, Mr. Silz explained, were caused in large measure by the stringency of the game laws in this State. No partridge, grouse, woodcock, or quail killed in New York State may be sold, and every dealer in these birds must file a bond of $1,000 to get his game from elsewhere before he offers them to his customers. So it happens that a brace of partridges, which will fetch only $1 in Pennsylvania, will cost at least five times as much here. This great increase is explained by the fact that while Pennsylvania permits its game to be killed and sold, has prohibited its export. But the authorities take this prohibition with no great seriousness, and those who will take the risk can export birds.

Some quail may, however, be purchased here for about $2 less than the American variety. They come all the way from Egypt and have had a brief taste of life in London before crossing the Atlantic packed in small boxes. They are captured alive in Egypt and shipped to England. In London dealers make a practice of fattening them up, and after two or three weeks they are killed and sent to New York. They are not frozen, as they travel only on the fastest steamers, like the Mauretania and the Lusitania, and arrive in prime condition for Broadway epicures.

Washington Market Prices.

In Washington Market these figures were quoted yesterday with regard to meats. They may run a little higher next week, it is said, when the Thanksgiving season is past, and those who have lived on turkey this week turn again to their staple food.

When the meat dealer is not blaming the trust for the high prices, and declaring that it is absurd to say that consumers are not receiving as much reduction as has been possible, considering the wholesale rates during the last two or three weeks, they are inclined to take a fling at the health authorities. They assert that the extreme care to preserve the public health has discouraged small local meat growers, and they feel that considering the risk of confiscation of meat through the discovery of tuberculosis or some other microscopical defect, it is not worth their while to continue in so risky a business.

One pork butcher spoke yesterday of a consignment to him by a private individual of nine hogs, which he had raised in Connecticut. He had no reason to suppose they were not perfectly good meat, but when they reached the city the inspectors declared them tubercular and confiscated them. The grower not only lost his money for the hogs, but his faith in the profit of raising them.

Chickens, however, are cheaper this Thanksgiving. A good roasting fowl may be bought at 22 cents a pound instead of 25, which was charged this time last year, and prices range according to quality as low as 18 cents.

A Thanksgiving dinner, however, is of not full proportions unless it is rounded out with vegetables and fruit, and George Nix of J. Nix & Co., 281 Washington Street, told yesterday how the disastrous weather had ruined the crops in Florida, which New York should at this time of year be enjoying.

The second crops of Long Island are now pretty well gone, and what is regarded as the early crop of Florida should be coming forward. But a storm overran the South about three weeks ago, and many of the crops had to be replanted. Consequently there is at present a scarcity of vegetables, but this will be over, it is expected, in a few weeks and prices will begin to come down.

The Apple Crop.

Apples were a great disappointment this year. Early in the season dealers prophesied a record crop. But the drought came and there was hardly an apple to be obtained all over the Middle West. Moreover, Europe's orchards failed, and so New England, New York, Virginia, West Virginia, and the Pacific Coast have had to bear the burden of feeding an apple-loving people not only in America but abroad. However, the price this year runs much the same as last. Spitzenbergs are worth from $4 to $5 a barrel and Baldwins at $3.50 to $4.25. Uptown large gorcery stores are selling the best apples at from 75 cents to $1 a dozen, and others of good quality and more ordinary size at about 30 cents.

The crop of pears, too, was light this year, and at $3.50 to $4.50 a box wholesale they run a little higher than last year. At retail they may be bought in good size and quality at from 75 cents to $1.25 a dozen.

The early crop of both Florida and California oranges were touched by frost, and so fruit has been scarce and of not too fine quality. At P. Ruhlman & Co.'s, 261 Washington Street, who specialize in oranges, it was said yesterday that California oranges are running at $11.62 a box, $2 more than was asked last year at this time, and Floridas at from $3 to $4 a box for fancy grades, about $1 more than in 1909. But the navel California orange is just beginning to appear, and the crop has been excellent. It is estimated that it will be a 50,000-car harvest this year, and every car will contain 384 boxes. So there seems every prospect that by Christmas oranges will be cheap.

Cranberries at 15 cents a pound and celery at $2.50 to $3 a crate will make no unusual demands on the purses of tomorrow's diners, and the extras of the meal, such as almonds, olives, and candies remain at unchanged prices.

FINDS BUSINESS HOLDING UP.

Mr. Kruttschnitt of the Harriman Lines Has a Hopeful View.

Julius Kruttschnitt, Vice President of the Union and Southern Pacific, in charge of maintenance and operation, who is in New York in consultation with other officers of the Harriman Lines yesterday remarked that the Harriman lines are going ahead with their betterments with very little if any let-up. Mr. Kruttschnitt said that while business had been checked to some extent traffic was still running about 5 per cent. ahead of last year.

So much has been said lately by railroad men particularly in the East regarding necessities which are forcing the railroads to limit their expenditures and avoid any new construction that particular significance attaches to the statement of Mr. Kruttschnitt that improvement work is going forward on a large scale even though at a somewhat smaller rate than during the time when the late E. H. Harriman was practically rebuilding the Union and Southern Pacific lines to bring them up to their present standard. How high that standard is L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson told recently upon his return from a trip West when he said that railroad men in the East now have much to learn of efficient handling of traffic from the railroads in the West among which a foremost place is held by the Union and Southern Pacific.

"We are not pushing our work as rapidly, perhaps, as we would if money were easier," said Mr. Kruttschnitt, "but every week I get a report showing that two, three, or four miles of additional second track has been cut in on the Union Pacific. We now have a continuous double track from the Missouri River to a point a little west of the Platte River, a distance of about 305 miles, and the grading has been done for a considerable distance beyond. Other work which we have under way includes the line from Portland to the Pacific Coast, which we are completing; the Deschutes River line which is about 140 miles long, and on which about seventy-five miles of track has been laid, and besides these the Klamath line which, like the Deschutes line, is in Oregon. Work on the Mexican line is also progressing. We are at work there on about thirty miles. We have not men enough all over the country, for proper means of transportation are not available. Our purpose is to build short stretches and open them up for service and then build on further.

"Whatever change has taken place in general business on our lines during the last three or four months has been by way of a check to activity. It is not as good as we would like at a time when the crops are moving, but traffic still remains fairly, and I may say, substantially above last year. We have become accustomed to 10 per cent. increases and have gotten into the way of expecting that much. The increase does not now amount to that, but to about half of that increase, I should say."

Referring to operating conditions, Mr. Kruttschnitt pointed out that the Western railroads, including his own, are now confronted with the demands of the engineers for increased wages. He said that the roads had offered them an increase of about 10 per cent., but that the men had rejected this and were now making up their minds what to do next. What they were pretty certain to do, he said, was to tell the railroads that they will strike, but Mr. Kruttschnitt said that he did not think it would come to that. The railroads have offered to arbitrate, and while the engineers might tell the railroads that they would not arbitrate, he thought they would hardly be willing to tell the public so. He expects that the matter will be adjusted by arbitration probably under an appeal to the Erdmann Arbitration law.

Mexico Honors Riccardo Martin.

Riccardo Martin, the American tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House, has just received through the American Consul a letter from Señor Enrico Creel, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Mexico, thanking him on the part of President Diaz for his artistic services in Mexico City on the occasion of the recent Centennial celebration. The letter was accompanied by a silver medal.

LUNACY COMMISSION TAKES UP FOOD THEFT

State Board Descends on Ward's Island and Secret Sessions Last Into the Night.

MORE BAD EGG DEALERS

Commissioner Fosdick Gets Evidence from Them on Which He Expects to Have an Inspector Indicted.

The State Lunacy Commission began an investigation yesterday of the thefts of meat from the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane, on Ward's Island. Dr. A. W. Ferris, President of the board, arrived in the city from Albany Monday night and was joined here yesterday by his fellow-members, S. T. Viele and Col. W. Carey Sanger. They went immediately to Ward's Island and held a long conference with Dr. William Mabon, Superintendent of the asylum; Judge Keener, President of the Board of Managers, and Mrs. Julia Kemp West, one of the Directors. A representative of the Attorney General's office was also present. M. A. Wheeler, chief steward of the asylum, and several other employes were called in.

After the afternoon conference broke up none of those present would talk of it. The board met again in the evening, and the session lasted far into the night. It is believed that the utmost secrecy will be maintained until the investigation is completed.

The commission issued a statement, which read:

> Some months ago the commission decided to make a thorough investigation of the system of accounting and methods of administration in their own office in the different State hospitals and in the Steward's Department, including that of the Purchasing Steward and the Purchasing Committee. This action was not decided upon because of any information which reached the commission as to irregularities or dishonesty, but because it was felt that with the expenditure of so large a sum of money as is required for the maintenance of the State hospitals it was important from time to time that careful examinations of accounts should be made.
>
> The actual work on this investigation started on the 7th of November in the office of the commission at Albany, within a week after the conclusion of the Fall visits to the different hospitals by the Commissioner. On the 14th of November two representatives of the Audit Company of New York began their study of methods of accounting and of administration at the Manhattan State Hospital, and during the same week similar work was begun at other State hospitals.
>
> As soon as the discoveries made by Commissioner Fosdick were brought to the attention of Dr. Mabon he communicated with the Commissioner, assuring him of the heartiest and most complete co-operation on the part of himself and his subordinates in the hospital, and the Commission in Lunacy gave Commissioner Fosdick the same assurance of its hearty co-operation in the investigations he was making.
>
> In view of the fact that this inquiry is somewhat in the nature of the proceedings taken by a Grand Jury, it is thought to be in the interests of justice that the proceedings should not be conducted in public, but the commission desires to give the most positive assurance that the investigation will be thorough and complete and that the result will be made public.

Simon Katzenstein, a wealthy refuse dealer, who was arrested by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick's men with a large quantity of meat from the asylum in his possession, will be arraigned in the Morrisania Court to-day. Anthony Martin, the chief butcher at the asylum, who disappeared after Katzenstein's arrest, has not yet been located.

Commissioner Fosdick said yesterday that he had become convinced that none of the city institutions on the islands in the East River are concerned in the thefts and that he has turned the investigation completely over to the State authorities.

The Commissioner continued his investigation into food inspection in this city yesterday and had several more rotten-egg dealers before him. He said that he expected to complete the inquiry this week and will turn all of the evidence which he has taken over to the District Attorney, with the recommendation that one of the Inspectors of the food and drug division of the Health Department be indicted.

SNOW REMOVAL BIDS.

Bradley Company Not Among the Applicants for the Job This Year.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards yesterday opened the new bids for snow removal this Winter. They do not include the district in Manhattan below Vesey Street, which will be taken care of by the department with its own facilities.

The lowest bids for Manhattan were from Celestino De Marco, and varied from 84 5-9 cents to 60 cents per cubic yard, according to the district. The lowest bid for Brooklyn was that of the Donlin Contracting Company at 43 7-10 cents, and for the Bronx that of Wilkinson & O'Connell at 29 cents.

The absence of the name of William Bradley, usually a large contractor on the snow removal work, was noted. The first bids received this year were thrown out by the Commissioner some time ago.

MEDAL FOR A FIRE MATRON.

Men of Engine 21 Give Her a Gold Service Badge—First Thus Honored.

For the first time in the history of the Fire Department a woman was honored for long and faithful service when the members of Engine Company 21 to-day presented to Mrs. Sarah Pope the department's gold Maltese cross.

Mrs. Pope, who lives at 242 East Thirty-ninth Street, is the widow of John Pope, a fireman who died in the line of duty. Twenty years ago the widow was appointed a matron, which position she has held ever since.

When Mrs. Pope finished her duties yesterday the men gathered in the recreation room and Mrs. Pope was called in. Then Capt. George J. Fox expressed the regard in which she was held by the company and presented to her the decoration.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, NOV. 23, 1910.

THE EXTRA SESSION SCHEME.

The latest advices would seem to make quite probable the serious consideration by the President of the plan to call an extra session of Congress next March to take up the revision of the tariff. From the politician's point of view this would appear a shrewd move to put the Democratic majority in the House "in a hole." We believe that it is one that the Democrats can regard with entire serenity.

Of course Mr. TAFT could not place such a plan on the avowed ground of a desire to embarrass his political opponents. He would be obliged to profess that it was due to respect for the will of the people expressed in the election of a tariff reduction House. If he did that, he would also be called on to declare his purpose to coöperate with that House in carrying out the popular wish. He would have to admit that the prime duty of the Government was reduction, and that the only question was one of means and degree. With that concession from the leader of the Republicans the Democrats could go on their way without misgivings. Either they would frame a revision that the Republicans would be induced, or forced, to accept, or they would frame one that the Republicans would reject. In the former case the Democrats clearly would lose nothing of public confidence. In the latter case, the contest over the tariff would simply be prolonged and thrown into the Presidential and Congressional elections of 1912, with the popular demand for reduction defeated by the Republicans. Meanwhile the discussion that would necessarily take place, the hearings before the Ways and Means Committee that would no longer be the empty proceedings they were last year, the renewed attacks in the Senate whence the chief leaders of the standpatters would have vanished, would surely strengthen the demand for real reduction.

We do not believe that Mr. TAFT will decide to call an extra session. It is not like him to do it from any mere party cunning, and though there is something to be said for it on sound grounds, it is very much out of the usual course and not tempting to a man of his temperament. As a party device we are confident that it would fail.

THE REFERENDUM IN ENGLAND.

The most striking and important feature of the plan proposed by the Conservative leader, Lord LANSDOWNE, for the regulation of the rights of the Peers is the referendum. The proposition is not as definite as it might be, especially with regard to the question of how the need of a referendum shall be determined, but it is a clear recognition of the principle, and it may have very substantial effects.

As proposed, the referendum is not to be applied to all questions on which the two houses cannot come to an agreement. Most of these not financial in their nature are to be referred to a joint meeting of the two houses. But "if the measure relates to a matter of great gravity and has not been adequately submitted to the judgment of the people it shall not be referred to a joint sitting, but submitted to a decision of the electors by a referendum." It will be seen that no distinct provision is suggested for the determination of the question as to whether a measure really does relate to a matter of great gravity or whether it has been adequately submitted to the judgment of the people. On that point, in the absence of any such provision, the decision of the Peers would remain conclusive. In other words, it would be within the discretion of the Peers to decide whether a referendum should be ordered or not.

The main difference between this plan and the plan that has heretofore been followed, is that instead of a general election, involving the seats of all the members of the House of Commons, there would be a simple vote on a single measure. This would be an immense saving in the time used, in the disturbance caused, in the cost incurred, and in the completeness and definiteness of the judgment reached by the electors. For example, if the budget of last year, which was regarded by the Peers as a measure calling for a referendum as now proposed, could have been submitted to the people by itself, the verdict would have been final. The people would have expressed themselves on that alone. As it was, their expression was influenced by a half dozen different questions, tariff "reform," land taxes, Irish home rule, labor legislation, and so on, besides the vague question of what should be done with the Lords. As a matter of policy, with reference to the present contest, the plan of the Conservatives may prove to be very advantageous. The Liberals cannot logically oppose as despotic or oppressive toward the people a proposition to establish a simple, direct, definite, and practical appeal to the people on all matters of "great gravity."

DON'T GO TO JAIL YET.

A pertinaceous suffragist has insisted in THE TIMES's letter columns that the formation of "a league of women binding themselves to smuggle whenever they can and to go to jail when they get caught" is the only way by which the taxed but not represented sex can protest against the extravagant high tariff. The Boston Tea Party and the "underground railroad" conducted by the Abolitionists are the precedents that serve her turn. Why, she asks, should we dub her proposal "silly"?

If this were, indeed, the only way to reform an extortionate tariff, or even the only way by which the unfranchised could protest, it might not seem silly, although doubt might exist of its effectiveness. The women who sent delegations to Washington to plead with Senator ALDRICH, Representative PAYNE, and Speaker CANNON to lower the rates on hosiery and on all cotton and woolen wear were not heeded, it is true. Their influence was felt later.

Perhaps Speaker CANNON, contemplating the ruins of the Speakership and his dethronement from that high office, now wishes he had heeded the women. Possibly Senator ALDRICH, who now counts more insurgent Senators of his own party in the Senate and a more formidable Democratic minority, wishes he had heard the women. And PAYNE and CANNON in the House are themselves in the minority. They are condemned to behold a Democratic revision of the tariff downward, in conformity with the broken Republican promise.

"The McKinley Tariff act was doomed by the women customers of the rural tin peddlers," NELSON DINGLEY used to say. Their protest against the duties on tin plate, tape, thread, ribbons, and kerchiefs was potent. But none of them defied the customs, none went to jail.

THE RIVAL SUBWAYS.

The Public Service Commission has not yet received the new proposal of the Interborough, and the McAdoo proposal admittedly must be amended to have any hopes of survival. The only perfected scheme is the Triborough, and it is plausibly contended that the McAdoo proposal removes the last obstacle to awarding and constructing forthwith at least those portions of the Triborough route for which it can no longer be contended that an operator cannot be found. The argument is conclusive if the Triborough is to be constructed with paper money, something which the city can print, or otherwise come by without its being earned by somebody and paid over to the city. Admittedly the Triborough cannot be built with the city's earnings, since the city is not an earner of anything. It was once argued that the subways could be built out of economies from the city's extravagances and graft, but this argument has ceased to be convincing since the last budget increased eleven millions over its predecessor, and it was admitted that the growth could not be stopped in any way by those who had been most critical of the finances of former administrations.

If, then, it be admitted that the city ought to finance its subways economically, as though they were to be built with real money, it follows that no portion of the route now offered ought to be constructed. The prism of the Triborough is larger than the Interborough by 32 per cent. It was made so in order that the bidding might be open to the largest class of bidders, no connecting road being excluded by any consideration of size. If the reasoning be admitted regarding bidders, it altogether fails with the failure of the bidding. There can be no reason for building the Triborough to admit Pullman cars if it is to be operated by the Hudson Tunnel operator and equipment. The cost of construction increases almost as much as the increase of dimensions, and there are incidental disadvantages when the construction must be within the limits of the street lines. Already on the Fourth Avenue line now under construction there have been large real estate expenses necessitated by the curves and encroachment on the side lines. The increased height adds four extra steps for everybody up and down everywhere, and on the double-deck section, for which it is urged that the McAdoo bid justifies an instant award without even awaiting a final agreement with Mr. McADOO, it makes eight extra steps of stairs forever.

This argument does not apply merely to the digging and building costs. It runs through all the expenses of equipment, and operation of the completed enterprise. Details are tedious because of their superabundance. Suffice it to say that on the mere question of excessive dimensions, raising no question of route or efficiency of operation, the excess of burden through unnecessary cost of construction would handicap the Triborough plans by the fares from 152,000 passengers, or by the profits from 500,000 daily. This might make no difference to a subway financed on the grand scale of deficit of the Staten Island Ferry, but it would make a difference to the Hudson and Manhattan tunnel system, however prosperous it is. The total number of passengers on the Hudson and Manhattan system for the year ending with last June was 42,839,979. In other words, the fixed charges for the travel exceed the profits of the total travel on the Hudson system.

THANKSGIVING TURKEYS.

From the esteemed Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry at Washington comes this greeting to the American people: "Eat thy fill on Thanksgiving Day and forget WILEY and the microbe, but do not eat cold storage turkey." It is a cause of thanksgiving that on one day at least the constituted authorities allow us to forget the microbe. But how, without tasting it, can a cold storage turkey be identified or suspected? It is all well enough to say that the feasting public is permitted to satisfy the inner man without thought of germs. But ptomaines might develop in the leftover turkeys of last year's feast. How guard against them?

One way is to buy no turkey at all. The heavy orders for turkeys have already sent up their price to 30 cents a pound, whereas last week they were selling at 25 cents. The average household invests in this ceremonial luxury—chicken and other fowls are quite as pleasing to the palate—only on one occasion. Why crowd the market to the exclusion of the poor?

But the American people are not to be denied their turkey. By and by the health officials will have established standards of goodness and consistency for the flesh of cold storage fowls, and will protect the public from those that fall below such standards. Until then, however, housewives must be sure of the integrity of their marketmen and must make doubly sure by personal inspection and choice of each particular turkey. The bird which BENJAMIN FRANKLIN would have made the emblem of our country must not taste as though it had been buried and dug up.

THE ALDERMEN'S WORK.

The Board of Aldermen has seen fit to resolve that the Board of Estimate would waste the city's money in an effort to determine by expert investigation whether there is waste in salaries apportioned to grades of city employment, and waste in the conduct of the public schools, of the Health and Charities Departments, and of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals. The Aldermen formally disapprove the Board of Estimate's appropriation of $50,000 to investigate the school system, its appropriation of $35,000 for standardizing the salaries in the civil service, and of $25,000 for following up the public health and charities accounts.

The Mayor and his associates of the Board of Estimate voted for these appropriations. The Mayor can veto the Aldermen's resolution of disapproval.

A CASE FOR INQUIRY.

There is something very unpleasant about the rumors that American workmen are not wanted on the great engineering works now under construction by contractors for the State and the city. If the testimony given on Monday at the Bowery Mission meeting is to be credited, the discrimination against the native-born laborer involves a good deal more than the deprivation of a certain number of American citizens of the opportunity which they need. It raises the question of the treatment meted out to those who do hold the jobs.

It is claimed by the contractors that the American will not undertake the hard manual toil or perform it as efficiently as the immigrant, but it seems equally true that the employers fight shy of citizens because they will not submit to the conditions that newcomers are too helpless to fight against. No doubt the contractor salves his conscience by saying that the Poles and Italians he hires are better off in his camps than they ever were in Europe. They get higher wages and shorter hours, it is true, but if one-half of the statements of those who have experienced life in a construction gang may be accepted, the accommodation and the food supplied them is far below the standard which all Americans are supposed to enjoy.

Neither the State nor the city expects its work to be done under such conditions. They pay the contractors sums sufficient to provide comfortably for the men, and they have insisted upon the proper regulation of hours and pay. There should be an investigation of the other conditions prevailing on public works. The State and city owe a duty to the immigrants whom they indirectly employ, and it will be good policy, as well as simple justice, if they see that no one for the sake of gain takes advantage of their ignorance and friendlessness.

HAS MIND AS WELL AS HEART.

Now and then organized charity is able to give a particularly convincing reply to the charge not infrequently heard, that it is cold-blooded, hard-hearted, and so wound about with the red tape of offensive inquisitiveness as to be ineffectual. About two years ago the Joint Application Bureau of the Charity Organization Society and the Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor was put to the test by a TIMES representative who disguised himself as a tramp and applied there for food and lodgings. The unsuspecting Superintendent gave him both immediately; one of the women clerks insisted on sharing her lunch with him, and he, just from an ample meal, was forced to eat ravenously until she happily disappeared long enough for him to slip the food into his pocket. That was his only unpleasant experience. There was no red tape to hurt.

Now another retort to organized charity's critics appears in the annual report of Supt. BLATCHLEY of the Joint Bureau. In the last fiscal year, just ended, permanent work was obtained for 887 persons; temporary work for 184 persons. Many of the many who got permanent jobs were sent to farms, where, removed from temptations in the city to which they yielded, they have excellent chances of becoming productive citizens. The number of men sent to the Municipal Lodging House was nearly 1,000 less than in the previous year. The bureau gave away 1,200 articles of clothing and 210 pairs of shoes, principally to homeless applicants who, ill with tuberculosis, had been admitted to the Otisville Sanatorium, but had no clothes fit to wear there. All told, applications for aid were received in the year from nearly 20,000 persons, and something was done for each of them. What more need be said? Organized charity has a mind as well as a heart.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Responsibility Which We Do Not Share. It is with a satisfaction which we think well justified that we now call to mind the not infrequent occasions when advertisements offered by the BURR Brothers to THE TIMES were refused on the ground that the representations made by them contained hardly the remote possibility of being true, and in all probability were intended to mislead and rob the pathetically credulous fraction of the investing public. No unusual knowledge of financial affairs was required for reaching this conclusion as to the object of the BURR schemes, and to refrain from assisting them in its attainment seemed, and still seems, to us merely a display of common honesty rather than of lofty and exceptional virtue.

The satisfaction just mentioned, therefore, is somewhat streaked with sorrowful wonder that several of our neighbors cannot share it with us, because they sold to the BURRS all the publicity which those too enterprising adventurers chose to buy, and so assumed a moral, if not a legal, responsibility for the losses suffered through them by thousands and thousands of small capitalists. The exact extent of this responsibility is, of course, a matter of opinion, but even those who are least inclined to exercise a censorship over the advertisements offered to them for publication must feel something of compunction when it is borne in upon them, as by this week's revelations, that they have facilitated such operations as the BURRS have been conducting.

The pain thus caused is, or ought to be, of a keenness directly proportioned to the ease with which the untrustworthiness or the dishonesty of the would-be advertiser's statements and promises could be determined, and, that being the case, the present sufferings of the neighbors to whom reference has been made must be acute—must be little less than torture. Hence this is not a time for scolding them; far better is it to extend to them a heartfelt sympathy, and to express, as hopefully as the circumstances will permit, the sincere wish that they may never again bring upon themselves such agonizing condemnations of conscience as must now be bowing them to the ground. The gate of repentance is open, the road to reform wide and clear. All who will may walk in it to safety and happiness.

Made Rich by Our Borrowings. A correspondent of The Scientific American is editorially commended by it for protesting against the use of foreign words, for the most part French, in describing the different parts of aeroplanes, the things and places connected with their use, and the various manipulations to which they are subjected.

It is true, as stated, that the heavier-than-air flying machine is an invention thoroughly American, and that there is no real necessity arising from it for importing a single word from abroad. As a "stabilizer" the "aileron" would be no less effective, "shed" is as good as "hangar," "pylon" is a pedantic substitute for "mark," "volplane" is obviously a barbarism, and "epinage" for "tail" is amusing or absurd, and so on through the long list of terms which The Scientific American's correspondent has put in impressive confrontation. And yet—and yet—well, both he and his editorial sponsor are wasting their time.

The English-speaking peoples long since lost the power, or at any rate abandoned the habit, of making, when need for them appeared, new words from their own linguistic resources. For centuries they have been pillaging the languages of all the world, till now English is the most composite of all spoken tongues. As it is also for almost every purpose the best, because it is the richest, why should objection be made to continuing the process to which it owes its excellence?

That the French should fasten their terms on the aeroplane, as they did on the automobile, is natural enough, since, though they invented neither machine, they did much for the development and popularization of both. And surely a language like ours, which is already half or three-quarters French, will not be seriously injured by the addition to its vocabulary of a dozen or so more of French words. Most of us, to be sure, will mispronounce them, but that only makes them our own, and we have a perfect right to pronounce them, and for that matter to spell them, exactly as we please.

The merit of these words, for us, is that they are distinctive, and mean only, as well as exactly, what we want them to mean. The Frenchman who says "chauffeur" may or may not bring to his hearer's mind the man who drives an automobile; for us it has no other significance, and therefore is a good word. The same thing is true of our other borrowings, and were we to be restricted to Anglo-Saxon, so called, we would be reduced immediately to the linguistic poorhouse.

Bacteriology and Germs. That Dr. FLEXNER should describe bacteriology as "the most practical form of scientific endeavor" will not surprise anybody who has even an amateur's knowledge of the enormous debts which most of the other sciences owe to that one, and of its consequent importance in all human relations and activities. It is somewhat surprising, however, that Dr. FLEXNER should have spoken with the seriousness he did of the check which bacteriology has suffered because even our best microscopes are not strong enough to let us see certain forms of life the existence of which is more than suspected.

As reported, he seemed to hold a complete triumph over disease impossible while the smallest "germs" are invisible, and to expect it when they are all revealed. He can hardly have said just that, however, for already at least one unseen enemy has been conquered, while not a few others, though for years as well known to the eye as mice or cats, still resist all efforts to exclude them from our bodies or to slaughter them after they get in.

Of course we want better microscopes even than the "ultramicroscope," but bacteriology can go a long way, yet, without them, and though they never come there may nevertheless be in the future the Golden Age that as regards the past is an idle myth—the age when nobody will ever be sick. "But not in our time," as Dr. FLEXNER sadly said.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.

Englishman Says He Has Lost All Respect for Our Procedure.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There yesterday appeared in The New York World an item to the effect that at present there are awaiting trial for murder thirty-one in New York to only three in London, and upon this statement two jurists, to wit, Judge Foster and the District Attorney, made some amazing remarks. The Judge frankly admitted that Great Britain of all the countries of the world was freest from crime; but he goes on to state that aliens are responsible for the greater part of the crime committed in this country. Now, dealing with New York City, I have before me a table of percentages showing criminality among the native born and the foreign element of this city for the past four years, the same being compiled by a clerk of one of the police courts, and he gives the number of convictions for this period at 10,367, of which the American born is responsible for 6,690, or no less than 64½ per cent., while that of English nationality, by the way, is only 2 per cent.—the very bottom of the list. What has Judge Foster got to say to this?

Mr. Whitman makes a desperate effort to prove that murder trials are better conducted here than in England, while had this gentleman spoken the unvarnished truth he would have admitted that whereas the administration of justice there is of the best, in this country it is about the worst, and in this connection I may quote your own President Taft, who but recently said in effect that the criminal procedure of this country was a National disgrace, and was about a century behind that of England.

For myself, I have lost all respect for law as carried on in this city, as cases too numerous to mention prove that if only a man has sufficient money he may escape the penalty of any crime from murder down, while a poor devil such as Wolter, whose conviction Judge Foster is so proud of, is promptly railroaded.

The Future of Harrison.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of yesterday under the heading, "The Future of Harrison," in connection with your comprehensive story on the new Pennsylvania fast line, you published an article to which the officials and public-spirited citizens of this municipality have taken exception.

While "Harrison will leap from oblivion into fame among the tourists of the world" the moment the new fast line is put in operation, it may be truthfully said that Harrison has for years occupied in the manufacturing world a place of prominence. Harrison is the home of the electric light. The General Electric Company's plant, where incandescent bulbs and other electrical devices are made, is the largest of its kind in the world. The Hydraulic Pump Works, formerly the Worthington plant, which are located in Harrison, are the largest factory of their kind in the world, employing as they do, like the Edison plant, thousands. One of the latest industries that has come to our town is the Otis Elevator Company, known in every part of the world where modern conveniences are employed. Within a short time the headquarters of this concern will be transferred from Yonkers to Harrison.

Harrison's assessed valuations are calculated by the millions. Her output on the market of commerce every year is enormous for a town of its size, covering just one square mile. Its manufacturing facilities are numerous. On the north it is bounded by the Erie Railroad, on the west and south by the Passaic River, and on the east by the Town of Kearny, which owns those offensive meadows upon which there is a mortgage of $8,000,000 held by some New York banking house. Through the town run the Pennsylvania and Lackawanna Railroads with ample accommodations for the handling of freight. And now comes the great change station.

For All These Things.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few things for which New Yorkers should be thankful:

That the political thieves do not rob the City Treasury more than they do.

That the system of intramural transportation is no worse than it is.

That the prices on all kinds of food are no higher than they are.

That the public highways are no filthier or noisier than they are.

That undesirable immigrants do not land and settle here in larger numbers.

That the police system is no more corrupt than it is.

That pedestrians who turn to the left are not more numerous than they are.

That the hats worn by the gentler sex are no larger than they are.

That the congregations in the churches have not dwindled more than they have.

That sanitary citizens do not expectorate on the sidewalks more than they do.

That greed for the almighty dollar is not more prevalent than it is.

That grog shops are not more plentiful than they are.

That timwoodruff waistcoats have gone out of style.

That turkeys, plum puddings, and sweet cider are all the go at this season of the year.

That, with all its faults, this is a pretty decent metropolis after all.

Steam Train Passes Electric.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If there are any electrical engineers who think that electric trains can go faster than steam trains, they should take the 8:36 A. M. train from Lynbrook and see the ease with which a steam train from Patchogue will pass the electric train, both trains under way and a clear track ahead for both.

Judging from the speed of the Long Island Railroad electric trains, we are going slower than when steam trains only were running—the running time now, as per its time table from Lynbrook to Jamaica, 8 4-10 miles and no stops between, is 12 minutes for the above train, and as high as 15 minutes, no stops between, for others.

A year or two back there was a steam train which made the run from Jamaica to Lynbrook very often in 10 minutes, going the longest way, so let all ye electrical enthusiasts think of the Long Island Railroad before praising the swiftness of electricity as applied to passenger cars.

SIX-YEAR COMMUTER.

Lynbrook, L. I., Nov. 21, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A real estate dealer the other day told Commissioner Harlan that there were 500 houses in East Orange on which the work of erection has stopped, and 500 more that were vacant, all because the railways advanced the commutation rate.

To a "mere man" it would seem as if the landlords might reduce the rate $1 or $1.50 rather than lose a tenant, but did you ever hear of any such suggestion? Not by a big sight! But let a thousand houses be built in East Orange in good faith—single houses—to rent from $25 to $30, and there will be no complaint of vacancies.

Water Wasted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It should be the duty of policemen to report the waste of Croton water from hydrants or horse troughs. At the southwest corner of Broome ad Varick Streets a horse trough has been overflowing for three weeks. Broome Street is asphalted, and the water keeps it in a muddy condition all the time. Letters have been sent to the Water Department, but nothing has been done to prevent the waste.

KOPPAY'S PORTRAITS SHOWN.

Rockefeller and Roosevelt Among the Artist's Recent Paintings.

At Knoedler's Gallery until the 30th of the month is an exhibition of Jossi Koppay's recent portraits, most of them painted with a swift brush, an excellent eye for character, and a general air of extreme virtuosity, with also a much more serious draughtsmanship than the modern painter of fashionable portraits usually can claim. The modelling is rather hard and will be the better for the veil of tone that time is certain to draw over the surfaces; the drawing of the hands and arms is uniformly delicate and sensitive, and the color is often attractive, as in the figure of a woman seated with yellow daffodils at her waist, and the three-quarter length of a young girl on the adjoining wall.

The two men on the list of sitters best known to the American public are John D. Rockefeller and Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Rockefeller is represented with newspaper in hand and an urbane expression. We liked better another portrait of him by Mr. Koppay not in the present exhibition, in which he was leaning on his cane and interrogating a world that has contributed much to his ambition. Mr. Roosevelt is painted without compromise, bluff and burly, twisting his lips toward speech, a very striking likeness of a difficult subject.

FOR DUANE ST. COURT SITE.

Congestion Committee Hears It Would Obliterate Chinatown.

The Sub-committee on Public Squares of the Congestion of Population Commission heard arguments yesterday in favor of the building of the proposed new Court House for New York County on the so-called Duane Street site, bounded by Duane, Pearl, and Centre Streets and Park Row. It was declared that if this was done it would obliterate Chinatown.

The idea was set forth by De Witt Fox, a lawyer, and Edward Blum, an architect. Here are their conclusions in favor of the selection of the Duane Street site: That the civic centre of the city would be pushed to the east and north; that it is accessible to the Hall of Records and the big office buildings; that the ground would only cost $3,000,000 and the entire expense would probably not be more than $6,000,000; that the neighborhood would be improved and the valuation of adjoining property be so increased that the Court House would be paid for in a short time in taxes, and that land would be made so valuable in Chinatown that that section would be obliterated.

HIGGINBOTHAM RESIGNS.

Mayor Prompt to Release Magistrate Often in Trouble.

Police Magistrate Higginbotham of Brooklyn, who has had a troublesome career on the bench, presented his resignation to Mayor Gaynor yesterday. It was immediately accepted. The Magistrate called at City Hall yesterday morning and had a short talk with the Mayor. A few hours later the resignation arrived by messenger. It said that Mr. Higginbotham wished to return to the practice of law. The Mayor would not comment on the matter.

Higginbotham was appointed by Mayor Van Wyck in June, 1901. He was arrested a few weeks ago on the charge of a young girl that he had insulted her in his office. He was tried, but acquitted. In the last assignment of Magistrates in Brooklyn by Chief Magistrate Kempner, Higginbotham was not placed. It was conceded then that his official days were numbered.

MAN'S HOME HIS CASTLE.

But His Gambling House Is Not, Says the Mayor to a Brooklyn Complainant.

Mayor Gaynor sent this letter to Robert H. Roy, a Brooklyn lawyer, yesterday, defending the new policy of the police in taking possession of premises found to be used for disorderly purposes:

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR,
Nov. 22, 1910.

Dear Mr. Roy: Your letter complaining that Mr. Kaufman's place is held possession of by the police is at hand.

A man's house is his castle, as you correctly say, but I have never yet heard it said that a man's gambling house is his castle. The law is, as I understand it, that every gambling house is a public nuisance, and may be taken possession of by the police or by the citizens for abatement, and that is the theory on which the police are acting in taking possession of the place you mention. When the police find a public nuisance they should take possession of it and hold possession of it until the nuisance is fully abated, and that is what they propose to do with gambling places and the like.

It is of very little use to walk into them and arrest the proprietor and then walk out again. We do not intend to have the law enforced in that feeble way, but, on the contrary, the ample power given by law to the police to suppress nuisances is going to be exercised. Very truly yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Robert H. Roy, Esq., 44 Court Street,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Roy is a former Assistant District Attorney of Kings County. He wrote to the Mayor on behalf of his client, Charles Kaufman, who runs a saloon at 46 Thatford Avenue, Brooklyn. A gambling raid was made on the place some ten days ago.

GAYNOR FUND $10,000.

Aldermen Appeal to the Public to Repay the Hospital for Its Care of Him.

The Gaynor Hospital Fund now has reached the neighborhood of $10,000, including more than $1,000 which Theodore F. Miller has collected in Brooklyn. This statement was made last night by Chairman John D. Crimmins.

Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, who sent $10 to the fund, accompanied her check with a quotation from Proverbs XI., 10: "When it goeth well with the righteous the city rejoiceth." Another letter, enclosing $1, said: "The amount indicates but one one-hundredth part of the pleasure it affords me to register my thanksgiving for Mayor Gaynor's preservation to his family and to the city."

To Indict Gallagher This Week.

Prosecutor Pierre P. Garven in Jersey City announced yesterday that he will present on Friday to the Grand Jury the case of James Gallagher, who shot Mayor Gaynor. He will ask for indictments of assault with intent to kill in both the cases of the Mayor and of William Edwards, Street Cleaning Commissioner, who was shot while trying to save Mayor Gaynor.

Subpoenas will be served on Mayor Gaynor and Commissioner Edwards to-day for their appearance before the Grand Jury.

State Secretary-Elect Lazansky to Wed

Edward Lazansky of Brooklyn, soon to be Secretary of State, obtained a marriage license at the City Hall yesterday to wed Miss Cora Oppenheim of 310 West Eightieth Street. The date of the ceremony was not stated.

GRAFT INQUIRERS PASS TO INSURANCE

Unable to Locate Leading Turfmen, They Drop Race Track Bribery for a While.

JUST A BUSINESS QUEST

Pursuit of Corrupt Practices Stilled While Legislative Committee Seeks Weak Points in Insurance Methods.

Failing to locate Harry Payne Whitney, James R. Keene, and other turfmen, the Legislative Graft Investigating Committee dropped the inquiry into the old race-track bill and the accompanying scandals that were attached to efforts to defeat it and turned its attention yesterday to the fire insurance companies. Although it had not been generally known, the joint committee was appointed for a twofold purpose—one to inquire into all forms of legislative graft, the other to recommend changes affecting the practices of insurance companies and beneficial associations.

It was not by preference that the insurance end of the investigation was taken up. M. Linn Bruce, counsel for the committee, said in the morning that he had his heart set on questioning Mr. Whitney, Mr. Keene, Schuyler Parsons, and several others who are alleged to have participated in a dinner at Delmonico's at which $500,000 was subscribed to defeat the passage of the Hart-Agnew bill, which killed horse racing in this State. Mr. Bruce said that his subpoena servers, in charge of Capt. Jack Langon, a former scout in the Boer war, had been unable to find any of the men named. He said that Capt. Langon had haunted the offices of Mr. Whitney and Mr. Keene, but had been unable to get any trace of them.

"We will keep on trying until we land them," said Mr. Bruce, "for we have not yet come to the bottom of the race-track bribery."

Bribery Cases Coming Up Again.

Mr. Bruce added that several other allegations of corrupt practices relating to legislation were to be looked into, but that pending the subpoenaing of witnesses the bribery investigation would be postponed until Tuesday next. So the fire insurance search will continue to-day, after which the committee will adjourn for Thanksgiving.

The usual crowd of outsiders which had been on hand ever since the race-track bribery scandal came before the committee, many weeks ago, listened a while yesterday morning as a bewildering array of statistical testimony was given, then filed out of the Aldermanic Chamber, in the City Hall, until none was left there except the committee, its counsel, a few witnesses, and the reporters.

Even the committee seemed to lose interest. Assemblyman Young went to sleep, and most of the other members of the committee wandered out of the room. Along toward noon Chairman Merritt and Assemblyman Young were the only members of the committee in the room for a while. Chairman Merritt, however, seemed to take a lot of interest in the insurance business.

Daniel F. Gordon, Chief Fire Insurance Examiner of the State Insurance Department, testified that there were at present 375 fire insurance companies doing business in New York State and that the aggregate capital of the companies was $69,000,000 and their combined surplus $164,000,000. The total amount of losses paid by the companies last year was $133,000,000 and the total amount of premiums collected $271,500,000.

Lloyd Companies Not Licensed.

Mr. Bruce wanted to know if the London Lloyd companies had any license to do business in this State, and was told that they had not. Mr. Gordon said that the "general opinion" was that several of the London Lloyd companies were operating here, but that he had no personal knowledge of it. He admitted that if they were really operating here it would be a violation of the law, and that the proper procedure in such a case would be for the State Superintendent of Insurance to make a report to the Attorney General and the District Attorney.

Mr. Gordon testified that the usual commission paid by the fire insurance companies to their agents was 25 per cent. He added that insurance brokers were sometimes paid by the insured and that in some instances, where brokers were employed by department stores, it might be that preferential rates are allowed.

Albert W. Whitney, Professor of Mathematics and Insurance at the University of California, and Actuary for the Legislative Committee, produced a report he had compiled for the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, after the San Francisco fire, showing many facts pertinent to the fire loss of both the insurance companies and the property owners out there.

Mr. Whitney said that the fire loss in San Francisco was about $200,000,000. The average commissions paid by the insurance companies of this country to their agents was 21½ per cent. on new business. Some of the companies paid as low as 15 per cent. and some as high as 41 per cent.

Taking six of the largest fire insurance companies in the United States, he said their average profit during the last twenty years was 10½ per cent., and that one of the companies paid an average dividend of 5 4-10 per cent. during that period.

Work of the National Board.

George W. Babb, general attorney for the Northern Assurance Company, and a member of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, described the objects of the National Board: "It's work," he said, "is educational and of public service. Its most important work was in bringing about improvements in building construction. The board was constantly in touch with the building departments of practically all the cities of the United States, and its suggestions were usually acted upon.

Mr. Babb said that higher fire insurance rates prevailed here than in Europe, and explained that the difference in construction between the average buildings in the United States and those in foreign countries caused this difference.

"Out of every two houses built in this country one is destroyed by fire," said Mr. Babb. "That is the average, at least." He said that the fire loss in the United States, exclusive of forest fires, during the five years prior to 1904, was $866,000,000, which amounted to a loss of $2.47 per capita. The loss per capita during that same period in Europe was 33 cents.

"The average of construction is improving in this country right along," said Mr. Babb. "The authorities in cities all through the country, whose duty it is to look after matters of construction, realize that insurance rates are governed to a large extent by the character of construction. The good work done by the National Board of Fire Underwriters is beginning to show."

Mr. Babb concluded that Americans were not so careful in guarding against fires as were Europeans. There, even the chimney sweeps were licensed and fireworks and other explosives were not allowed to be stored in such buildings as they are in this country.

Mr. Bruce announced yesterday that the committee was especially interested just now in the economic side of fire insurance, but that for the present it would be considered only in its elementary form. As the inquiry progresses an effort would be made to pick out weak points in the present insurance system and suggest remedial legislation.

Several fire insurance experts are expected as witnesses to-day.

This change is one of the steps in the general crusade of economy he has begun.

A GOOD PLAY MADE FROM ONE BAD EGG

By Miss Anna Caldwell as Chief Cook for Zelda Sears at the Bijou.

QUAINT STORY, BRIGHT LINES

Miss Sears Delightful in the Role of Eccentric Spinster with Passion for Romance—and a Husband.

THE NEST EGG, a play in three acts, by Anna Caldwell. Bijou.

Deacon Adams	Julian Barton
Alice Adams	Evelyn Varden

Some years ago an Italian gentleman by the name of Christopher Columbus succeeded in getting a great deal of notoriety out of the fact that he knew how to set an egg on end. But—speaking in the vernacular—he was a "piker," compared to Miss Anna Caldwell, who for the first time in history has shown that it is possible to make one fragile little hen fruit hold up a three-act play. However, being a cold-storage egg, its strength, at least, was never open to suspicion. Also in having Miss Zelda Sears as its principal assistant the egg was in good company, whatever its antecedents. And after all these, it appears, were above reproach. Its—the egg's—father's name was Ulysses and its mother's name Minerva, and it—the egg—was gently deposited in Miss Hetty Gandy's chicken yard, in Eden Centre, whence by slow freight it eventually arrived in Albany, whence it appeared eventually as chief factor in the little drama of misunderstandings which had the Bijou audience laughing almost steadily for two hours or more last night.

To begin with, Miss Gandy, poor seamstress with a passion for romance, had conceived the idea of writing a few lines upon the egg just before she packed it for the market, dating it and signing her name and address. The exact sentiment is not vouched for, but it went something like this:

The rose is red, the violet's blue,
If this egg appeals to you
Write to her, then,
Who owns the hen
That laid it.

Pretty, isn't it? But he didn't write. No. He telegraphed. And as three long years had passed between the sending of the egg out into the cold-storage world and the message in reply, what wonder that poor Hetty Gandy decided that the finder was all impatient for the wedding ceremony, and immediately proceeded to buy up all the orange blossoms in the neighborhood. And what wonder that her poor little heart was about broken when, after eating her own huckleberry pie and pronouncing it good, the deceiving person informed her that it was not a bride he wanted, but a witness in a pure food prosecution. You see, he was a dyspeptic, and that three-year-old properly dated egg had refused to vacate once it found lodgment. So he, being a crank on the subject, was able to win his case with the aid of Hetty's testimony.

Long before he discovered it you were quite certain that Hetty Gandy, as Miss Sears played her, was quite the most darling spinster person imaginable. To be sure, she mixed everybody else's love affairs as badly as her own. But it was a joy to see her do it, and to hear her mangle the English language in her efforts to reproduce the fine speeches of her favorite romances; to learn that each piece of her furniture was some one in the village, for she had named the chairs and the rest of it after the person whose sewing remnants went to make the covers; and to suffer with her in her pretended pleasure at the receipt of duplicate, triplicate, and quadruple wedding gifts in the form of cream pitchers until her soul yearned for some one to give her a cow, just to help fill them all.

Miss Caldwell's play, "The Nest Egg," is written quite frankly for laughs, and it certainly does get them. But there is a deal of shrewd philosophy and observation in the chief character, and in its essentials it is certainly American and real. Hetty Gandy has her fling at lots of things, including the suffragettes. And whatever diffefrence of opinion there may be elsewhere, last night's audience certainly applauded the sentiment. "Whenever you hear a woman running around and yelling for the vote it's because she can't get a husband or isn't satisfied with the one she's got." Moreover," remarked Hetty, "whenever you see a bunch of feathers waggling over an idea you can make up your mind there's a man at the bottom of the idea." And even she was willing to admit that there were times when she was so lonely she even got to "hankering fo rthe homecoming of a drunken husband." As to marriages generally, she was on record as opened to those of people too much alike in temperament and build.

"No man," averred Miss Hetty, "wants to marry his sparring partner." Miss Caldwell's characters are drawn on broad lines, and the story is of a simple, homely kind, but in the long run it is the character of Hetty Gandy that counts. There is just enough of the others to keep the pot boiling while Hetty gets breath for another go at her problems, which vary from the dressmaking for everybody in the village to keeping a sharp lookout on the child Pansy Etta adopted from the poor house, and mad about moving picture shows. Some one remarks that the road to hell is paved with moving picture shows, whereupon the young hopeful remarks that she hopes she will go to—but, no, precocity of this sort must not be encouraged. Incidentally, there are two or three little love stories involving young friends of Hetty's and into which she mixes with bad results for everybody for a time. But before the play ends Hetty's dream is out, her little piece of property regarded as worthless is sold for a good figure, she has a husband in prospect, and everybody who deserves to be happy is happy. And Miss Caldwell's dialogue throughout is most amusing.

No one plays these eccentric rôles like Miss Sears, and she has the art to vary her characterizations, so that Hetty Gandy is quite another person from the various spinsters Miss Sears has been seen in from time to time. The opportunities are greater than heretofore, and more persistently sustained. And they are all fully realized by the actress. Her humor is delightful, and she touches the occasional tender note with exquisite sincerity. The scene in which Hetty suddenly realizes that she has been building up false hopes Miss Sears handled in a vein of simple, truthful, and appealing pathos.

Mr. Walter Young gave a quaint portrait of the village skinflint, and Ruth Wells was a very amusing child. A very pretty girl, Evelyn Varden, played sweetly and sympathetically. The opportunities of Mr. Frederick Burton and Mr. Robert Dempster, both good actors, were rather limited. The others were capable enough for the matter in hand.

MR. BONCI'S RECITAL.

Operatic Tenor Sings Songs in Italian, English, and French in Carnegie Hall.

Mr. Alessandro Bonci has gone from the operatic stage to the concert platform to employ his fine and altogether unusual vocal gifts and accomplishments in the song. His first recital was given yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall, and was heard by a very large audience, often and easily roused to enthusiasm. Mr. Bonci's programme was long and included Italian songs, German songs in English and Italian, French songs, and American songs. There were also two operatic excerpts—"Il Mio Tesoro," from "Don Giovanni," and "Che gelida manina," from "La Bohême." There might have been more skill displayed in the devising of this programme, to create a greater contrast, a heightening of the whole effect by the juxtaposition of the parts. Furthermore the programme was extremely long, and as was to be expected, Mr. Bonci lengthened it in answer to the demands of the audience for repetitions and additions.

There has been ample opportunity for this public to study at the two Opera Houses in the last four seasons Mr. Bonci's delightful and finished art in vocalism, which includes many of the highest attributes of style and method; fine legato, perfect finish in phrasing, management of the breath, and production of tone and attack, finish and flexibility of technique, and excellence of diction. Many singers are unmindful of some of these things, and to hear Mr. Bonci is an admirable enforcement of their value for singing in any style. He is an operatic tenor of a type that is rapidly disappearing, and whose extinction will spell disaster for the art.

There was much beauty in his singing of the old Italian airs by Giordani Pergoles and Paisiello, and one by Gluck to Italian words. There was, likewise, in his singing of Beethoven's "Adelaide," in which he used Italian words; and it may also be said an Italian style. Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Music," Schubert's "Who Is Sylvia," and "Hark, Hark the Lark" he sang in English. Of these by far the best was the last named, for in it he penetrated very near to the spirit of the song. In "Who Is Sylvia" there was monotony of expression, and in Mendelssohn's song a certain stiffness and lack of exalted feeling. Yet there was a beauty of a very definite sort imparted to them all by the finesse and certainty of the technical means that Mr. Bonci employed in them. One of the most noteworthy of their features was the surprising excellence of his English diction and pronunciation, which was generally quite intelligible and only slightly tinged with a foreign accent. The one English word that Mr. Bonci habitually mispronounced was the one most common in the language, "this."

In his French songs Mr. Bonci's choice was not altogether inspiring. The most pleasing were a "Romance" by Debussy, apparently an early work, before the characteristic Debussyan style became fixed, and Godard's innocently joyous "Embarquez-vous." Of these he had to repeat the song by Debussy.

The chief alloy in the enjoyment of a long programme of songs sung by Mr. Bonci is the monotony of effect that he does not avoid. His voice has little variation of color, no great profundity of emotional significance, and a comparatively limited range of characterization. So intelligent and accomplished a singer, of course, seeks for all diferentiation in the mood and emotional values of his songs; but the limits within which Mr. Bonci moves are circumscribed by the material in which he works. Nevertheless, the beauty of his singing is of an inestimable value at the present time, when the tendency is so strong to forget how such a beauty is begotten.

THE GIRL AND THE KAISER. An operetta in three acts, by Bernard Buchbinder, music by Georg Jarno; English version by Leonard Liebling. Herald Square Theatre.

Kaiser Josef II	Julius McVicker
Baron von Loeben	Melvin Stokes
Von Reuter	Robert Vivian
Count Sternfeld	Robinson Newbold
Tibor Berenyi	William Bonelli
Franz Foldessy	Thomas Richards
Hans Lange	Albert Wilder
Peter Wenzel	Harry Conor
Ludwig	George Leonard
Sergt. Kolonitzky	Alfred Darling
Baroness von Graven	Flavia Arcaro
Countess von Rendorff	Mabel Weeks
Minka	Edith Decker
Christ'l	Lulu Glaser

Miss Lulu Glaser as Christ'l, the forester's daughter in "The Girl and the Kaiser," a well made American version of a German operetta, romped into the hearts of her audience at the Herald Square last night. With her romped Julius McVicar as a good-natured and manly Kaiser Josef II., Thomas Richards as an Hungarian lover, and Harry Conor as a very much upset Court tailor. Also a large and most energetic chorus, an orchestra so large that the theatre lost a row of its first floor seats, and Edith Decker and Mabel Weeks and Flavia Arcaro in various capacities.

The story of "The Girl and the Kaiser" is said to be based on an incident in the life of the Austrian Emperor, Josef II., when he met a pretty girl in the royal game preserves and again discovered her in Vienna in time to save her sweetheart from execution as a deserter from the army. The piece was "discovered," so far as America is concerned, at the Irving Place German Theatre last season, when it had a run of several weeks under the title of "Die Foerster Christ'l."

There is a definite and consistent plot, stronger and more healthful than the average operetta plot. Christ'l is the daughter of the chief forester and helps him in his duties. She captures a supposed poacher, to whom she expresses her mind most freely. She tells him what she thinks of the Kaiser and what she would say to him if she should meet him. Her sweetheart, Franz Foldessy, with whom she has been coquetting, is arrested as a deserter. Christ'l goes to Vienna to plead with the Emperor for his life, and there finds that her poaching hunter is the Kaiser himself. She misunderstands his kindness and believes that she has been chosen as his sweetheart. At the end, however, she accepts Franz and dances a Czardas with him as a token of capitulation.

There is a secondary plot concerning a conspiracy against the life of the Emperor, led unwillingly by Peter Wenzel, the Court tailor, who has been mistaken by the Hungarian patriots for a famous poet, Schmoller. A Baroness with a jealous fiancé makes love to Wenzel, under his newly acquired name, and he is generally brought into trouble against his will.

Besides Miss Glaser's personal charm and pleasant acting, the music of the piece seemed to meet with the full approval of the audience. There are no striking airs that are likely to be remembered, but there are waltzes and marches and wild Hungarian dances that brought encore after encore last night and interrupted the plot in many places. The chorus could sing, and had the "ginger" that stage managers like to find in choruses, and the ensembles carried through with vigor and considerable grace. Near the end of the first act there is a gypsy frolic, with a dance so wild and so lively that it had to be repeated half a dozen times. And here a little credit should be given to Victor and Blanche Hyde, who appeared as special dancers in this number.

Edith Decker played a gypsy fortune teller, Mabel Weeks was a Countess, and Flavia Arcaro the Baroness who loved the poet.

Help Wanted for Mother and Children.

The Charity Organization Society asks for money with which to continue the help it is giving to a young colored woman and her two little children, who are in delicate health. The children need especially nourishing food, and their mother finds it impossible to provide this out of the $5 a week she earns. Their father disappeared three years ago. It requires $1.50 a week to supply the needed food, and the improvement in the children's health, already shown, fully justifies the wish to continue this assistance through the coming Winter months. Contributions may be sent to the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

VAVASSEUR-FISHER MARRIED.

Son of Lord Fisher Weds Miss Jane Morgan, Noted Yachtswoman.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—A wedding of international interest took place here to-day, when Miss Jane Morgan, daughter of Randal Morgan, a wealthy Philadelphian, and the Hon. Cecil Vavasseur-Fisher, son of Lord Fisher of Kilverstone, Admiral of the fleet, and recently First Lord of the Admiralty of England, were married in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Chestnut Hill.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. Andrews Harris, rector of St. Paul's. Elizabeth A. Morgan, a counsin, attended the bride as maid of honor. Miss Agnes Sibley, Miss Elizabeth Cartwright, and Miss Theodate Bailey were the bridesmaids.

Vice Admiral Sir Frederick Fisher, K. V. C., an uncle of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Morgan home. Owing to the recent death of Miss Morgan's mother, only the bridal party and the members of both families attended the wedding.

After the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Vavasseur-Fisher will occupy Kilverstone Hall, their country seat in the County of Norfolk, England. The bride is noted as one of the few women who holds a sailing master's license, and she has won an international reputation for the skill with which she can handle big steam yachts.

Lord Fisher, his brother, Vice Admiral Fisher, and his daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Beatrice Neeld, will remain here a few days. They will be entertained by naval officers at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, and other plans have been made for their entertainment while in the city.

THE PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.

Schumann's C Major Symphony Heard—Mme. Alma Gluck Soloist.

The Philharmonic Society gave the third of its regular evening concerts yesterday in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Mahler's programme was an interesting one and its performance full of spirit. It began with Cherubini's classical "Anacreon" overture. The symphony was Schumann's in C major; Mr. Mahler's reading of it was intensely vital and plastic, insistent in its reproduction of characteristic rhythms, sonorous, brilliant in the scherzo, which was taken at an exceedingly rapid pace—a pace that taxed the powers of this very accomplished body of men. There were a few rearrangements of Mr. Mahler's own devising in the orchestration; but from that nobody is safe, especially not a composer who has to bear a reputation for unskillfulness in scoring. The performance of the symphony was truly impressive.

The other orchestral pieces were Dvorak's "Carneval" overture, exuberant and tuneful music, and Smetana's symphonic poem "Vltava," programme music of a straightforward and at present old-fashioned sort, aiming at nothing more than suggestion, through means purely musical; more expression of feeling, possibly, than landscape painting. These were also admirably played, though perhaps not with quite so much technical finish as the symphony.

Mme. Alma Gluck was the soloist. She sang a Bohemian cradle song from Smetana's opera "Hubicka" arranged by Kurt Schindler—but why is it necessary to "arrange" an operatic excerpt?—very pretty and peaceful music, but not notably distinguished above certain other songs of the same kind and purpose; also two songs by Mr. Mahler, "Morning in the Fields" and "A Tale of the Rhine," which Mme. Gluck sang a few weeks since at her song recital, but with piano accompaniment.

The folk song character, dear to Mr. Mahler as a composer, is notable in them, especially in the second. It hardly seems as if songs of the sort received much additional value by being set to an orchestral accompaniment. Miss Gluck's singing was charming; her voice never sounded fresher or more delightful in quality, and she gave the spirit of the songs unmistakably with verve and archness. She gave great pleasure in them, and was much applauded and several times recalled, when, with some difficulty, she got Mr. Mahler to share the plaudits with her.

John Cartledge.

John Cartledge, head of the firm of J. Wild & Co., carpet manufacturers, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease in his eightieth year. He was born in Bath, England, and came to this country sixty years ago and entered the employ of the firm of White & Co. Fifty years ago he became connected with the firm of which he was the senior partner at the time of his death. Mr. Cartledge was President and Director of the American Linoleum Company and a Director of the Phoenix Insurance Company of Brooklyn. He was a member of the Union League, New York Yacht, Montauk, Crescent Athletic, Oxford, and the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn. He left a son and four daughters.

Brig. Gen. David Lynn Magruder.

Brig. Gen. David Lynn Magruder, U. S. A., retired, died yesterday at his home at Bryn Mawr, Penn., in the eighty-fifth year of his age. Black Opal

There must still be some who have not yet seen the black opal, that most expressive and original of jewels. To these Marcus and Company extend a cordial invitation to visit their collection. Even after two years there is no sign of abatement of interest in these glowing stones, and their rare charm, enhanced by Indian settings and curious mountings in diamonds, delights the eyes of all who see them. There seems to be a peculiar satisfaction in possessing a black opal. It may be that apart from its beauty, so brilliant, fiery and full of change, is the consciousness that it is the harbinger of good fortune. The black opal, unlike its white sister, is believed by the superstitious to bless the wearer and to crown with success all his undertakings.

CORNELL ELEVEN LOSES CAPTAIN

Fullback Simpson Called to His Home by Father's Critical Illness.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 22.—Full of "ginger" and only waiting for the hour for the fray to begin, the Cornell football team, which will play its annual game with the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, on Thanksgiving Day, arrived here to-day, accompanied by a string of substitutes, coachers, and trainers. The squad is quartered at Haddon Hall.

The players will practice on the local football field, near the Inlet, and will use the Boardwalk for long walks to keep in condition. The players will go up to Philadelphia Thursday morning.

Capt. Simson of the Cornell football team will probably not be able to play against Pennsylvania in the annual game in Philadelphia on Thanksgiving Day. The big full back was called back to his home at North Tonawanda, N. Y., to-day by a telegram which stated that his father is dying there. Coach Reed to-night stated that it is not probable that Simson will be able to be in Philadelphia on Thursday. Wilson, the subsitute full back, will start the game in the absence of Simson.

The Cornell squad, which consists of twenty-five players, arrived here to-day to complete their preparations for the Thanksgiving Day game. Secret practice under the direction of Head Coach Reed and his assistants was held this afternoon at Inlet Park. A blackboard talk in which special plays arranged for the game were explained was given at their hotel to-night.

$75,000 IN HARVARD GAMES.

Yale May Keep Football Used in No-Score Game with Crimson Team.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22.—It is not likely that Capts. Withington and Daly will toss for the possession of the football used in last Saturday's Yale-Harvard game. The ball is now in the possession of the referee pending a decision of which side shall have it, and it has been proposed to settle the point by tossing a coin. Withington has received a letter from Daly asking the former to name a time and place to flip the coin, but Withington said this morning he didn't know that the ball would be tossed for and is not especially anxious to have the ball, and Capt. Withington said he would probably write to Capt. Daly that the latter could keep the ball if he so wished.

The season's football proceeds at Harvard were about $75,000. Last year they were about $88,000. The big game last year was played in the Stadium, which seats more persons than the Yale stands.

CADETS IN THEIR STRIDE.

No More Hard Work for West Point in Preparation for Navy Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 22.—The army coaches decided to-day that there would be no more scrimmaging work for the team, and the practice to-day consisted of signal drill. The team seems to have hit its stride and the various formations were run through like clockwork, needing little comment from the group of coaches following.

Walmsley's knee has again stiffened and it now looks as if he may not get into the navy game at left guard, after all, and it will be a choice between Englehard and Houston, the big plebe, who has been facing Capt. Wier while playing guard on the scrubs. Engelhard is a shifty player and has more experience, but is much lighter than Houston. The intervening days between now and the game, however, may work wonders with Walmsley, and the army may be able to start him against the Navy.

In Dean and Bown the army hove two speedy bcks, ond, although the navy's strong defense is not lost sight of, the soldiers are pinning their fatih to the strong aggressive work of their team. It cannot be denied that the middies have two wonderful line-breaking men in Dalton and Rodes, but the West Point defense has been tested to the utmost and stood the test against the strong Harvard and Yale teams, so that the soldiers have every confidence in the army line to withstand the demands that will be made upon it next Saturday at Franklin Field.

NAVY TEAM ON EDGE.

Midshipmen Putting Final Touches on Work Before Army Battle.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 22.—The Naval Academy team appears to be rounding into excellent shape in the closing days of the work of preparing it for its final contest against the Army. The team has been brought along with great care, and has steadily perfected itself in the work laid out, and there is nothing to do at this time but to continue along the same lines and acquire the finishing touches this week. The team will undoubtedly start the game against the Army with the same line-up which played during most of the second half against New York University last Saturday, though in at least two positions there is a possibility of a change even this week.

Davis, a fourth-class man, is the first choice for left tackle, but if Douglass's leg improves he may get the call. Douglass is heavier, but no so good a man in breaking through. McReavey, another fourth-class man, is playing such good football that he is likely to get in the game at some period, even though he does not start. McReavey has played every position in the back field this year, and is a high-class substitute for any of the backs. There was some idea that he might succeed Rodes at full back regularly, but Rodes seems to have risen to the occasion and has made himself the first choice at present.

The Navy team will have three fourth-class men in its line-up, the first time such a thing has happened for years. Gilchrist and Brown are fixtures at right end and right guard, while Davis is the first choice for left tackle. Official figures show the weight of the team to be 174 6-11 pounds. The line averages 176 2-7 pounds and the backs 171½ pounds.

For the first time since the series on neutral grounds was inaugurated, a Superintendent of one of the contesting schools will not see the game. Capt. Bowyer, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, has decided not to go to Philadelphia, as practically every other officer attached to the academy has applied for permission to take the trip.

Indians in Last Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Nov. 22.—The closing football practice to-day for the Carlisle Indian football eleven for the present season was light, and spectators could hardly believe it was the last before the Brown University game at Providence on Thanksgiving Day. Coach Warner drove his men through punting and catching punts and a few fundamentals he wished them to brush up on. The evening's drill closed with signal practice, which covered all of the new plays designed for the Brown contest. The probable Indian line-up for Thursday will be: Left end, Jordan; left tackle, Lancaster; left guard, Sweet Corn; centre, Carlew; right guard, Burd; right tackle, Powell, right end, Kenerly; quarter back, Capt. Houser; left half back, Bracklin; right half back, Wheelock, and full back, Newashe.

The Indian squad leaves Carlisle to-morrow and will stop at the Crown Hotel, Providence, to-morrow night. Capt. Houser is not in the best shape, but otherwise the Indians are about normal in physical condition, according to Dr. Defeney. Sweet Corn and Newashe have recovered from their bruises.

N. Y. U. Sophs Defeat Freshmen.

In their annual interclass football game the sophomores of New York University completely overwhelmed the freshmen on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon, routing them by the score 32 to 0. The second year men had the game their own way from the start. With a team containing Yule, Moore, Nixon, and several other 'Varsity men they outclassed and outweighed their opponents.

The teams confined their work largely to old-fashioned football. The sophomores found the freshman line weak and hammered away at it, making big gains by line bucking. The freshmen, on the other hand, confined themselves to the old game and end runs because they had not mastered any other methods of attack. The latter part of the game was played in semi-darkness, and this, too, prevented forward passes and onside kicks from being worked.

The line-up:

Isermann	Left tackle	Jones
Bregoff	Centre	Rashbaum
Swift	Right guard	Richards
Dressler	Right tackle	White
Donovan	Right end	Haughey
Nixon	Quarter back	Nealis
Moore	Right half back	Carrath
Yule	Full back	Van de Water

Touchdowns—Yule, 2; Moore, 2; Nixon. Goals from touchdown—Yule, 4. Field goals—Yule. Referee—E. Galloway. Umpire—J. Wheeler. Field Judge—F. Kopff. Head Linesman—A. Von Eggloffstein. Time of periods—Ten minutes each.

Pennsy Resting at Wayne.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—The University of Pennsylvania football squad was taken to Wayne, a suburb, to-day, to complete its training for the annual game with Cornell. A fast signal practice was held this afternoon. Mike Murphy, the trainer, to-night expressed himself as being well satisfied with the condition of the men. The cripples in the back field have almost entirely recovered, with the exception of Sommer, whose knee is still bothering him slightly.

Chicago Elects Football Captain.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Charles M. Rademacher of Clinton, Ill., was elected captain of the University of Chicago football team for 1911 to-day. Rademacher has been two years on the team.

MOORE'S HARD TRAINING.

Philadelphian in Good Shape for His Bout with Attell.

Pal Moore is leaving nothing undone in his preparation for his ten-round bout with Abe Attell at the Fairmount A. C. next Wednesday. In the first place, he has picked out Jimmy De Forrest's place at Allensurst for training quarters.

He does not want for training partners. The whole Moore family has moved over from Philadelphia, and that means three other brothers, all of them boxers, to help out the breadwinner of the family. Moore is a willing worker. Yesterday morning, for instance, he jogged along the ocean front for about six miles and then he did chores about the place just to keep himself moving. After a short nap in the early afternoon he jumped into the gym for a few minutes at the pulleys, the punching bag, and the skipping rope. Then came the real business, three four-round sessions with the gloves.

Moore improves every day. He sailed into his sparring partners with the same viciousness that marks his work in the ring and with the same determination that will mark his work when he faces Attell. He's lightning fast and is remarkably accurate in delivering his punches. If ever a boy looked like a champion in training he is this same Pal Moore.

Moore has very little to say. There is just the faintest sign of a smile when you mention Attell's cleverness. "I have met clever men before," said he while dressing, "and they never bothered me in the least. Yes, I mean Jem Driscoll. He couldn't keep away from me, and Attell is also got to do some fast stepping to keep out of range. I am not going to box Attell. I'm going to fight him."

De Forrest says Moore will weigh about 130 pounds next Wednesday night. This means that he will only have about five pounds on the featherweight champion.

Ted Nelson to Meet Glover.

Ted Nelson, who lays claim to the welterweight championship of Australia, and Mike Glover are matched to meet in the main bout of ten rounds at the stag of the Sharkey Athletic Club to-night. Both boys have been training faithfully for this bout, and it should be an interesting affair. Since Nelson's arrival here a few months ago he has been in two fights and has come out victorious in both of them. In his first encounter he knocked out Jack Clifford and in his second fight he made a chopping block of Fighting Kennedy. Batling Larry Ryan, the west side boy, and Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N. J., will come together in the six-round semi-final.

Gossip of the Golfers.

Clubs wishing to make applications for holding the amateur, open or women's national golf championships might do well to bear in mind that such bids should be sent in before Dec. 1. Any active club belonging to the United States Golf Association and desiring to apply for any of these events should file their applications with Robert C. Watson, Secretary, 51 East Forty-fourth Street, New York City.

Rumor has it that Marshall Whitlach has to thank a new putter for his recent success in the championship tournament of the Dyker Meadow Gold Club. While engaged in the competition Whitlach purchased a new putter from Jones, the club's "pro," and although he liked the looks of the weapon Whitlach decided not to do any experimenting then. In the decisive match, however, "Whit" stood 2 down with 3 holes to play, when a happy thought struck him. Out came the new and untried putter at the next green, the sixteenth, where its owner ran down a long put for a 4. This so upset E. F. Hunt, his opponent, that Whitlach won the seventeenth hole easily, thereby squaring the match. Another long put for Whitlach on the home green won him the championship. The old putter has been banished.

Well-known amateurs, including Walter J. Travis, will compete in the Fall tournament which will begin to-morrow over the links of the Country Club of Lakewood. Travis plans to reach the course among the pines in time for a practice round this afternoon. Since the amateurs last competed there the course has been stiffened up with new and deeper traps, making it more important than ever to keep on the line. Quite a number of veterans are now at the club in readiness for the seniors' 18-hole medal play handicap scheduled for today.

It looks as if more professionals than ever will work their way southward this Winter. Tom Anderson, Jr., will go to St. Augustine on Dec. 1, and fill the position formerly occupied by the late Willie Anderson. Orrin Terry, the Canoe Brook home-bred, is booked for Bermuda and there is also a chance of Herbert Strong of Apawamis, trying his luck below the Mason and Dixon line.

In the final round of the 2-ball mixed foursomes handicap held recently at the Woodmere Country Club, Frederick Gurney and Miss Lucy R. Morgenthau defeated Thomas A. McWhinney and Mrs. Jesse Weinberg by 4 up and 2 to play. A reception and dance will be held at the club to-night.

DIRECTOR GENERAL BRINGS ONLY $1,100

Sire of Many Noted Trotters Under Hammer at Old Glory Sale.

The second day of the Old Glory horse sale at Madison Square Garden drew much larger crowds at both afternoon and evening sessions than those of the opening day, and the prices at which the horses were bid in were considerably higher than before. Eight horses were sold yesterday for $1,000 or more each against one above that figure on Monday. The total number of horses sold yesterday was 137, and the total receipts amounted to $42,070, an average of $307 per head. Monday's average was $240. The total sales for the two days amounted to $71,165, an average of about $276 for each of the 258 head.

The evening sales were from small consignments, and the figures were not up to those reached in the afternoon. The highest price last evening was paid for Wilkes Heart, "The Gamecock Trotter," which won the Charter Oak Stakes in 1907 and has a race record of 2:06¼. This gelding was consigned by W. L. Snow, and was purchased by Charles R. Tweddle of New York. Star Patchen, whose creditable performances on the Grand Circuit during the past Summer seemed enough to qualify this son of Joe Patchen for the High Price Stakes, drew only $1,000, being bid in by J. R. Oakden of Corning, N. Y. None of the other thirty-seven head disposed of last evening brought a sum of four figures.

The afternoon sale consisted for the most part of consignments from the McElwain Farm of West Springfield, Mass., and the Clairborne Farm, owned by J. K. Newman, at Lexington, Ky. A total of 101 head were disposed of during the afternoon for the aggregate sum of $29,910, an average of $296 per head. This is considerably ahead of the average for the first day's sale.

The McElwain stock was the first to be put on sale, but the bidding was not very high. Twenty head were consigned by this farm and the top price was $1,000, paid by Hugh Milan of Readville for the two-year-old chestnut filly Electra, by The Peer and Cuneiform. She is a full sister of Cascade, and has been named for the American Horse Breeder Futurity.

Bidding became spirited and prices began to jump when the Clairborne stock was put up. J. K. Newman has announced his retirement from the breeding ranks, and he turned over his entire collection of brood mores to this sale, together with a few yearlings. This offering drew a much larger crowd than that of the opening day. The entire Clairborne collection, numbering about fifty head, was disposed of during the afternoon.

The top price was drawn by Bonalin, a five-year-old bay mare, by The Bondsman and Crystalline. She goes to the Walnut Hall Farm, Lexington, Ky., for $1,650. Nella Jay, an eleven-year-old roan mare by Jay Hawker and Paronella, drew the next highest price, $1,500. The next highest figure was drawn by Orlena, a candidate for the big stakes next year as a five-year-old. She is by Ormonde and Helena and was timed at 2:10 during the season just closed. She was bid in by A. Johnson of Brockton, Mass., for $1,400.

Much interest wes centred in the sale of The Director General, the celebrated sire of many noted trotters. As a two-year-old he was sold at the Garden for $4,500, and he is considered the best stallion of the Director blood which has been producing champions throughout the history of the trotter. The sire of Mainsheet and Sadie Fogg, now in his sixteenth year, was purchased by Frank McCloud of Dayton, Ohio, for $1,100.

Another noted sale yesterday was that of Narion, the sixteen-year-old broodmare. She was the first foal of Nancy Hanks, sire Arion, and two of her foals are able to trot in 2:10. She was bid in by T. B. Heddon of Sharon Station, Penn., for $1,200. Some of the best sales yesterday were:

Worthy Lady, trotter, 2:18, ch. m., 4 years; to S. K. Breese, Syracuse, N. Y.	$625
Electra, trotter, ch. f., 2 years; to Hugh Milan, Readville, Mass.	1,000
The Director General, trotter, blk. s., 16 years; to Frank McCloud, Dayton Ohio.	1,100
Orlena, trotter, br. m., 2:10, 4 years; to A. Johnson, Brockton, Mass.	1,400

HORSE BREEDERS MEET.

Association Holds Annual Meeting and Treasury Shows Large Surplus.

The annual meeting of the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders was held at Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon, and the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: President, Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas; First Vice President, William Russell Allen of Missouri; Second Vice President, Jacob Ruppert of New York; Third Vice President, L. V. Harkness of Kentucky; Treasurer, Sterling R. Holt of Indiana; Secretary, H. K. Devereaux of Ohio. The same Board of Directors was returned to office and last year's Executive Committee was re-elected with the substitution of J. Howard Ford of Stony Ford, N. Y., for F. E. Marsh of Illinois. The other members of the committee are Sterling R. Holt of Indianapolis, W. E. D. Stokes of New York, William Russell Allen of St. Louis, C. W. Tasell of Whitsonville, Mass.; John Donovan of St. Joseph, Mo.; William Simpson of New York, A. B. Coxe of Piola, Penn.; C. C. Watts of Charleston, West Va., and G. W. Bennett of Pittsburg.

The Treasurer's report showed the association in the best condition in its history. There is a surplus of over $18,000 in the treasury for future stakes, and for the first time since the organization started a surplus for running expenses was shown. The surplus was $160.93. Members of the Board of Directors in attendance were F. J. Kilpatrick of San Francisco, J. C. McCoy of Kirkwood, Del.; Sterling R. Holt of Indianapolis, Ind.; James R Magowan of Lexington, Ky.; W. E. D. Stokes of Lexington, Ky.; Arthur H. Parker of Bedford, Mass.; William Simpson, W. D. Dickerman, and John H. Shults of New York City; J. Y. Gatcomb of Concord, N. H.; D. C. Palmeter of Berlin, Wis., and Henry Schmulback of Wheeling, West Va. The meeting was the largest of the association held in years.

SENIOR CROSS COUNTRY.

All the Leading Clubs Entered for Saturday's Event at Celtic Park.

The senior cross-country championships of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held at Celtic Park Saturday, Nov. 26. Teams from the New York Athletic Club, Irish-American Athletic Club, Mohawk Athletic Club, Pastime Athletic Club, Mott Haven Athletic Club, and possibly many other small clubs will start, and the race promises to be as successful from a competitive standpoint as was the junior championship race of last Saturday.

The newly organized Pittsburg Athletic Association has entered a team, and as the men have been training especially for a road race in Pittsburg on Thanksgiving Day they will be in fine shape for this event. While it is doubtful if they can win the race they will cut quite a figure in the final placing of the teams.

Outside of team work the individual entries that will attract most attention are those of W. J. Kramer, present champion; Fred Bellars, H. M. McGinn, W. Bailey, Eddie Fitzgerald, New York Athletic Club; G. A. Dull, Pittsburg Athletic Association; Joyce, Masterson, Gilbert, Dwyer, and Malone, Mohawk Athletic Club; John Daly and M. W. Sheppard, Irish-American Athletic Club. While Sheppard's right sphere is in middle-distance runs, he has on several occasions demonstrated his ability to run long-distance events, and will undoubtedly finish among the leaders. The race will start at 3 o'clock.

LEAGUES SEEK NEW CLASS.

American Association and Eastern League Want to be Elevated.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Ignoring of requests made by the American Association at previous meetings of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs explains the failure of the American Association to have an official representative at the recent gathering of the big baseball assemblage in Chicago.

President Thomas Chivington of the American Association to-day offered a little light on the disinterested attitude of the association toward the National body.

The surprise of the annual meeting last week was the failure of the American Association to even put in a request for the reclassification which would raise the American Association and Eastern League into a class by themselves to be rated as AA. This had been given out as one of the points which would surely bring up a heated fight during the course of the gathering. The threatened move did not materialize, however, for the reason that the American Association magnates regarded the request as hopeless and preferred to wait.

The willingness to remain under the same classification for another year, at least, is explained by the fact that next Fall the National agreement under which the minor league clubs operate expires. It was intimated yesterday by the American Association head that the respective club owners would consider a long time in 1911 before entering another compact under the present arrangement.

No definite line of attack has been mapped out yet, but indications point toward but one thing—a combination of the Eastern League and American Association in a demand for a raise in the classification lists.

GEORGE AND APPLEYARD.

Canadian and Yonkers Runners Favorites in Big Marathon.

Fifty of the best amateur distance runners in the East will start in the Yonkers Marathon at Yonkers to-morrow. The start will be made at 12:30 o'clock from the Hollywood Inn Club at the sound of a pistol shot by Mayor Lennon of Yonkers. The runners will do seventeen miles on the road, after which they will run the remaining nine miles on the Empire City Race Track. Among the many crack distancers who will start, Jimmy George, the Indian from Hamilton, Ontario, and Charley Appleyard of Yonkers appear to be the favorites. Appleyard last week ran a seventeen-mile trial that opened the eyes of the experts to the fact that he has improved just about 100 per cent. since last year. George has won the Hamilton Herald race two years in succession, and is a logical choice for Thursday's race.

The arrangements covering the Yonkers Marathon this year are the best since the famous Brooklyn-Sea Gate race early in 1909, in which the equipment included even wireless telegraphy. A complete hospital corps, with motor trucks as ambulances, will be a novel feature. The running of the last nine miles of the race on the Empire City track will enable the spectators to get a close view of the struggle at its vital stage. Nearly every Marathon race is decided after the twentieth mile has been run, and it is unlikely that to-morrow's Yonkers Marathon will prove an exception to the general rule.

Four Teams for Marathon Race.

The Canadian team of Fred Meadows and Abbie Woods, which finished second in the twenty-mile race held at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 4, has sent in an entry for the Marathon team race which will take place in the same arena on Tuesday night, Nov. 29. This combination gave Holmer and Queal, the winners of the former contest, a hard struggle for first honors, and finishing the last mile were gradually cutting down the lead of the American boys. As the coming race is over the full distance, 26 miles 385 yards, running experts figure that the superior staying qualities of the Canadians will improve their chances of capturing first prize. It is also a well-known fact that Meadows was not quite up to his best form in the previous race. The signing up of the Canadians makes four teams now entered for the struggle. Holmer and Queal, America; Shrubb and Wood, England; Ljungstrom and Svanberg, Sweden, and Meadows and Woods, Canada.

Essex County Cross-Country.

A cross-country run, covering a distance of six miles, will be conducted next Sunday by the Essex County Athletic Association at Newark, N. J. The start will be made at Morris Park, Bloomfield Avenue, at 1:30 o'clock, and the finish will be at the same place. The race will be held under the sanction of the A. A. U. and is open to all registered athletes. A gold watch and a silver loving cup will be awarded the first and second men to finish, and medals will be awarded the next thirteen. A solid silver cup will be awarded to the club making the most entries. In addition to the cross-country run there will be 100, 440, and one-mile runs. Entries close at noon next Saturday with H. Speiser, 35 Belleville Avenue, Newark.

Indoor Athletic Carnival.

An athletic carnival in which a large number of members will participate will be held in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue, to-morrow afternoon. Among the events to be contested are an obstacle race, shot-put, buck vault for distance, and springboard high jump. First and second prizes will be awarded for each event. In addition to the above, there will be a basket ball game, tug of war, in which the Leaders' Corps will participate, and three boxing bouts.

CUBS MUST PAY FOR DECEIVING PUBLIC

Ottumwa Club Gets $200 for Misrepresentation as to Players in Game.

CINCINATTI, Nov. 22.—Because brothers of John Evers and Arthur Hofman represented these players when the Chicago National League Club played at Ottumwa, Iowa, on Sept. 9, the National Baseball Commission to-day fined the Chicago Club $200. The claim of the Ottumwa management for damages was disallowed because the home team allowed the game to go on and profited by it.

The commission's findings say in part:

"The attention of the commission was called to this case by F. T. Lynch, President of the Ottumwa Club. He charges that that club and its patrons were deliberately duped by the Chicago National League Club, and that the prices of admission on the assurances that the Chicago Club would send the best line-up that Manager Chance could muster, were fixed at $1 and $1.25 each. The Chicago Club, which was offered $600 guarantee, with the privilege of 50 per cent. of the gross receipts, was paid $1,505 as its part of the receipts.

"President Lynch states that many persons traveled over 100 miles in the expectation of seeing Chicago's star players, and that the patrons were indignant on discovering that the Chicago Club worked many substitutes. It also developed that instead of John Evers and Arthur Hofman being on the field each of those famous players was impersonated by a younger brother without even minor league baseball ability.

"The Ottumwa Club submitted in its testimony a photograph of a page of the register of the hotel at Ottumwa on which the names of the Chicago party appear in the same handwriting. Among these names are 'J. Evers and A. Hofman,' neither of whom was in the city. The clerk of the hotel sends a sworn statement that the names were entered on the register by the representative of the Chicago Club. This false registration corroborates the charge of the Ottumwa Club that the Chicago Club was guilty of gross misrepresentation.

"If the Chicago Club, as claimed by President Murphy, was unable to send a representative team, or a team that was some semblance of its regular team, the Ottumwa team should have been so advised and thereby afforded the chance to call off the game, or at least to notify the public, thereby eliminating the fraudulent features of this transaction. President Murphy's assertion that some of his players were disabled and others required rest does not clear his club of the charge of misrepresentation.

"The commission hereby serves notice on all National association clubs that when a major league club presents a makeshift team for an exhibition game the proper course for a minor league club to pursue is to cancel the game and apply to the commission for redress. If the charge of fraud and injustice is substantiated by evidence damages will be awarded for a sum not less than the amount of the guarantee demanded by the major league club for that game."

Teams for Six-Day Race.

The cycle racing stars who have been riding in this country during the outdoor season just closed are rapidly falling in line and teaming up for the big annual six-day race which starts at Madison Square Garden a week from next Sunday night, Dec. 4 to 10. Floyd McFarland, the elongated Californian, and little Jack Clarke of Australia were one of the combinations to fall in line. They rode together as a team last year and after McFarland was forced to retire owing to a broken hand, Clarke reteamed with Walter Rutt of Germany and captured first honors. In 1908 McFarland crossed the finish line in front, riding through the week with Jimmy Moran as a partner. George Cameron, the New York boy, has decided to cast his fortunes with Al Halstead of California. Halstead made his initial appearance last year teamed with Percy Lawrence, another 'Frisco youngster.

See those crosses? They're the comfort points of our arch-prop shoe, called "Pedwell."

Please don't misunderstand.

It's not a cure-all or quack shoe—though in many cases it answers an orthopedic surgeon's prescription.

We don't recommend it for arches entirely broken down; they require a surgeon's advice.

On the other hand we do recommend it for men whose arches are weakening, especially for heavy men.

It's a normal shoe, with a normal arch supported by a steel shank built into the sole to support strained muscles—quite a different proposition from the separate arches which in an ordinary shoe lift the foot up into an abnormal position.

"Pedwell" also has an extension heel designed to come right under the body's centre of gravity.

Two models—broad and medium toe.

MOORE IN THE LEAD AT THREE CUSHIONS

Tallies 51 to Former Champion Hueston's 50 in Second Block of Match at McGraw's.

George Moore showed the way to Thomas A. Hueston last night in the second block of their handicap three-cushion match at McGraw's by totaling 51 to 50. One hundred and thirty-five innings were required for the session, which was strongly flavored with periods of safety play, which necessarily slowed it up considerably. There were many interesting innings despite these retarding stages, several breaks of three by each man relieving the tiresome periods, which each player found needful to protect his interests.

The result of last night's block proved that Hueston will have his work cut out for him to win the match, if the form of each remains at the same pitch as last night, as he will have to roll up 50 points to Moore's 49 if he is to win the series. In last night's play Moore was extremely canny in his work, laying out his safety work with a vengeance, and leaving Hueston in bad position times out of number. The latter had to play hard for every shot he scored, and had the misfortune to miss scores which only needed a little of the element of luck to have them tally.

The contest proved unusually slow up to the period when the string showed Moore 27, Hueston 15; as things brightened up considerably Hueston's twentieth point was tallied as the result of a beautifully executed twice-around-the-table shot which took five cushions before the carrom was made. Almost immediately following this Moore came along with his thirtieth count, the possible successor of which was kissed off when just about to tally. The former champion's twenty-third score was made as the result of a three times across shot. Then followed a safety session which caused the spectators to shift their positions. During the stage which then ensued it could not be said that Hueston had any the better of the luck as he missed time and again by the merest fraction. After tallying his thirty-first point, Moore had the hard luck not to have quite enough speed on his ball, with the result that it died on the face of Hueston's sphere and nullified what looked like a natural for his next shot, which good fortune fell to the lot of his opponent, who took advantage of his opportunity and tallied his half-way mark on the string.

The former champion's Counts 27 and 28 were both made on shots which required banks. The same player's thirtieth count was made by a well-calculated around-the-table bank, which just escaped a kiss, which Hueston announced was the only thing he was afraid of. Moore's thirty-third tally was what Referee McGraw called a fadeaway, as it had just enough speed to carry the cue ball to its object. With the balls in fine position, Hueston subsequently followed this with another bevy of three, two of which were naturals. This enabled him to get into the lead for the first time during the session. Moore responded with a bank which brought every onlooker to his feet and showed him 34 on the string.

From this point on hard billiards was the order of things, both men apparently having to fight for every increase on the string. Moore, however, more than held his own, and, after catching and passing his opponent, won the night's block by a total score of 51 to 50, with the two nights' tally showing: Moore, 88; Hueston, 100. The final block will be played to-night.

Slosson Continues to Lead.

George Slosson continued his winning career last night in his 18.1 balk line billiard match with Calvin Demarest in the former's academy by beating the latter in both afternoon and evening games. The Student's high run in the early session was 47, and he showed an average of 8 16-38, while the best individual inning of Demarest was 37, with an average of 5 34-37. The score was 300 to 219. At the evening match Slosson tallied 300 to 200, showing a high run of 38 and an average of 10 10-29, as against Demarest's best try of 26 and average of 6 26-29. The grand total of the match to date is Slosson 2,296, Demarest 1,607.

Morningsides vs. Clovers.

The Morningside Athletic Club football eleven will meet the Clovers of Stapleton, S. I., at McNulty Field to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the preliminary game the Morningside Reserves will meet the Lakewood Athletic Club eleven.

Billiard and Pool Notes.

In last night's game of the Harlem Class A amateur 18.2 balk line billiard tournament now in progress at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, M. Isaacs was defeated by E. Barnes by the score of 200 to 146. The winner made a high run of 29 and an average of 5 10-38. This evening Mr. Reed and Mr. Tobias will cross cues.

Alfred De Oro, who is practicing at John Doyle's Billiard Academy for his coming championship pool match with Jerome Keogh, played two games of pool yesterday, winning one and losing the other. In the afternoon game he defeated Frank Payne, the winner of the last tournament at the Friars' Club, by the score of 125 to 68. De Oro made a high run of 31. In the evening contest De Oro was defeated by "Broadway" Alec Smith by the score of 100 to 98, in a very closely contested match. De Oro's high run for this game was 17. De Oro will play two games to-day. In the afternoon he will meet F. Palmer, and in the evening his opponent will be E. Kendall.

De Oro's ambition is to hold both the three-cushion carrom billiard title and the pool championship for one year. He won the three-cushion title from Hueston this year and successfully defended it against Lloyd Jevne. Next month he defends it against John Daly. After his defeat by Hueston for the pool title in 1908, the Cuban devoted all of his talent to billiards until after he challenged Keogh a few weeks ago. In recent out-of-town exhibitions he has performed so cleverly that Keogh is assured of a close match and a probable defeat, as he has never won from De Oro in championship play. The title match will be staged at Doyle's Academy the first three nights of next week.

In the preliminary games for the pool championship of the State of New York that is in progress at the Union Billiard Rooms, Broadway and Forty-fifth Street, J. W. Duffy of Newburg defeated Thomas Burns of this city last night by the score of 150 to 94. It took 69 innings for Duffy to run up the necessary 150 points, with a high run of 15, while Burns made a high run of 27. Duffy, although he did not make such a high run as his opponent, played better pool, having a steady stroke at all times and scoring steadily from the start, while the local player was up and down at all times, his best performance being when he made the high run of 27, this being his best inning.

Chess Match May Be Drawn.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—The sixth game of the chess championship match between Janowski and Lasker, adjourned from Sunday, was again adjourned to-day. The position of the players was considered equal and a draw is looked for. The present score: Lasker, 3; drawn, 2.

Luncheon for Debutantes.

Miss Viola Townsend, one of the débutantes of last year, gave a luncheon yesterday at the residence of her mother, Mrs. J. Allen Townsend, 237 Madison Avenue, for a number of this year's buds. Covers were laid for eighteen, the table decorations being pink and yellow chrysanthemums. The guests included the younger sister of the hostess, Miss Adeline Townsend, who will make her bow next year, and the Misses Caro Brown, Jeanette McAlpin, Genevieve Sanford, Julia Dick, May Vogel, Thelma Violett, Laura Hazard, Lilla Gilbert, Quenn Matthews, Marjorie Dodd, Natalie Duncan, Sarah Pyle, Dorothy Cramp, and Natalie Jerrold Kelley.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Pumice Stone Is Allowed to Enter at $6 Duty Per Ton.

Pumice stone, under the terms of the Tariff act of 1909 is to be admitted at the rate of $6 per ton under the provision in the law for pumice stone wholly or partly manufactured. It was the contention of Stanley Doggett and other importers that the Collector's assessment of 15 per cent. as being unmanufactured was without merit.

General Appraiser McClelland, who writes the decision for the board, cites a decision of the board in which the question was decided whether certain pumice stone which had the sharp edge of the crude lumps filed off for convenience in transportation was or was not wholly or partly manufactured, and the decision was that such filing did not constitute a process of manufacture. Subsequently the board held that pumice stone similarly filed was not manufactured, this ruling later being confirmed by the United States Circuit Court.

In sustaining the protest, General Appraiser McClelland says in part:

"In the case at bar, however, the record shows the merchandise to be in a different condition from that in either of the cases cited. The uncontradicted testimony on behalf of the importers is that the pumice stone as imported has, by deliberate process of filing, been made ready for the use of lithographers in rubbing down their lithographic stones, and leather manufacturers for rubbing leather before it is coated with Japan.

"Comparison of the sample in this case with that in G. A., 4,995, shows a very marked difference in the two, and tends to confirm the statement of the importers. On the record, as it stands, we find as a fact that the pumice stone in question is wholly or partly manufactured, and we therefore hold it to be subject to duty at the rate of $6 per ton. To this extent the protests are sustained and the decision of the Collector in each case reversed."

ATHLETIC BREAK IN WEST.

Minnesota May Not Meet Michigan on Gridiron Next Year.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 22.—That Minnesota will not meet Michigan on the gridiron next year was practically made certain here when the University of Minnesota yesterday officially asked the conference teams to hold the annual track games here next June.

It has been well understood that Minnesota could not renew football relations with Michigan and still stick to the conference.

None of the college Athletic Boards in any of the conference colleges was consulted about the Michigan games two years ago, and lately Minnesota received strong intimations from the other conference colleges that it must choose between the conference and Michigan. Minnesota decided in favor of the conference.

This turn of affairs will eliminate the biggest football game on Minnesota's schedule, but it is thought that other advantages to be gained in the conference will more than offset this. There is no question that the undergraduates will demand revenge from Michigan, but the controlling members of the Faculty board are said to be strong for the conference, and that will probably end it.

There is still a possibility, however, that Michigan may come into the conference, in which case everything would be peaceful and Minnesota might then get a chance to play Michigan again.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 22.—Asked if there is any truth in the rumor that football relations between Michigan and Minnesota are to be suspended, Prof. Evans Holbrook, Chairman of the board in control of athletics, admitted last night that as yet there is no contract or agreement with Minnesota for next year.

"We are unable to say at this time whether the relations begun two years ago will be continued or not," said Prof. Holbrook.

"Both Minnesota and Michigan are extremely anxious to play the game, but the Minnesota authorities are unwilling to invite a break at the conference, and it is possible that such a relation would result from a renewal of the contract with us."

DRUG IN MIDDIES' FOOD.

Steward and Cook at Naval Academy Suspended Pending Inquiry.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 22.—Suspected of complicity in an attempt to make many of the Midshipmen ill and thereby cast reflections on the ability of the recently appointed chief cook, C. J. Ridgley, commissary steward, and William Harris, second cook, both colored, have been suspended from duty and forbidden to enter the Naval Academy pending the completion of an investigation.

Within the last few days more than a score of the Midshipmen have been taken ill after eating, and many have had to be sent to the hospital.

Seventeen men out of the football squad of about thirty, who are possibilities in the Blue and Gold line-up against West Point, were affected more or less seriously, but Surgeon J. A. Murphy, who is in charge of the navy athletics, said to-night that all of his men were again in fine shape. The identity of the football men who were made ill cannot be learned, as their names will not be given out by the authorities.

The investigation, which is being conducted under the supervision of Capt. Coontz, commandant, has narrowed down the cause of the sickness to the sugar used in the tea, coffee, and desserts. Samples of the food have been sent to Washington for analysis.

It is said that Ridgley wanted Harris appointed head cook, but his recommendation was not accepted, and it is alleged that efforts were made then to discredit the man selected by the authorities by tampering with the food. It was said to-day that Ridgley once had studied medicine.

The authorities received a setback in their hope that they had the typhoid fever situation well in hand, and that no more cases would appear. Another case developed to-day when W. E. Doyle of the fourth class, of Cheyenne, Wyo., was taken to the Naval General Hospital.

BLOCK ESTIMATE BOARD.

Aldermen Hold Up Appropriation to Pay for Department Investigations.

The Aldermen yesterday rebuked the Board of Estimate by refusing to allow the $110,000 included by it in the budget for next year to pay for investigations of the Health and Charities Departments, Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, the Board of Education, and the salary grades of the city service.

The row resulted in a victory for the Tammany side of the board by a vote of 46 to 25, two Republicans and three Fusion Aldermen voting with the majority.

Borough President McAneny took the brunt of the battle on behalf of the Board of Estimate and fought valiantly. He was heckled by Alderman Dowling, the Tammany leader, and two of his colleagues, Walsh and Kenneally, and the talk became bitter.

The opposition to the investigations centred on the salary question, the Tammany men insisting that this could only mean a blow to the small paid city laborer. It was said that he had suffered already greatly under the reform administration, while the pay of high-salaried officials has been increased.

The matter now goes to the Mayor, and he has the power to restore the money for the investigations. When asked later in the day what his action would be he said he had not yet considered it.

This is the first time in years that the Aldermen have tampered to any degree with the budget as passed by the Board of Estimate.

DEMAND A DIVIDEND ON LEATHER COMMON

Holders of These Shares Hint That the Directors Are Interested Only in the Preferred.

WANT THEIR OWN DIRECTORS

Brokerage House Holding 18,000 Shares of Common Files a Protest—All the Directors Have Only 10,000 Shares.

Dissatisfaction among stockholders of the Central Leather Company, successor of the United States Leather Company, which was known as the Leather Trust, at the postponement of dividends on the common stock and because of the belief that the common stock is not properly represented on the Board of Directors, has been formally called to the attention of the company by J. S. Bache & Co., who hold in addition to a fair size block of the preferred stock more than 18,000 shares of the common stock.

This house in behalf of itself and many other holders of the common stock has asked the Directors to make some distribution on the common stock, saying it is justified by the earnings of the company, and also to put on the board two or three new Directors who would more directly represent the common stockholders than any on the present board. The firm specifically disclaims any desire to obtain for itself any place on the board.

The Directors held a meeting yesterday at which the regular dividend on the preferred stock was declared without any action whatever being taken regarding the common. So far as the election of Directors to represent the common stock is concerned, the board has concluded that it is without power to elect Directors except to fill vacancies and that that is a matter which the stockholders must atten to at their annual meeting. The next annual stockholders' meeting will not take place until February.

Unless there have been material changes since last June, when the latest list of stockholders to which the stockholders have had access was compiled the entire Board of Directors hold only a little more than half as much common stock as stands in the name of J. S. Bache & Co. This house, when the June stock list was made up, held 18,465 shares, while all the Directors among them held only 10,013 shares.

There are fifteen Directors, and of these five held in their own name no common stock at all, and six others held an average of only a little more than 300 shares, making eleven out of the fifteen Directors whose entire holdings of common stock amounted to only 1,926 shares. This is the amount of common and preferred stock which stood in the names of each of the Directors:

STOCK HOLDINGS.

Directors.	Preferred Shares.	Common Shares.

There are outstanding 396,996 shares of Central Leather common, so the holdings in the names of the fifteen Directors, amounting to 10,013 shares, is equal to only about 2½ per cent. of the total. It is considered probable, however, that some of the Directors hold in other names more of the company's stock than stands in their own names on the books of the company. Thus, P. A. Valentine had in his name, when this list of stockholders was made up, only 100 shares, although he is regarded as one of the large stockholders of the company.

SILENT ON FRISCO ALLIANCE.

Director Disclaims Knowledge of the Deal with St. Paul.

Officials of the St. Paul and the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroads were reticent yesterday concerning the plan now under way for a close traffic alliance between them, as a result of which the St. Paul would obtain, among other advantages, a direct outlet to the Gulf and the Frisco would have a connection through to the Pacific. An official of the St. Paul limited himself to the statement that it would all come out at the proper time, while one of the Frisco Directors disclaimed any knowledge of such a plan.

The importance of the proposed alliance, it was suggested yesterday, was strikingly enough indicated by the fact that some of the Northwestern lines have gone to large expenditure to obtain just what the St. Paul would obtain under the proposed arrangement.

When the traffic agreement between the Frisco and the Southern Pacific lines was entered into last June it was estimated that it would have cost either system between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 to construct lines which would give the connections which both systems got by means of it. Many times this sum would be needed to provide independently what the St. Paul and the Frisco may have in combination.

UP FOR SHOOTING HIS WIFE.

"Teddie" Hudson Testifies Against Her Husband, the Composer.

Alfred H. Dalby, the composer and musical comedy conductor, who attempted to shoot his young wife, known on the stage as "Teddie" Hudson, last July, was put on trial before Judge Crain, in General Sessions, yesterday.

Mrs. Dalby testified that after nagging her till she left him to live at 224 West Forty-fifth Street, he followed her there and shot her as she was entering her home.

Detective Michael Walsh, who arrested Dalby, testified that the latter told him that as soon as he could get out on bail he would "make a better job of it."

Dalby, in his own defense, testified that he had heard that his wife had been going about with other men, and in a moment of excitement he drew the revolver and shot her.

To-day several persons well known in the theatrical world will be called as witnesses for the defense.

QUINCY LOWERS DIVIDEND.

Quarterly Payment $1 a Share, a Cut of $1.26 from Last Quarter.

The dividend of the Quincy Mining Company declared yesterday was $1 a share for the quarter, which is $1.26 a share less than was paid on Sept. 6 for the previous quarter. The company began the year with a $1.50 quarterly dividend, and in 1909 paid $4 a share for the year. The Quincy is one of the oldest of the Lake Superior copper properties, having been organized in 1848. It has paid as high as $13.50 a share in one year. This was in 1908. From its organization up to the first of the current year dividends totaling $18,890,000 had been paid. The outstanding capital is $2,750,000, in shares of $25 par.

Along with the announcement of the reduced dividend yesterday came the news that the Directors had authorized the purchase of additional property for $600,000. The new territory, which is being bought from the St. Mary's Mineral Land Company, consists of Section 14 and the northeast quarter of Section 22.

IOWA CENTRAL EARNINGS UP.

President Shonts Again Protests Against Further Restrictive Laws.

The pamphlet report of the Iowa Central Railway, of which T. P. Shonts is President, for the year ended June 30 last was issued yesterday. Mr. Shonts repeats what he said regarding the railroad situation in the previously issued reports of the Chicago & Alton and the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, Mr. Shonts being President of those roads also. He argues that any further restrictive measures affecting the railroads should be avoided until the railroads and the public have had a chance to determine the effect of the enforcement of the laws already enacted.

The gross earnings of the Iowa Central amounted to $3,361,282, an increase of $345,635, and its net earnings after the payment of taxes to $669,414, an increase of $214,543. The total net receipts fell short of the year's charges by $26,663, which was deducted from the previous profit and loss surplus along with an additional $16,480 for sundry adjustments, leaving $2,219,296 to the credit of the profit and loss account on June 30 last.

MORE INTERNAL REVENUE.

October Sets New Mark—Fiscal Year Already $12,000,000 Ahead of Last.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Government's receipts from internal revenue touched another high mark in October and showed increases at all sources except two—playing cards and oleomargarine.

Receipts for the new tobacco tax were more than $1,000,000 greater than in September, and the taxes on fermented liquors increased $500.

November promises to make a good showing also. The month so far is more than $1,000,000 ahead of the same month last year, and the present fiscal year to date is $12,000,000 ahead of the last one.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The only stock to distinguish itself was American Can preferred, which rose conspicuously both in New York and on the local Exchange. Besides American Can, the other active stocks on the local Exchange were the Chicago Railways participating certificates, Series 1 and 2, both of which showed pronounced strength. According to the report current in Lasalle Street, the traction tangle is gradually being unraveled and the day is not far distant when the Chicago Railways Company will be taken out of the hands of the receivers.

Underlying Railroad Bonds

UNDERLYING railroad bonds represent in most cases the original mortgages placed on the properties. Since they are being gradually retired, or replaced by refunding or consolidated mortgages, the supply is limited, the demand good and the security steadily enhancing.

Our Circular No. 824, "Investment Securities," describes several issues of underlying railroad bonds.

MEXICAN REVOLT A FACTOR

Reports of Damage to American Owned Plants Induces Conservatism—Early Bank Call Returns Vary.

Presumably as a result of short covering following Monday's declines there was a little upturn in stocks in the first hour of business yesterday upon moderately active trading. Thereafter dealings diminished and prices sagged steadily, although unhurriedly, leaving the list as a whole at the close fractionally under Monday night's level. In the day's news there was little incentive to the buying of securities. Mr. Hill's very conservative remarks anent the business outlook published in this newspaper were, of course, an influence making for caution, for Wall Street recalls distinctly the numerous occasions upon which this pioneer of the Northwest has felt constrained to point out the weak spots in a situation which has later only too fully vindicated his foresight. Again, overnight developments in the Mexican revolt were distinctly unsettling. For the first time American interests in that country seemed to be endangered. Dispatches described a number of mining and industrial plants built and operated with American capital as having been seized by the revolutionists and at least partially demolished. Just how far this destruction of property has gone it is, of course, too early to determine, for the telegraphic advices are fragmentary and not too trustworthy, but it was fairly obvious that the financial community is coming to take the Mexican disturbances much more seriously, and, therefore, exercising caution in the absence of definite word regarding their extent and probable duration. One of the older copper companies having an excellent dividend record announced a reduction in its quarterly payment, cutting the rate from $2.25 for that period to $1, while of more cheerful import was the news of rather substantial buying of equipment by the Pennsylvania and several other railroads.

There was little demand on the Stock Exchange for money, and rates naturally enough reflected this in their continued ease. The banks lost a half-million dollars to the Sub-Treasury, but are still well ahead on the routine transactions with that institution since Friday last. The foreign exchange market was uninteresting, with little change in quotations, and upon the whole the only attention attracted by money affairs proper was that attaching to the further returns by cities under the recent bank call, which disclosed somewhat mixed movements since the September report. Tacoma, for example, notes a reduction in reserve percentage from 28.58 per cent. to 26.10 per cent., while St. Paul reports improvement from 25.12 per cent. on Sept. 10 to 26.20 per cent. on Nov. 10. The position of the banks as a whole cannot be told until the full returns have been compiled by the Controller.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—Philadelphia Electric and Storage Battery were taken in hand and given an upward whirl by the local traders to-day. The quotation was quickly lifted more than a point. The local traction issues continued to display quiet strength, which was also true of the Asphalts. Arbitrage shares moved irregularly, without much vim, while Lehigh Valley slipped back a small fraction, and the whole list was inclined to slide off at the close in sympathy with the late setback in New York.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange presented a repetition of the trading conditions that have now been the rule for some time. After a soft opening, professional operators who were short started to cover, with a sharp recovery ensuing. By the afternoon, however, prices were again sagging and the day closed with another display of weakness. Total sales were 60,480 shares, distributed among thirty-eight different stocks:

There was some activity in the trust certificates of the Intercontinental Rubber Company, and after transactions of 1,800 shares the close was at 28¼, ⅝ down. Among the coppers activity continued, but on a reduced scale. In Chino there was a reaction from the recent strong upward movement. TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Railroad Economies.

The theory propounded by the shippers at the rate hearing in Washington on Monday that the railroads could easily save $1,000,000 a day if they really wanted to and if they only applied the same careful management as prevails in many industrial plants, has called forth some decided rejoinders from railroad men. If there are any men in the country who can show the railroads how to save that money, the railroads, they say, will be very glad to employ them at big salaries. They rather feel, in fact, that if anybody is possessed of so much more knowledge about the right way to run railroads than railroad men themselves possess the thing for that somebody to do is to come forward and tell the railroads just how this is to be done, with the assurance that their pay will be very big. It would appear, indeed, that, despite the disclaimers of counsel for the shippers, this statement is in no way meant as a reflection on the efficiency of the managers of the railroads, the latter feel very strongly that it is such a reflection, and they are in a mood, therefore, vigorously to challenge the statement that the railroads are wasting $1,000,000 every day they operate their lines.

⁂

President Willard's View.

Discussing this $1,000,000 theory of the shippers President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio said yesterday that there were just two ways in which the railroads could effect any such saving. One, he said, would be by discharging about 500,000 men, and the other would be by a heavy reduction in the rate of pay of all railroad employes. Neither of these, he thought, would be very acceptable to the public. The bulk of the railroads' expenditures went for the purchase of materials and supplies and for the payment of labor. The railroads are powerless to regulate the prices they have to pay for their supplies, and this only leaves a reduction in the amount of the rate of wages as a possible means of effecting such economies as the shippers contend are possible.

⁂

Morgan in Washington.

The presence of J. P. Morgan in Washington on Monday afternoon and yesterday was the subject of many surmises in Wall Street regarding the purpose of his visit to the capital. Some held to the theory that Mr. Morgan was waiting for the return of President Taft to speak to him about possible changes in the steel schedules, in the event of another early revision of the tariff. Others found an explanation in the fact that the Inter-State Commerce Commission is now considering the proposed freight rate increases. Still other theories were propounded with as much or as little authority as was behind the two suggestions referred to. Had the facts in the case been known it might have been that the Street would have had no cause to interest itself in Mr. Morgan's trip, but in that case the Street would rather not know the facts, for that would interfere with surmises, and the Street dearly loves its surmises.

⁂

Mr. Perkins and Freight Rates.

Something akin to bewilderment was caused by the statement made in Washington yesterday by one of the shippers who testified at the rate hearing before the Inter-State Commerce Commission that he was there urging the part of the shippers at the suggestion of George W. Perkins. He quoted Mr. Perkins, according to the Washington dispatches which reached the Street in the course of the day, as saying some weeks ago that the shippers' side of the rate case had been neglected, and as urging this shipper to make himself heard before the Commerce Commission. Mr. Perkins, this shipper said, had made the point that he was as much interested in manufacturing as in railroads, and that he wanted to see fair play in this rate matter. The Street recalled that it was Mr. Perkins who induced the packers to accept higher rates on their products, and Mr. Perkins, his friends say, is confident that the railroads will be allowed higher rates. It was a little surprising, therefore, to find him described as having advised the shippers to protect themselves against the railroads.

⁂

Rail Requirements.

The latest estimates of the probable steel rail requirements of the Eastern railroads name 100,000 tons as the amount which the New York Central lines will probably order for use in 1911, while the Pennsylvania system may require as much as 135,000 tons. The placing of the rail orders by either of these two systems will be an event of much interest to the Street as suggesting the extent to which the systems are willing to commit themselves for renewal and improvement work in the coming year. It was made known yesterday that the Pennsylvania has placed an order for some steel and steel under-frame freight cars with the Pressed Steel Car Company. It was said yesterday that general steel orders are being received by the steel companies on a little larger scale than a few weeks ago. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation is reported to have on its books about $18,000,000 of unfilled orders.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

London Prices Sag on Dear Money—Mexicans Down in Paris.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Money was dear and discount rates hardened in sympathy to-day.

The stock market opened steady, but sagged later on dear money. The Welsh colliery troubles affected home securities, consols falling three-sixteenths. Foreign bonds were firm on investment buying, but Mexican securities closed flat.

American securities were quiet and featureless during the forenoon. Realizing caused recessions in the early afternoon, but light New York buying helped a recovery and made the closing steady.

Bar silver steady at 25 9-16d per ounce. Money, 4¾@5 per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 4¾ per cent.; for three months' bills, 4⅝@4 7-16 per cent.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—Prices were generally steady on the Bourse to-day. Mexican securities were depressed by fears of a revolution.

At closing 3 per cent. rentes were 97f 37½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 80c for checks.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Trading was dull and prices were slightly weaker on the Boerse to-day.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The general run of news advices during the day was of a more favorable character to holders of wheat, and as a result the level of prices was generally above the close of the previous session. At the opening the market was about ⅛c higher, with considerable covering of shorts by recent sellers, stimulated by the strength shown in the Liverpool market, which in turn was affected by Argentine advices. There were continued reports of drought received from the southern part of that country, and in addition cables relative to the progressive seeding in other countries were of a less favorable nature. There was no rain in the southwestern part of our Winter wheat belt or in other sections to relieve the drought existing, and there were some damage complaints received, but as predictions were for moisture overnight apprehension was allayed somewhat. The advance, however, was not maintained in the early trade, and outside markets were again relatively weaker than Chicago, with sentiment tending to lean toward the bear side. Selling was influenced by slower cash situation in the Northwest with further unfavorable flour advices received. Bradstreet's statement showing an increase for the week in the world's supply of wheat of 2,112,000 bushels following an increase last week of 5,000,000 bushels and an increase last year of 835,000 bushels also had some effect. The total stocks of wheat in the world at present amount to over 201,000,000 bushels against 136,000,000 bushels last year, and 140,000,000 bushels two years ago. The pressure, however, was not heavy, and the market advanced to the high of the day in the late trading on the strength of the Buenos Ayres markets, reflecting nervousness over conditions in Argentine. Further private advices were received from that country, one of which estimated the exportable surplus at 84,000,000 bushels and another at 93,000,000 bushels. There was also considerable export business, which amounted to 384,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat, which was influential at the close. Cash wheat was quoted at 95¾c for No. 2 red, elevator, domestic, and 96½c, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.02¾; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.17¾, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.05⅛.

CORN.—The corn market was heavy during most of the day with insistent predictions of freer movement in the near future. The country was said to be asking for bids, and these bearish advices were reflected in the cash market, which was from ½ to 1c lower. Weather continues fine, although there were predictions of unsettled conditions, but this had little effect. There was good buying by shorts, influenced by the strength in wheat in the afternoon, and a partial recovery was witother at 93,000,000 bushels. There was also nessed. Bradstreet's report for the week showed a decrease of 300,000 bushels, against a decrease of over 1,000,000 bushels last week, and a slight increase a year ago. Export sales of 160,000 bushels were reported. Cash No. 2 corn quoted nominal, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, elevator, and 51c for forward free on board, afloat, for export.

OATS.—The movements of other grain was again the dominating influence in this market. There was some steadiness at the outset on the favorable cash situation, with expectations of a decrease in Bradstreet's statement. This report showed a decrease for the week of 333,000 bushels against a decrease last week of 1,360,000 bushels, and an increase a year ago of 56,000 bushels. While there was some heaviness at times on freer offerings and lower cash markets, the close was steady with other grain. Cash standards quoted at 37c; No. 2 white, 37½c; No. 3 white, 36½c.

PROVISIONS—The market was slightly easier in the early trading on selling by commission houses, part of which was credited to packers. Receipts were liberal, and hog advices were bearish, but later a steadier tendency developed with other markets.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A better undertone was manifested in the market during yesterday's session, and although scattered selling at the outset resulted in some further decline, offerings were well absorbed. There was good speculative buying, part of which was credited to Southern interests, with local traders also more bullish and disposed to advance the market. Crude Oil while not quoted at any advance was said to be steadier and the strength of the cotton market reflecting a disposition to view the ginning report bullishly was not without effect. Bears were less aggressive, and although offering oil at times it was evident that they were not disposed to sell very much. The undertone in the market was firm, and it was thought that liquidation had been pretty thorough and that a fair size short interest has been created, although the real impetus for price changes will be largely governed by the pressure or strength of crude in the near future. At close values eased fractionally on freer offerings.

COTTON.

Excepting for an opening decline of from 5 to 13 points the undertone in the cotton market during yesterday's session was very steady with decided strength displayed in the afternoon. The early loss was more than recovered and prices advanced to new high levels for the movement, with the close very steady. The decline at the outset was in sympathy with Liverpool advices. The market made a rather disappointing showing when the bullishness prevailing there and trade accounts received from Manchester are considered. There were private advices stating that the ginning report was made a basis for liquidation, which was also prompted by the fact that the South was offering more freely. Large spot interests were very heavy sellers in the local markets, and for a time supplied the outside demand and also the buying for short accounts rather easily. Later, however, when offerings had been digested, there was further speculative buying, attracted by the absorbing power that the market had shown, and short covering was also in good volume. Reports from the South continued bullish as to the amount of ginning already done, and the fact that a prominent spot interest was said to have switched to the bull side was favorably commented upon. Buying by large commission houses, a good part of which was credited to old bull account, was very persistent in the afternoon, and except for realizing sales pressure was not heavy. There were many predictions heard of 16-cent cotton before Christmas, and sentiment was rather bullish. Mr. O. K. Lyle, who recently issued an estimate of the crop of 10,945,000 bales, exclusive of linters, was talking extremely bullish on the floor of the Produce Exchange yesterday. Receipts continue in good volume, with weather conditions fine for picking, but bearish factors are having but small influence at the present time; in fact, it is said that considerable buying yesterday was already being based on prospects of a bullish Government report next month. Southern spots were 3-16 advance to 1-16 decline; New York spots, quiet, at 5 advance from the previous close; middling upland, 14.85, and Gulf, 15.10.

COFFEE.

Coffee was steady at the opening, with prices 5@15 points above the previous close. This carried values to new high records, with January at 10½c. Havre was ¾@1f higher, Hamburg was ½@¾ pfennig higher, and in Brazil Rio showed a gain of 150 reis, and Santos was 400 reis higher. After the early advance the market developed an easier feeling under profit taking, and late in the day the market declined quite sharply and closed steady at 3 points decline to 8 points advance, with total business amounting to 86,250 bags. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were higher and above a working basis.

Spot coffee was firm, unchanged, at 18⅛c for Rio No. 7 and 13½c for Santos 4s.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Prices in the local market show but little change as a result of the day's trading. Amalgamated sold up to 70 and East Butte to 13⅝, while North Butte advanced to 36 during the early part of the session. Realizing brought prices down somewhat later, however, and the market closed irregular at some concession from the early high figures.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Market Conditions Improve—Cotton Exchange Adds to Its Holdings—Investors Buy Tenements at Auction—Bronx and Suburban Sales.

There was a decided change for the better in the tone and condition of the realty market yesterday. Several important transactions in both the business and dwelling house centres of the city were reported.

At the Vesey Street Salesroom there was a long and varied list of offerings. The attendance was good and fair prices were obtained. Tenement-house property was in good demand and brought the best figures, two on West Sixteenth Street, near Tenth Avenue, being sold for $32,000. Two dwellings in West Eighty-third Street brought $12,550 and $12,250, respectively. The six-story Manhanset apartment house, at the corner of Longwood and Prospect Avenues, in the Bronx, built a few years ago by James F. Meehan, and subsequently sold to the Brakman estate, was secured by George Hockenberger for $203,000.

The suburban market continues strong and active considering the season of the year.

Cotton Exchange Buys 87 Water St.

The Water Street Realty Company has sold to the New York Cotton Exchange 87 Water Street, a four-and-a-half-story building, on lot 28 by 83. The property will be used for the inspection of cotton. The small building at 64 Beaver Street, adjoining the Exchange, is at present used for this purpose. William A. White & Sons negotiated the sale.

Plot Opposite New Theatre Withdrawn from Sale.

The old Morgan estate property on the southwest corner of Central Park West and Sixty-second Street, opposite the New Theatre, which was advertised for sale yesterday by Joseph P. Day, was withdrawn just before the time of sale. The plot, which is 100 by 100.5 feet, was purchased last season by the New York Urban Real Estate Company, and later disposed of to a company which made plans for erecting a co-operative apartment house to cost about $700,000. Since that time, it is stated, several offers have been made for the property, and the withdrawal of the plot was due to the probable disposal of the corner at private sale or the obtaining of additional capital by the present owners to carry on the contemplated improvements. The New York Urban Real Estate Company still controls an interest in the plot and will act as the agents of the proposed apartment, if built, which is to be known as the Harwood Court.

Good Private Dwelling Market.

In exchange, Mr. Horowitz gives 497 and 499 Green Avenue, Brooklyn, a plot 40 by 80, at the northeast corner of Green and Nostrand Avenues, on which there are two four-story flats. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale, in which A. Offenberg & Son were associated.

Adolph Lewisohn Reported Buyer of Holyrood Property.

The bid of $200,000 for the property of the Holyrood Protestant Episcopal Church, at 181st Street and Broadway, is reported to have been made by Adolph Lewisohn.

L. J. Phillips & Co., the brokers who made the bid which was accepted by the trustees of the church, and who transact the majority of Mr. Lewisohn's realty business, refused all information on the subject.

The sale is opposed by Reginald Pelham Bolton, one of the donors of the site. It is said that Mr. Bolton will appeal to the Standing Committee of the diocese, and, if necessary, carry the matter to the Supreme Court on the ground that the land he gave was donated for church purposes only.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has sold to Harry Hall 65 Front Street, a five-story loft building, on plot about 21 by 87, being 95 feet south of Old Slip. The building is a substantial structure, with a carrying capacity of 170 pounds per square foot on all floors. The property has a frontage of over 675 feet on White Plains Avenue. It extends easterly along Gun Hill Road for about five blocks, being intersected by Cruger, Holland, Wallace, and Barnes Avenues. The "White List" Agency
(Incorporated)
Telephone Cortlandt 5067
CHARLES H. BELLOWS, President and Manager.
Formerly With The Evening Mail "Blue List."

The "White List" Agency has been organized for the purpose of supplying reliable employees to employers, and obtaining high-class positions for employees along the following lines:

WHAT WE DO FOR EMPLOYEES
A fee of $2 is charged the applicant for a position as a registration fee, for which the applicants have the privilege of the "White List" office. At the time of registering the applicants are required to furnish three first-class references as to their character and integrity; also as to their ability to fill such positions as they apply for.
The applicants are sent to employers with a letter of introduction from the agency, together with a copy of their references. If they secure a position the following charges are made:
Where the salary does not exceed
$15.00 per week the charge is..........$5.00
Above $15.00 and up to $20.00 per week.$10.00
Above $20.00 and up to $30.00 per week.$20.00
Above $30.00 and up to $40.00 per week.$25.00
Above $40.00 and up to $50.00 per week.$35.00
This is the total expense to the applicant.
When the salary exceeds $50.00 per week special arrangements are made.
Come in and register or send for our representative to call upon you.

WHAT WE DO FOR EMPLOYERS
We supply employers with high-class employees, such as stenographers, typists, bookkeepers, officemen, salesmen, chauffeurs, solicitors, secretaries, confidential men, managers, etc.
We never send an applicant to an employer until his or her references have been thoroughly investigated by the agency as to their character, integrity and ability to perform such services as they apply for. The services thus rendered to the employer are of great value, as it eliminates much loss of time and expense, and also annoyance in sifting out from a large number of replies usually received from an advertisement the desired applicant. It relieves the employer from looking up an applicant's references, as the records in the office of the "White List" are most complete.
We also write advertisements for either employers or employees and insert them in such papers as they request. The replies from such advertisements can be addressed to a box number in our office, where they may be called for, or we will mail them.
We also write booklets.
Send in your wants or send for our representative to call upon you.

M'ADOO TO EXTEND HIS SUBWAY OFFER

Likely to Include a Proposal to Operate Elevated Extensions in the Bronx and Brooklyn.

ESTIMATE BOARD GOING SLOW

Chairman Willcox Thinks It Wise to Delay Contracts So Long as Favorable Bids Keep Coming In.

After William G. McAdoo, the builder of the Hudson Tunnels, had conferred yesterday with Controller Prendergast and President Mitchel of the Aldermen and with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission it was understood that he would probably change his pending offer for the operation of a modified triborough subway system so as to include in it a proposal to operate two elevated extensions of the triborough in the Bronx and the Fourth Avenue route in Brooklyn.

Mr. McAdoo in his first letter to Chairman Willcox told of the willingness of his company to operate extensions of the triborough and to make some kind of a bid on the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn.

The Controller and the President of the Aldermen issued together this statement:

"We think this conference will be productive of an amplification of Mr. McAdoo's offer. We are confident that arrangements to operate the Fourth Avenue route may be made.

"Our conference with Mr. McAdoo was known to Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission. We found Mr. McAdoo's attitude most pleasing and in marked contrast with the hide-and-seek policy of other interests."

Mr. McAdoo himself, after his talk with Chairman Willcox, said merely that his conferences were intended to produce a better understanding of the offer of his company, and to assure the public officials that he was willing to meet them half way on all the questions that might be raised in connection with it. It is understood that Mr. McAdoo discussed with Mr. Mitchel and Mr. Prendergast, among other things, their desire to have the city in a position eventually to add the Hudson & Manhattan's loop from Thirty-third Street to the Grand Central by way of Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, to the triborough system, provided the Broadway local link was constructed as proposed by the McAdoo companies.

A large delegation from the Triborough League visited Mayor Gaynor to present resolutions that the league had adopted favoring the triborough subway route.

No clash occurred, however, between the delegation, and Edward Moriarty, President of the Triborough League, said the committee had been pleasantly received, and the Mayor told the reporters who inquired that he was glad to receive the delegation, who appeared to be intelligent gentlemen and well informed on the subject of which they spoke. Mr. Moriarty's delegation also visited President McAneny. Neither Mr. McAneny nor the committee would say what happened.

After the delegation left Mr. McAneny made it known to the reporters that he believed the Board of Estimate should take the full time of sixty days allowed it for considering the triborough contracts when they shall have been received from the Public Service Commission.

Chairman Willcox explained one or two points of the McAdoo offer, calling attention particularly to the fact that as the city's available borrowing capacity for subway purposes was only $60,000,000, and the triborough bids called for $85,000,000 of construction, it was desirable that such sections of the triborough should be selected for immediate construction as would make it possible for the city to take up later with the McAdoo plan, if it saw fit, or, rejecting the McAdoo offer, to continue the triborough on its original plans.

"But I would like to say that I do not regard the McAdoo offer as implying the abandonment of the triborough," said the Chairman. "The fact is that, as I interpret Mr. McAdoo's offer, there is no such implication at all. It does not take in all the triborough in the direct offer, but neither was the city preparing to let contracts for the entire triborough. But the offer does cover that it is likely to be let at the present time, and what is considerably more, Mr. McAdoo expressly says that the operation of the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn and the elevated extension in the Bronx may be matters of negotiation later on, and the mere fact that the details of such operation are not settled now would by no means bind the city to the acceptance of any contract which would shut out such operation."

Chairman Willcox was asked whether if another proposal were received immediately and there were prospects of others, he would favor delaying the award of the contracts so long as bids kept coming in.

"I would, emphatically," he said, "so long as the bids kept coming in in such a way as seemed to demand attention. It may be that we shall receive another offer more favorable to the city than Mr. McAdoo's, in which case I would most certainly consider it, and would delay awarding bids until careful consideration might be given."

ROBBER PUT TEN TO SLEEP.

That at Least Is the Tale of All the Ten to the Police—Jewelry Gone.

Six adults and four children trooped unsteadily into the East 104th Street Station shortly before midnight last night and vouched for this story:

They said they were all assembled at the home of Ralph Annone on the second floor of 446 East 116th Street at a sewing bee yesterday morning. There were present Annone, his aged wife, their son Joseph, his wife Margaret, two daughters of these, Stella and Margaret, and Miss Maggie Papa of 296 Pleasant Avenue, Mrs. May Laura, and her two children, Minnie and Lauretta. The men and women were sewing plumes at the tables; the children played on the floor.

At 11 o'clock there entered a man about 37 years old, with a gray mustache and dark complexion. He wanted to sell insurance policies to the men. In the course of his talk he suggested an adjournment to a nearby saloon. Joseph Annone, however, remembered that there was sufficient cheer in the form of a flask of vermouth in the cupboard and got it out. Each of the men drank two glasses, smoked some of Joseph's cigars, and talked insurance.

That was all they knew till, at 3 o'clock, they awoke, almost simultaneously. The stranger was gone. The women were still nodding over the tables. The men were still thinking insurance. The children rubbed their eyes and continued their play on the floor. Then, when they tried to move, they found that all their limbs were stiff and heavy.

One of the men moved laboriously to the window and opened it. It was an hour before their minds cleared and they could walk feebly about the room, and not until 10 o'clock last night that any of them was strong enough to walk downstairs and call in neighbors.

A search revealed that with the stranger had disappeared Mrs. Annone's silver jewelry box with rings and other jewelry worth $200, a ten-dollar gold piece, and $50 in bills. No one could remember how they happened to fall asleep or when the stranger and the jewelry had disappeared. They recalled, too, that the stranger gesticulated very much while speaking and circulated through all parts of the room as he talked insurance.

The police thought the stranger must have wafted from his finger-tips some narcotic drug, imported from a book of the Arabian Nights, thereby putting the rest to sleep. They sent out an alarm for him, nevertheless.

The Home of Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes

Smart Overcoats

DISTINCTION is a much over-worked word in clothes advertising; yet never has it been so well applied as to our Hart, Schaffner & Marx Overcoats. Distinction, exclusiveness of style and fabric, if you will, is their most salient characteristic. Take our Three-Button 'Varsity, for example,—it buttons through and has just enough of the "form-fitting" quality to make it extremely graceful.—Then there are big loose great-coats like the one here shown, fully as cozy and coldproof as they look, and other models innumerable.

And whatever price you pay,—$18, $25, $30 or $65,—you can be sure that otherwhere your money would not bring you as much. Come in and see for yourself.

A revision of prices has made all our $25 Fall Overcoats and Raincoats now $18.
